F. W. WOOLWORTH SAFE OPENED BY TORCH BURGLARS, $15,000 STOLEN

Charred Dollar Bills Strewn Over Floor in Office of New Store at Sixth and Locust Streets.

A safe in the new F. W. Woolworth Co. store at Sixth and Locust streets was robbed of approximately $15,000 by burglars who used an acetylene torch, police reported today.

The burglary occurred between 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and 6:45 this morning. It was discovered by Miss Ruby Miller, an employe who found water on the floor of the office when she came to work.

Buckets of water had been used by the burglars to cool the heated steel of the safe. In burning a large hole through the door, which was 2½ inches thick, they charred dollar bills and coin packages which were left strewn on the floor.

Police said the burglars apparently gained entrance through a door on the roof of the three-story building after mounting the fire escape of an adjoining building. They placed a strip of oilcloth over the window in the second-floor office, then set to work with the torch.

The torch, a tank of oxygen and a crowbar were abandoned in the office.

The burglars went all over the store. From a recreation room they took an ash tray which they used for their cigarette ashes in the office, apparently having stood around smoking while the safe-cutting was in progress. From the bakery department they took a cart, possibly to haul away the money scooped out of the safe. The cart, reeking of smoke, was found on the first floor.

The door of a second-floor storeroom had been opened by removal of the lock cylinder, but the management reported that nothing seemed to be missing there.

Police termed the burglary "a highly professional job," and said the thieves apparently had made a careful study of the layout since the store opened Oct. 1.

THOMAS HART BENTON WILL WEAR NO FEATHERS IN HAT

That's Why He Turns Down Appointment As Missouri Colonel.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 3 (AP)—Thomas Hart Benton, the artist, has declined an appointment as an honorary colonel on the staff of Gov.-Elect James T. Blair Jr., because "I just don't go for those funny hats."

"As I understand it," Benton explained, "as a colonel you have to buy a uniform with a hat that has feathers on it. I'm afraid I'd be called on to parade around in it.

"I'm a colonel in the Confederate Air Force and it's a job I like," he added. "All I have to do to keep the rank is eat cornbread. I'd be a colonel for Jim if all I had to do was drink Missouri cider."

RUSSIA REPORTS FINDING SIBERIAN DIAMOND FIELDS

Broadcast Says Deposits Are at Least as Great as Those in Africa and Brazil.

LONDON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Moscow radio yesterday reported the discovery of diamond deposits in Siberia "at least as great as those in Africa and Brazil."

The broadcast said the recently discovered diamond fields were along the upper reaches of the Vilyuy river, a tributary of the Lena, center of Russia's gold mines.

It said the total volume of the deposits already found is estimated as "many hundreds of thousands of carats."

MICHIGAN U. FOOD STUDY PROMISED AFTER RIOTING

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 3 (AP) — University of Michigan students who rioted last night in a protest over corned beef will have to settle for spaghetti and meatballs tonight — the menu was already in the works before the riot.

But university officials promised to review the dietary situation in residence dining halls and indicated no one would be disciplined.

Dean of Men Walter B. Rea said the university plans a thorough investigation of the "complaints, suggestions and wishes of the students." "Naturally," he said, "we're concerned with the welfare of the students. We'll endeavor to remedy the situation once it is known."

Hundreds of male students joined in a food-throwing, dish-smashing demonstration in dormitory dining halls last night. Shouting, "We want good food," they spattered asparagus and vanilla pudding against the walls. Then they went outdoors and rocked automobiles and threw snowballs at police called to put down the disorder. They didn't like the menu of corned beef, swiss cheese, asparagus, vanilla pudding and milk.

QUEEN JULIANA BICYCLES TO CHURCH TO SAVE FUEL

Royal Family Exempted From Driving Bar but She Observes It.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 3 (UP—Queen Juliana went to church on a bicycle yesterday as a gesture of solidarity with her subjects, it was reported today.

The royal family was specifically exempted from the bar on Sunday driving imposed a week ago to conserve fuel supplies reduced by the closing of the Suez Canal, but the Queen did not use any of her cars yesterday.

She cycled from the royal palace at Soestdijk to the Dutch Reformed Church in Baarn—about a 15-minute ride.

INTEREST HIKE ON SAVINGS, TIME DEPOSITS AUTHORIZED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) —The Government today authorized all insured commercial banks to raise the interest they pay on savings and time deposits by one-half per cent.

This permits them to increase to 3 per cent their rate on savings and on time deposits and certificates of more than six months' duration.

THREAT OF FIRING FAILS TO END CITY GARBAGE STRIKE

Collectors Refuse to Return Despite Notice to Do So or Be Discharged.

St. Louis's city garbage collectors, who have been on strike since last Friday, again refused to work today despite an official notice that they would be fired if they did not return to their jobs.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker said he was not handling the matter directly but understood that although dismissal notices had not been sent to the men, they would be if the dispute is not settled promptly.

The employes struck because of an effort to have one of the 44 trucks make its rounds with only one collector, in addition to the driver, instead of two.

T. W. Haynes, business representative of the union, Teamsters Local 610, said they would insist on assurance that every truck would have a driver and two collectors, and that the next move was up to the city.

Pete Saffo, secretary-treasurer of the union, issued a statement in which he offered to submit the dispute to arbitration by a board of three "distinguished citizens of St. Louis." He did not suggest how they should be chosen.

He said the city administration was "resorting to unilateral decisions and arrogant threats of dismissal if the union workers do not submit."

Frank Kriz, director of the department of streets and sewers, which has the responsibility for garbage collection, has explained that absences or sickness sometimes make it impossible to have a second collector for all trucks.

Not one of the trucks was taken out of the garage at Vandeventer and Forest Park avenues this morning. A group of the strikers gathered across the street and stood around talking with each other past the deadline, 8 a.m.

No picket line was set up and most of the men soon went back home.

Earl W. Deering, refuse commissioner, said the men involved were 48 truck drivers and 102 collectors.

Hotels and other establishments that have large amounts of garbage to dispose of employ their own collection services and do not depend on the city.

The city employes were advised by telegram yesterday that if they did not report for work today they would lose their jobs.

Seats for Inauguration Parade Will Cost From $3.50 to $10

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — Approximately 50,000 seats along the route of the inaugural parade next Jan. 21 will cost from $3.50 to $10 each, depending on location, the inaugural committee said today.

Applications for tickets must be made on forms available from the inaugural committee, 1022 Fifteenth Street NW, Washington 5, D.C. On mail applications, there will be a handling charge of $1 on each order.

The parade, to follow President Eisenhower's second inauguration, will travel up Pennsylvania avenue from the Capitol past the White House.

If you will send an addressed, stamped envelope to the "Postmaster, Washington 13, D.C.," it will come back to you in a few weeks stamped "Inauguration Day," Jan. 21. Your letter should be marked "Inauguration Cancellation."

This is the newest of a long list of gimmicks—in this case aimed at stamp collectors — planned for President Eisenhower's second inauguration.

The President will take his second oath of office privately in the White House Sunday Jan. 20, the official inauguration day, and repeat it in public the next day.

DULLES SAYS HE, PRESIDENT FEEL PEACE CHANCES HAVE IMPROVED

Secretary Asserts U.S. Will Strive to Restore Unity With Allies at NATO Talks Next Week.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 3—President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles believe prospects for peace in the Middle East are "considerably improved" today, by comparison with a month ago.

"Anybody must be indeed far gone in pessimism if he thinks that the danger of war in the area today is as great as it was a month ago," Dulles said.

The Secretary conferred yesterday with Mr. Eisenhower at the latter's vacation headquarters. He said the President agreed with his appraisal of the situation.

Other Points Made.

In a statement issued after the meeting, and in response to questions from reporters, Dulles made these other main points:

1. He does not think the Russian arms buildup in Syria and increasing anti-Western sentiment in that Middle Eastern nation "have achieved dimensions which endanger the peace of the area."

2. The "deterioration of relations" between the United States and its two oldest allies, Britain and France, "was primarily due to misunderstandings which are gradually being clarified, and I look to that as the main basis for improvement."

3. The United States is not considering severing diplomatic relations with Hungary, now controlled by the puppet Communist regime of Premier Janos Kadar.

But Dulles said, "There is not yet satisfactory evidence that those who profess to be the Government of Hungary in fact are responsive to the wishes and the desires of the (Hungarian) people . . ."

For this reason, he added, it would not be "profitable" at this time to discuss United States economic aid to Hungary.

4. The United States will go into the forthcoming meeting of the ministerial council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization with the intention of rebuilding unity with its allies.

"Recent events have created some strain as between members of the North Atlantic treaty," Dulles's statement said. This referred to the split between this country and Britain and France over the Suez canal issue.

"However, there have been constructive measures to overcome such differences as have existed, and the coming council meeting affords an opportunity to rebuild a unity and strength," the statement said.

Dulles made it clear he and Mr. Eisenhower did not think the rift with Britain and France was irrevocable. The tone of his statement and responses was such as to forecast improvement, without saying so directly.

5. As to the possibility of a Big Three conference between the President, British Prime Minister Eden and French Premier Mollet, Dulles declared, "Matters have not gone that far."

Accord on Foreign Policy.

The meeting, Mr. Eisenhower's first personal get-together with Dulles in more than two weeks, apparently produced a high degree of accord on United States foreign policy for the immediate future.

"The President and I discussed fully the position the United States will take at next week's meeting" of the NATO Ministerial Council in Paris, Dulles's statement said.

He declined to specify what that position will be and what steps this country will take to strengthen NATO, which has been beset by difficulties.

Dulles said the President "is

SOVIET CULTURAL EXCHANGES ARE SUSPENDED BY U.S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) —The United States has suspended its cultural exchange program with Russia "in view of recent developments."

The State Department, in reporting this today, said the decision was made after Russian forces attacked Hungary.

East-West cultural exchanges with Soviet European satellites, however, are continuing, a spokesman said.

"Proposed governmental exchanges with the Soviet Union have been suspended during a reappraisal of the program," press officer Lincoln White told a press conference.

He said the suspension halts "less than 10" proposed new exchanges with the Soviet Union.

White did not identify the kind of exchanges that had been planned.

FRANCE, BRITAIN DECIDE TO PULL TROOPS OUT OF EGYPT 'WITHOUT DELAY'

HUNGARY AGAIN BARS OBSERVERS BUT SENDS U.N. COUNTER OFFER

Would Meet Hammarskjold at Once in Rome or New York — Agreeable to Visit 'at Later Date.'

By DONALD GRANT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 3—The Hungarian government today refused again to admit United Nations observers to that country but offered to meet with Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold in "Rome or New York without delay" to discuss the situation in Hungary.

It also offered to receive Hammarskjold in Budapest "at a later date appropriate for both parties." This was interpreted as a further attempt on the part of the Russian-dominated government in Budapest to stall the entry of any U.N. personnel until a suitable facade could be constructed on the smashed Hungarian liberation movement.

The note from Budapest arrived as the General Assembly began consideration of a new resolution sponsored by the United States and 13 other countries aimed at getting U.N. observers into the revolt-torn Hungary.

Wording of Note.

The Hungarian note, signed by Acting Foreign Minister Istvan Sebes, said:

"The Hungarian government maintains its early position that the events which took place in Hungary since Oct. 23, 1956, constitute exclusively the internal affairs of Hungary and do not belong to the competence of any international organization, including the U.N. organization."

United States delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. immediately called the Hungarian position "most unsatisfactory."

In reference to the Hungarian agreement to accept a visit from Hammarskjold at some indefinite date, Lodge said: "The Secretary General must be able to go soon enough to do some good."

Lodge, who addressed the General Assembly as it started debate on the new United States resolution, declared:

"It is vital that we receive information which impartial people on the scene could observe. The time has come for one final appeal. We must set a deadline. We cannot allow ourselves to be fobbed off."

Deadline in Resolution.

The resolution sets a deadline of Friday for the Hungarian government to grant permission for United Nations observers to enter that country.

As he introduced the measure for the sponsoring group, C. W. A. Schurmann, the delegate from The Netherlands, declared that "the decisive step will have to be considered when the time limit has expired." He expressed the hope that Russia and Hungary would take their "last chance."

Under the resolution, U.N. investigators and observers would be sent to the gates of Hungary to begin their investigation whether or not permission to enter that country is granted.

The debate on the Hungarian question was resumed over the protest of Imre Horvath, the Hungarian Foreign Minister. Insisting that events in Hungary are "an internal Hungarian matter, he said Russian troops are in his country at the request of the Hungarian government and

AIR FORCE RULES PLAYING OF BINGO IS NOT GAMBLING

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (UP) —The Air Force has ruled that the playing of bingo for prizes and cash at its installations is not gambling.

It said it will permit bingo at its service clubs because the game is "a form of social entertainment and recreation." Furthermore, it will allow cash prizes to be given in bingo games as long as they do not exceed $300.

The Air Force policy on bingo was set forth in a new regulation covering the activities of service clubs for enlisted men and their families.

The regulation continues the bar, laid down by the Defense Department before the Korean war, on gambling or gambling devices, such as slot machines, in clubs, but it draws a distinction between gambling and bingo.

PREMIER DAVID BEN-GURION

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector, Dec. 3—Prime Minister Ben-Gurion last night asked for United Nations assurance against Egyptian attacks and against continuance of the Egyptian blockade of Israeli shipping.

In an exclusive interview with the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Ben-Gurion clarified his earlier statement that Israel would willingly withdraw its forces from Egyptian territory when "satisfactory arrangements" had been concluded in connection with the United Nations emergency force now in the Suez Canal area.

Asked to define these satisfactory arrangements, the Prime Minister replied: "By 'satisfactory arrangements,' I mean arrangements which will insure that this territory will never again be used as a base of Egyptian attack on Israel by fedayeen, the Egyptian gangs of assassins, or by other Egyptian regular or irregular forces, and that the blockade of Israel shipping in the Suez Canal and the Gulf of Eilat shall cease."

Ben-Gurion next was asked under what conditions Israel might withdraw its forces from the Gaza strip, the narrow coastal zone that Egypt has occupied since the Arab-Israel war of 1948.

Gaza Strip Questions.

Suggesting that a more relevant question would be "is the Gaza strip again to become a springboard for nightly incursions into Israel by murderers and saboteurs operating under the Egyptian high command?" He continued: "Our settlements close to the Gaza strip have for years lived a life in which constant vigilance every night alone saved them from destruction. They have for years been sleeping with one eye always open. It is inconceivable that these settlements should once more have to face the threat of nightly attack. I have never heard anyone claiming that the Gaza strip is Egyptian territory."

He was asked next under what conditions Israel might pull out of the Solomon's bay area. This is the shore of the straits of Tiran, where the Gulf of Aqaba (Eilat) joins the Red sea. Egyptian guns had blocked Israel shipping from the port of Eilat until Israeli forces seized the place on the last day of the Sinai campaign.

The Prime Minister again suggested rewording the question. He said it would be more relevant to ask "whether Egypt is again to be permitted to blockade Israel shipping plying its normal course through the Gulf of Eilat."

He went on:

"A situation in which ships

RUSSIA CHARGES TURKISH TROOPS ARE AIDING IRAQ

Moscow Radio Says Forces Were Sent to Bolster Government of Premier Said.

LONDON, Dec. 3 (UP)—The Moscow radio said today Turkey had sent two battalions of troops to Iraq to bolster the government of Premier Nuri Said against "popular demands" for withdrawal from the Baghdad pact.

The report was promptly denied as "malicious" by Turkey.

"There has been no such request and no troops were dispatched to Iraq," Turkey's acting Defense Minister, Shemi Ergin, said. "These reports are circulated with malicious aims. We also know that there is no situation in Iraq which she could not handle with her own troops."

Moscow has kept up a steady stream of propaganda recently in an effort to break up the Baghdad pact and cause the downfall of the Said government.

The Moscow broadcast quoted "well-informed sources" in Damascus, capital of Syria, on the alleged Turkish troop movements. It said Iraqi troops stationed in Jordan "have refused to obey an order from the Prime Minister demanding their immediate return home."

The Moscow broadcast coincided with diplomatic reports in London that the United States and Britain planned to strengthen the Baghdad pact nations to counteract Soviet arms shipments to Syria.

Disorders Denied.

Iraq repeatedly has denied reports of any major disorders in the country. On Saturday King Faisal told Parliament at Baghdad that martial law had been declared throughout Iraq to "protect the rear" of Iraqi troops stationed in Jordan.

The Moscow radio today, quoting the official Tass news agency, said:

"Well-informed circles in the Syrian capital emphasize that the political situation in Iraq is very tense and that the government of Premier Nuri Said, in view of the demand of the Iraqi armed forces and people for its resignation and withdrawal from the Baghdad pact, has asked the Turkish government to send Turkish troops to suppress the national movement.

"The same circles affirm that two battalions of Turkish troops already have been sent to Iraq."

LONDON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Britain and France bowed today to the will of the United Nations and agreed to pull their troops out of the Suez canal zone without delay.

Further, the British told Israel it should get out of the captured Gaza strip as well as Egypt's Sinai peninsula and permit the strip to be made a responsibility of the U.N.

In New York, U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold expressed hope the British and French forces will be out and the emergency U.N. police force will have taken command in Port Said by mid-December.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd notified the House of Commons that British Gen. Sir Charles Keightley, commander of the British-French invasion forces, has been instructed to meet with Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, the U.N. commander, to work out a timetable for the withdrawal.

"Given good faith on all sides, it can be carried out in a short time," Lloyd said.

Announcement in Paris.

In Paris, Foreign Minister Christian Pineau delivered a similar statement to the French National Assembly.

Lloyd's announcement made clear that the invasion failed to achieve what many members of Britain's ruling Conservative party had considered a prime objective: To restore the Suez canal to international control.

He said Hammarskjold would soon promote negotiations on the canal's control among representatives of Britain, France and Egypt.

A tense house heard Lloyd make this announcement:

"The French and British governments have come to the conclusion that withdrawal of their forces in the Port Said area can now be carried out without delay."

Points of Negotiations.

Lloyd said Hammarskjold would promote negotiations as quickly as possible on three matters:

1. The six requirements set out in the U.N. Security Council resoltuion of Oct. 13 which would keep the Suez canal out of national and international politics.

2. Talks in New York among Hammarskjold, Lloyd, Pineau and Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi. Lloyd did not elaborate on this.

3. Hammarskjold's proposed basis for negotiating a new regime for the Suez canal, based on the six requirements of the Oct. 13 resolution.

Lloyd added:

"I believe we shall reach an agreement providing adequate guarantees that the six requirements will be met. Her Majesty's government of course adhere to their view as expressed in the resolution voted on by the Security Council on the thirteenth of October with regard to the 18-power proposals."

The 18-power proposals, formulated in London soon after Egypt nationalized the canal, would set up a system for international control of the waterway.

U.N.'s Six Principles.

The Security Council on Oct. 13 unanimously accepted six principles for negotiations on Suez. They were:

1. Free and open transit through the canal without discrimination.

2. Respect for Egypt's sovereignty.

3. Insulation of the canal from the politics of any country.

4. Fixing of tolls to be decided by agreement between Egypt and the users.

5. A proration of the dues to be allotted to development.

6. Disputes to be settled by arbitration.

Lloyd said Keightley and Burns would draw up a timetable for the withdrawal of troops and report it as quickly as possible to Hammarskjold. Widely circulated reports, wholly unofficial, have said the British-French forces would be out by Christmas.

The foreign secretary added:

"In preparing this timetable the Allied commander has been told to insure that proper regard would be had in the maintenance of security in the area now under Allied control. The U.N. commander has been asked to make himself responsible for the safety of any British or French salvage resources left at the disposition of the United Nations salvage

Girl Fire Eater Burning Problem For British Gasoline Rationers

LONDON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Ministry of Fuel and Power was presented today with a burning problem. Miss Priscilla Birt, 18 years old, wants a gasoline ration book, but her need is gastronomic not vehicular.

Said Miss Birt, "I am known professionally as Zahrat the Fire Eater and I am billed with Duffy's Circus as the youngest fire eater in the business.

"The raw material for the act is about a tumblerful of petrol for each performance. Without petrol my whole career will, so to speak, go up in smoke.

"I only need the cheaper commercial grade," she told officials reassuringly. "The high test stuff tastes too much of lead. About three gallons a month would do."

The district fuel officer got out from under by having Miss Birt fill in her application with "carriage or motor vehicle" crossed out and "fire eater" written in. Then he mailed it to the Ministry of Fuel and Power.

RED CROSS HEAD IN HUNGARY HAS DISTRIBUTION OF FOOD STOPPED

Asserts 'Some of Aid Is Not Being Delivered on Basis of Principles Agreed On' — New Setup Devised.

VIENNA, Dec. 3 (AP)—Budapest radio announced tonight that the chief of the Hungarian Red Cross had ordered the distribution of food relief in Budapest stopped.

Dr. Gyoergy Millner, the Red Cross chief, said he was seeking clarification of reports that "some of the aid is not being delivered on the basis of principles agreed on."

Dr. Killner, speaking over the radio, announced that "we do not consider it assured that the food is given to the needy in each case. We have found that storing and handling of food is insufficient."

He added that many Hungarian Red Cross distribution organizations have proved inexperienced and badly directed.

The Red Cross chief said a new food distribution setup, using identification cards and filing systems, has been worked out.

Just before Dr. Killner's broadcast, the International Red Cross reported here today it had started to provide a free meal daily to 223,000 of Hungary's children.

By RUSSELL JONES

BUDAPEST, Dec. 3 (UP) — Soviet armored units hovered today on the outskirts of Budapest ready for action should Hungarians again hold anti-Russian and anti-government demonstrations, as they did yesterday, in open defiance of Soviet guns.

The tanks, parked in less conspicuous positions during the last week of comparative calm, had rumbled into the capital Sunday to strategic points as Russian troops tightened security checks on all movements in restless sections of the country. The tanks withdrew to the city's fringes when the demonstrations died down.

Anti-Russian demonstrations broke out in Lenin street in downtown Buda under the muzzles of Russian machine guns while across the Danube river in Pest workers demonstrated against the puppet government by burning copies of the Communist publications.

Guerrillas Attack.

Reports indicated guerrillas were still striking from mountain and forest hideouts against Red Army troops in the provinces.

Informed sources said the Soviet commander in the uranium and coal-mining center of Pecs in southern Hungary was killed in a clash with Hungarian rebels. His successor, according to the informants, has threatened to hang captured guerrillas as "traitors."

According to these sources "several thousands" of armed Hungarians are holding out in the Mecsez mountains near Pecs. Pecs, near the Yugoslav border, was one of the first cities to fall to the rebels in the Oct. 23 uprising and one of the first to be recaptured by Soviet forces in the Nov. 4 offensive.

Sources confirmed previously circulated reports that some 1500 students of the Sarospatak college control all but the main roads at Satoraljuhely, a town near the frontier with Russia itself.

Istvan Szirmai, chief of the government press department, first denied and then admitted that the Russians had deported Hungarians.

"There were isolated cases in the first days of chaos after (the Soviet attack on Budapest) Nov. 4 when Soviet authorities arrested and deported young people," Szirmai said.

He insisted that all persons deported have been returned to Hungary.

He said that "criminals" possessing "many thousands of arms" are still battling Russian troops and Communist police in the Hungarian provinces.

Anxious Moments.

There were anxious moments yesterday when hundreds of Hungarians marched into Lenin street for a protest demonstration after Russian soldiers had abducted an unidentified man on the thoroughfare. Soviet armored cars and troop carriers quickly converged on the street. Everyone was ordered off the street by the Russian soldiers brandishing machine guns.

Some of the demonstrators retreated to doorways but others defiantly stood their ground, whistling and jeering at the Russian troops. The Red troops did not open fire.

Russia Says West Plans Blood Bath in Hungary.

LONDON, Dec. 3 (UP)—Russia accused the West today of plotting to drown Hungary in blood. Diplomatic quarters saw the outburst as further indication that the Kremlin feared more uprisings in its satellite empire.

Diplomatic dispatches from behind the Iron Curtain said the "nervous Communist leaders" were strengthening their defenses in Romania, Bulgaria, Albania and Czechoslovakia.

There were rumblings from East Germany as well, and open fears students might touch off a Hungarian-type revolt. There were also East German Communist warnings to Poland that the reforms there might lead to an open revolution.

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper in Moscow, in as apparent attempt to justify the heavy Soviet troops movements into Hungary, accused the United States and other Western nations of sponsoring "large formations" of troops to invade Hungary and "drown the country in blood."

Two Turncoats Leave China To Return to Families in U.S.

—Associated Press Radiophoto.

Carbondale (Ill.) Ex-P.O.W. Says He Did Not Find Peaceful Life Among Communists.

HONG KONG, Dec. 3 (AP)—Two more American turncoats from the Korean war, who decided they did not want to live in Red China after all, hope to get back to their families by Christmas.

Arley Pate, 26 years old, of Carbondale, Ill.; and Aaron Wilson, 24, of Urania, La., reached this British crown colony yesterday after spending three years with the Chinese Communists.

"I went to China because I wanted peace," Pate told newsmen. "I didn't find it there, and will now go back to lead a peaceful life with my family."

Wilson nodded agreement.

They were among 21 American war prisoners who decided to live in China after the Korean conflict ended in 1953. Four others returned ahead of Wilson and Pate, and one died in China.

The two latest arrivals said they knew of none among the 14 remaining with the Communists who might ask to leave.

Denies Informing.

Pate said he had "never informed on American prisoners of war while in a Korean camp, never informed on an attempted escape, never got better food while a prisoner, and never heard of the Suez canal crisis or of uprisings in Hungary."

Thirty newsmen interviewed them in the lobby of the second-class hotel where they will stay until the Red Cross arranges to send them home.

At one point Wilson sought to cut off questions with the declaration:

"I have said all I'm going to say. I just want to go home."

Concerning Communism, Pate said, "If people want it they can have it."

Both said they were only workers and were given no lectures on Communism.

'Had a Good Time.'

"In fact, you can't consider me a worker because I was handicapped by the language" Pate volunteered. "In the paper factory in Tsinan (Shensi province) where I was a third-grade lathe operator, the Chinese did most of the heavy work while I watched. At night I ran around and went to dances and movies, having a good time.

"I didn't bother to listen to newscasts or the radio from the voice of America or read Chinese Communist news sheets. I just went to dances.

Asked if he thought there was peace in America, Pate answered: "I have a feeling there is peace now since the Korean war is over."

Both agreed their wages of about $11 weekly were enough to live on by Chinese standards, but too low by American. They received about $8 additional, plus food supplies, from the Chinese Red Cross.

Carrying Christmas Gifts.

They said Albert C. Belhomme of Ashland, Pa., Lowell D. Skinner of Akron, O., and Howard G. Adams of Corsicana, Tex., all in Tsinan, had married Chinese women.

American and British Red Cross officials said the two, who were captured when serving with the United States Seventh Division in Korea late in 1950 will be sent home by the first available means.

The United States Army gave all the turncoats dishonorable discharges in 1954. The United States Supreme Court has ruled the military no longer has jurisdiction over them.

Pate said he won't make it home in time for Christmas unless his mother sends money for a plane ticket right away.

"Wilson's folks wired Northwest Airlines promising to pay for his ticket home," Pate said. "I hope my mother will put up the money, too. Otherwise, I'll have to go by boat and you know how long that takes—30 long days."

DULLES RETURNS TO WORK A MONTH AFTER OPERATION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles reported to work this morning, one month after undergoing an operation to remove a cancerous growth from his large intestine.

Under Secretary Herbert Hoover Jr. and other aids warmly welcomed their smiling chief when he checked into his fifth floor office at 8:45 a.m., to resume direct control over State Department policy.

Thirty minutes later, Dulles presided over a staff meeting of top aids, thanking them for their intensive, overtime work on critical foreign policy problems during his recuperation.

Dulles told them, an aid said, that their performance proved a smooth-working team had been developed to handle foreign policy and that it can take over without skipping a beat whenever anyone becomes ill.

The 67-year-old Dulles returned to his desk fully two weeks before surgeons who operated on him had first predicted he would.

EZIO PINZA COLLAPSES, IS RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

GREENWICH, Conn., Dec. 3 (UP)—Singer Ezio Pinza collapsed at his home at Stamford today and was taken to Greenwich Hospital in an ambulance. Firemen administered oxygen to him during the trip to the hospital.

First reports were that Pinza had suffered a heart attack. Pinza had suffered a heart attack in Italy earlier this year.

It was necessary for the ambulance to make the run to nearby Greenwich because there was no room available at Stamford Hospital.

EISENHOWER WILL TAKE UP DEFENSE BUDGET FRIDAY

Wilson, Others to See Him at Augusta—Total May Increase to 40 Billion.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 3—President Eisenhower will meet here Friday with top Administration officials to discuss a new defense budget which may run as high as 40 billion dollars, it was announced today.

Mr. Eisenhower will confer with Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, Assistant Secretary of Defense Wilfred J. McNeil, budget director Percival Brundage and Sherman Adams, the chief assistant to the President.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said the meeting "could very well be the final stage" in formulation of a defense spending program for the fiscal year 1958, which begins next June.

In answer to a question, Hagerty said the scheduling of the meeting in Augusta indicated Mr. Eisenhower might extend his vacation beyond the 10 days to two weeks previously announced. The President may not be back in Washington next Monday, Hagerty said.

No Definite Plans.

He refused to predict this flatly, however, saying there still were no definite plans. Mr. Eisenhower arrived here a week ago today.

At the same time, Hagerty announced postponement of two meetings with Republican and Democratic congressional leaders in Washington, originally scheduled for Dec. 13 and 14.

This means Mr. Eisenhower's only remaining announced appointment in Washington is on Dec. 16, when Prime Minister Nehru of India will arrive for a four-day visit.

Qualified Pentagon sources have said the new defense budget almost certainly will be in the neighborhood of 38 billions and perhaps as much as 40 billions. The budget for this fiscal year was 36 billions.

Any substantial increase in defense spending almost certainly would rule out hopes of again balancing the budget and probably would kill chances that the Eisenhower Administration would recommend a tax cut next year.

No Comment on Boost.

Hagerty was asked if Friday's meeting would be for the purpose of agreeing on an increase in defense outlays in the light of the current world situation.

He refused to comment on this, saying only that the purpose of the conference was "a discussion of the defense budget."

The chiefs of the armed services were understood to have presented defense spending estimates totaling 44 billions in the next fiscal year.

Wilson was reported to have pared these requests to 40 billions. This is still two billions higher than the Secretary's own estimate of what will be required to run the huge military establishment and meet United States defense commitments.

The fact that none of the service chiefs, and particularly Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will attend Friday's meeting was taken to mean that the budget discussion is in the final stage.

Any increase in defense outlays may center around Air Force expenditures. Wilson reportedly has cautioned the Air Force against making its demands too great.

It was recalled, however, that Congress last year voted the Air Force $900,000,000 more than the Eisenhower Administration requested.

Continuing his vacation schedule, Mr. Eisenhower played nine holes of golf this morning at Augusta National Golf Club. After lunch, he planned another nine holes.

The President today accepted the retirement of United States District Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut of the District of Columbia, on account of illness.

Mr. Eisenhower also appointed E. Leonard Brewer, co-ordinator of vocational education in the Virgin islands, as a member of the United States section of the Caribbean commission and re-appointed two members of the commission.

MILDER CRIMINAL CODE REPORTED IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA

VIENNA, Dec. 3 (AP) — Prague newspapers say the Communist-controlled Czechoslovak Parliament has adopted a new criminal code restricting the powers of police investigators and promising a fairer chance to defendants.

The newspaper Lidova Demokracie said the code provides every criminal case must be thoroughly investigated, even when the defendant pleads guilty.

"The defendant in future cannot be considered guilty before the court's verdict is delivered," the report added, "and the defendant himself may demand investigation of new evidence."

The code provides that pretrial investigation of a case must be completed within two months. If carried out, this would end the practice of jailing persons for long periods without trial.

Even under the new code, however, Czechoslovak justice remains based on Communist judges and a court system patterned after that of the Soviet Union.

U.N. Police Troops Begin Taking Over One-Fourth of Port Said

Replace British, French in Occupation of Suez Zone—Progress Reported in Clearing Canal.

PORT SAID, Egypt, Dec. 3 (AP) — United Nations police troops took over occupation of one-quarter of Port Said today and the British-French garrison buzzed with "out of the trenches in 14 days—home by Christmas."

The British Navy, meanwhile, reported that surprisingly fast progress was being made reopening the northern end of the clogged Suez canal. Navy men said they hoped to open the northern bottleneck of scuttled ships in two weeks and that intelligence reports indicated the damage in the Egyptian-held southern sector is not so great as first believed.

The U. N. command poured more troops around the canal's Mediterranean entrance to take over from the British and French.

With the cease-fire line 24 miles south of the city occupied by a wedge of Indian troops, there did not seem much point in staying on in the eyes of British and French soldiers.

Israeli Withdrawal.

On the east bank of the waterway, Israel announced it had cleared a 30-mile-wide area of Egypt's Sinai peninsula for the U.N. troops to occupy. A spokesman said Israel was awaiting word from the U.N. commander on when the police troops would arrive.

Canadian Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, chief of the United Nations Emergency Force, seemed intent on filling the posts held by the British and French with U.N. troops before turning his attention to the Israeli sector.

A company of 120 blue-helmeted Indians, arriving by train from the Egyptian lines, took over the 1000-yard wide no-man's-land between British-French and Egyptian forces.

A 163-man Danish contingent held the buffer zone for two days to discourage violations of the U.N.-ordered cease-fire. Before the Danes pulled out yesterday to reinforce the U.N. garrison in Port Said, they were startled by the whistle of gunfire from Egyptian lines.

There were also two explosions in the Egyptian sector. A few stray bullets sang over the heads of the Danes. But the incident was dismissed as "just a lack of discipline or somebody seeing something in the dark." Nobody was hurt.

Yugoslavs Arrive.

A contingent of 740 Yugoslav troops left the British-French sector to take up positions on the Egyptian side of the cease-fire line. They had arrived in Port Said by ship and were moved out on 130 trucks.

The combined Danish-Norwegian U.N. battalion already assembled in Port Said started policing a quarter of the city, replacing British soldiers.

A Colombian company was also due to move into Port Said to strengthen the U.N. garrison.

U.N. police troops will take over full responsibility for the internal security of the city as the British-French forces ease out.

Egypt has rejected a British-French offer to help clear the southern end of the canal with a salvage fleet already assembled off Aden. The U.N. has begun negotiations with private western European firms to undertake the job.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi said in a television interview in New York the U.N. police troops would complete their job in the Suez canal zone "the minute the British and French forces pull out." After the British-French withdrawal, he said, they should stay "for a while near the demarcation line between Israel and Egypt."

The line Fawzi referred to is the armistice border fixed in 1949 at the end of the Palestine war. In Israel, there was every indication the Israelis intend to hold on at least to the Gaza strip that Egypt had occupied for eight years.

Israeli officials refused on the ground of military security to reveal the number of troops still occupying the Sinai peninsula and Gaza, although they said they had withdrawn three brigades estimated at 10,000-12,000 men.

They said Israeli troops had pulled back to positions more than 30 miles from the Suez canal, and that further withdrawals depended on political developments.

RUSSIAN POET TIKHONOV AWARDED ORDER OF LENIN

MOSCOW, Dec. 3 (AP)—Poet Nikolai Tikhonov has been awarded the Order of Lenin for outstanding service to Soviet literature. The award, announced today, was presented Saturday on Tikhonov's sixtieth birthday.

Tikhonov had won the Lenin medal once before, in 1946. His honors also include the Order of War for the Fatherland, presented in 1943.

His poems include "The Horde," written in 1922; "The Venturesome Man," 1927; "An Oath in the Fog," 1933, and "A Year in Leningrad," 1943. He was in the news frequently during 1949 and 1950 with attacks on American "warmongers" and "imperialists."

TURKEY, BRITAIN REACH ACCORD ON SYRIAN SITUATION

Moscow Radio Reports Uprisings in Iraq in 'Support of Fight Against Imperialism.'

By DON COOK

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

LONDON, Dec. 3 — Turkey's acting Foreign Minister Ethem Menderes said yesterday that his talks with the British government, mainly about the Syrian situation, resulted in "complete understanding on all questions touched upon."

Menderes made the statement as he departed at London airport for Ankara.

Meanwhile, Syrian troubles continue to brew — stirred up again by Moscow in a propaganda broadcast saying that people in Iraq were rising "in support of the holy struggle of Egypt, Syria and Jordan against imperialism."

The British foreign office said it had received no reports of trouble in Iraq. The Moscow broadcast, in Arabic, is undoubtedly part of the "war of nerves" in the turmoil-ridden Middle East, and comes against the background of other Moscow and Damascus charges that Iraq, Turkey and Israel are getting ready to attack Syria.

The Moscow broadcast said the uprising had been launched in oil towns of Mosul and Kirkuk, and sought to incite the Kurdish tribesmen of northern Iraq to "respond to call against Nuri Said, stooge of the imperialist policy."

Premier Said was an original co-sponsor with Turkey of the Baghdad pact—and one result of the current Middle East troubles has been a new vitality among the pact's Middle East members — Turkey, Iraq, Iran, and Pakistan—to strengthen its original and basic purpose of unity against Communist and Soviet penetration.

The British, also members of the pact, currently are not taking any open action or issuing any comment or statements on the Syrian situation. The basic reason probably is that British stock in the Middle East is so low that any direct attempt from London to influence events might only worsen them. The British were pointedly asked not to attend any of the recent Baghdad pact consultations.

Nevertheless, in the just-concluded talks with Menderes, the British are understood to have indicated full backing for as "tough a policy as Middle East countries will pursue with Syria, which has accepted Communist arms, blown up Iraq petroleum pipeline stations, and whose government has come under virtually complete Moscow domination.

WITNESS TELLS HOW COMPANION KILLED MAN, BOY WITH SHOTGUN

Victor Hale Says R. L. Goodin Fired Several Times — Report of Discussion of $10,000 in Bank Deposits.

A detailed account of the murders of a man and a youth Friday night was given to a coroner's jury and police today by an eyewitness who said the killer reloaded a single-barrel shotgun several times in killing each victim.

Victor Hale, a truck driver, who said he feared for his own life, named a drinking companion, Ronald L. Goodin, as the killer of Patrick Wood, packinghouse laborer. He told police that Goodin also killed 15-year-old John Seymour, Goodin's brother-in-law.

After hearing 13 witnesses, the inquest was adjourned until Wednesday. Assistant Circuit Attorney Henry J. Fredericks and detectives took Goodin from the inquest room to police headquarters, where he was expected to make a statement.

Wood, 27, was shot down in front of his home, 3915A North Twenty-first street, with a shotgun he had sold to Goodin a few minutes earlier for $15. There was no apparent motive for the murder, although police are investigating Hale's report that both Goodin and Wood talked about four bank books at a tavern Friday evening.

Police found the books in Goodin's possession and reported they recorded deposits totaled more than $10,000.

Went to Another Tavern.

Hale testified that he, Goodin and Seymour left Leona's Tavern, 2400 North Ninth street, operated by Goodin's mother, and drove to a tavern at Twenty-first street and Bremen avenue, where they met Wood early Friday evening. Hale said he and Seymour sat at a table, and Goodin and Wood occupied another table.

While they were in the tavern, where they drank wine and whisky, Hale saw Goodin produce an envelope from which he removed several bank books. Wood and Goodin appeared to be discussing the books, Hale told the jury.

The four then drove to Wood's flat, where Wood passed around whisky and displayed several shotguns. Goodin agreed to buy a 12-gauge single-barrel shotgun and some ammunition for $15, Hale related.

"When we walked downstairs to the street, Wood led the way and was followed by Goodin with the gun," Hale related. "I was behind Goodin, who stopped on the street steps and leveled the shotgun at Wood on the sidewalk. Goodin fired, and Wood collapsed on the ground between the sidewalk and the street.

Turned His Head.

"I was so shocked I turned my head as Goodin walked to Wood's body and fired into Wood's face. Goodin said, 'Let's get out of here.' He and Seymour and I ran across the street to the parked car, and drove away with Goodin at the wheel."

Hale said Goodin drove to East Prairie avenue "near the railroad tracks," where Seymour got out of the machine.

"I don't recall any conversation, Goodin and I were pretty drunk, and I was stunned by the killing of Pat Wood," Hale continued. "When Seymour got out of the machine, Goodin also got out. He walked toward the boy, who had his back turned, and called 'Jack, Jack.' Seymour started to turn around and Goodin shot him down. He then shot him several times."

Hale said he asked Goodin, "Why did you do it?" and received the reply, "no witnesses."

"I was so upset I asked, 'What about me?'" Hale told detectives. He said Goodin inquired, "Don't you trust me?"

After police pointed out that a single-barrel shotgun was used, Hale said he heard a metallic click when Goodin reloaded the gun.

Shotgun Hidden.

Leaving Seymour's body in the field, where passersby found it Saturday morning, Goodin and Hale drove to Leona's tavern. Goodin hid the weapon in a cabinet in the basement of living quarters next door, Hale said.

Police, who recovered the shotgun, reported that test firing and comparison with discharged shells picked up at the scene of Seymour's murder showed that the weapon was used to kill the youth.

Goodin told police the deposit books belong to his mother-in-law. Officers said the books showed deposits in two banks and two savings and loan associations totaling $10,531. Investigators sought to determine how the books came into Goodin's possession.

Temporary warrants charging first-degree murder were issued by the circuit attorney's office against Goodin. Hale, held as a suspected parole violator, will appear before a grand jury hearing the case this week.

Last March Goodin was charged with assault with intent to kill after he wounded two men in his mother's tavern. He told police the men were friends of a man with whom he had had a fist fight and he fired his revolver at them when they persisted in entering the tavern.

Goodin and another man were arrested June 19 when they were observed inside a darkened filling station on U.S. Highway 66, in Crestwood. Police said the padlock was missing from the front door.

Police said Goodin, 26 years old, had living quarters next door to his mother's tavern, and also had a home in East St. Louis. His wife is Seymour's sister.

Rousing Reception Given Hungarian Refugees, They Respond With Tears

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

'Long Live America,' Cries One as Group of Eight Is Welcomed at Union Station.

Eight Hungarian refugees, first of a group of several hundred who will find new homes in the St. Louis area, got off the train at Union Station yesterday and walked into a rousing reception that brought tears to their eyes.

"God Bless Hungary," the national anthem, resounded to the station's rafters as the little group came off the platform. The Hungarians stood at attention. Women in the welcoming crowd wept openly.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker shook hands with the newcomers and said St. Louis was glad to have them. A young Hungarian who a few weeks ago was fighting Russian tanks in Budapest expressed thanks for America's kindness. "Long live America," he exclaimed.

The crowd roared its approval. Welcome was expressed by the Rev. John Gyarmathy, pastor of St. Stephen of Hungary Catholic Church, and the Rev. Victor T. Suren, director of the St. Louis Resettlement Committee for Catholic Refugees. Then the American flag and the red, green and white flag of Hungary led a procession through the station.

Family of Four.

In the refugee group was a family of four, Rudolph Szlavi, 28 years old, a farmer; his wife, Theresa, and their children, Rudy Jr., 5, and Elizabeth, 3. The other four were single men, 18 to 28 years of age, including three who took part in fighting against Russian troops.

Father Gyarmathy, who once was a chaplain in the Hungarian army, embraced the men when they stepped off the train. Their luggage consisted principally of seven cardboard boxes containing possessions the refugees said they had received from the American Red Cross.

Szlavi, the farmer, wore a worker's cloth cap, a voluminous overcoat and the heavy hobnailed leather boots with felt uppers that he had on when he took his family out of Hungary. His wife, a cheerful, sturdy red-haired woman, wore a green shawl and a stout pair of high-topped men's black shoes. The single men wore urban-type clothing.

The father carried his daughter in his arms on the long walk down the station platform, held her during the ceremony at the station, and during the "Te Deum Laudamus" service at St. Stephen Church, 1041 Chouteau avenue. He looked as if he could have carried her another thousand miles without effort.

For the Thanksgiving service, the Hungarians knelt in a front pew, the little girl and boy still clutching small American flags they had been given. Father Suren and Father Gyarmathy officiated, and the Hungarian anthem was sung once more.

Then came a gala chicken dinner in the church refectory, served by women of the parish. The celebrants had peas, potatoes, cake, coffee, ice cream and red wine for a multiplicity of toasts. A good many people stood around, watching. Speeches were translated by Arpad Kertesz, executive secretary of the American-Hungarian Welfare Committee.

Pretty girls serving as waitresses did not neglect the young Hungarian men, who seemed a little embarrassed by all the attention they were getting. After dinner, the newcomers got settled in basement dormitories at the church. Well-wishers loaded the children down with toys.

Through an interpreter, Kertesz, the men spoke briefly and simply of their experiences. Szlavi said he and his family lived on a collective farm, a three-hour's walk from the Austrian border. Russian troops were quartered in the area. A curfew was imposed from 7 p.m. to 6 a.m., and anybody found at large during the night was shot or deported.

Just Kept Going.

One day, Szlavi related, he and his wife picked up their manure forks as if they were going out to work in the fields. They put the children on bicycles, started walking across country and just kept going. They had no baggage at all, of course, when they reached Austria.

Nandor Hettig, 20, a mechanic, and Frank Csipak, 18, a steelworker, joined the worker groups that took arms against the Communists Oct. 24. They were involved in Budapest streetfighting, using gasoline grenades against tanks. Hettig told of knocking out a tank. They had rifles and light machine guns. They finally withdrew with their units and managed to get across the border.

"It was fine until the Reds moved up their armor," Csipak said. He said he hoped to find a job in the United States, but intended to return to Hungary if the Russians got out.

Charles Borbas, 28, a truck driver from the uranium mining area of Pecs, drove a truckload of weapons and ammunition to Budapest when the fighting started. He said he left no relatives in Hungary, the Russians having shot his father and mother in 1945.

Peter Sipos, 21, was a farm worker and truck driver in the vicinity of Gyor. He was in the Hungarian resistance movement. He got across to Austria without mishap.

Rows of Cots Ready.

In the church's basement dormitories are rows of cots in readiness for the refugees who are expected to continue to arrive in St. Louis during the next few weeks. In aisles are boxes of canned goods donated by citizens.

Many St. Louisans of Hungarian extraction went to the church to talk with the refugees, bring them presents and get them off to a good start in the new country. A man told the farmer Szlavi that all he had to do to buy one of the big new automobiles he had seen was earn enough money.

George Theodore of 3405 Shenandoah avenue paid a brief call during the afternoon. He took off his own overcoat and gave it to Frank Csipak, explaining: "I've got another one." Theodore said he was of Romanian descent.

LT. T. L. MORAN MADE CAPTAIN; 15 PROMOTIONS

E. L. Grieser Advanced to Police Lieutenant—Three New Sergeants, Eight Corporals.

Fifteen members of the St. Louis police force were promoted by the Board of Police Commissioners today.

Lt. Thomas L. Moran, head of the bomb and arson squad, was made a captain. Sgt. Elmer F. Grieser was promoted to lieutenant, and Cpls. Edward P. Leonard, David A. Redmond and William J. Murphy were made sergeants.

Eight patrolmen were made corporals. They were Clarence C. Barnes, Oliver J. Geile, William R. Baker, James F. Reddick, Kenneth G. Chettle, John J. Cantillion, Bernard M. McDonough and Edward J. Kallin.

Prison guards Moses Edwards and William E. Vaeth were advanced to the rank of turnkey.

New assignments for the promoted men will be announced tomorrow, but it is known that Capt. Moran will remain in the secret service division.

The Police Board rejected charges of police brutality made by gangster Isadore Londe, who was severely beaten by detectives on Nov. 13. The detectives asserted that violence was required to subdue Londe when he resisted arrest.

The police commissioners said they did not condone brutality in any form, but after reviewing the records and taking into consideration the character and integrity of the detectives involved, decided no further investigation was warranted at this time.

Londe suffered a broken jaw and four rib fractures at the Page boulevard police station. Disturbed by the beating and his complaint that police were arresting him repeatedly in an effort to drive him out of the city, a citizens' committee had requested a thorough investigation.

If the circuit court grand jury should develop any additional evidence in the case, the police board will go into the matter further, it was announced.

TAX BRIBE TRIAL OF THREE OPENS IN U.S. COURT

Defendants Accused of Conspiracy in Attempt to Influence Report of Agent.

Trial of Emil Sarkis, Oliver L. Marbs and William C. Schulze on a charge of conspiring to bribe an Internal Revenue agent to influence his report in an income tax investigation began today before a jury in United States District Court.

Schulze is an Internal Revenue collection officer now under suspension. Marbs, a former deputy collector of internal revenue, now is a tax consultant. Sarkis was until recently a business agent for Local 110, AFL Laborers Union.

Wayne H. Bigler Jr., assistant United States Attorney, in an opening statement in the court of Judge George H. Moore, said the Government would show that Marbs paid $400 to Internal Revenue Agent Robert M. Brown. Purpose of the bribe, Bigler said, was to influence Brown's report on Sarkis's 1952 and 1953 tax returns.

Bigler stressed that Brown notified his superiors of the bribe offer, with the result that the three alleged conspirators were caught. Conviction under the charge carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Marbs was arrested June 14, 1955 in front of the Board of Election Commissioners office after he got out of an automobile and allegedly handed Brown $400. Bigler told the jury the transaction followed a conference in which Schulze participated. It was charged that Brown was offered $500, but was paid only $400.

After leaving the Internal Revenue Service, Marbs became an auditor in the Missouri Department of Revenue, in addition to serving as a tax consultant. He is 43 years old and lives in Florissant.

Sarkis, a former convict, lives in the 3200 block of Shenandoah avenue.

APPEAL FOR HOMES FOR 70 PUPPIES AT ANIMAL SHELTER

A record number of puppies, 70 in all, was available for adoption today at the Animal Protective Association, 1705 South Hanley road, Brentwood.

Mrs. Opal Savoy, shelter manager, said that late last week persons began appearing with basket loads of the puppies, all six to eight weeks old. The housing situation at the association has grown so acute as a result of the deluge of dogs, she said, that many of them will have to be put to death if they aren't adopted soon.

All of the pups are of mixed breed, Mrs. Savoy pointed out, and are available to anyone who appears at the association and pays a fee of $5 for males and $8 for females. All the animals are given temporary distemper shots and a worm pill, she added.

The association always has about 20 puppies on hand and sometimes as many as 40, but the number of guests today is the highest since last February when 65 accumulated, Mrs. Savoy said.

POLICE URGED TO KEEP CLOSER WATCH ON SCHOOLS

A recommendation that police keep closer watch on school property to guard against vandalism has been forwarded to the Police Board by James F. Morrell, president of the Board of Education.

"It is the feeling of most members of the Board of Education that perhaps some officers are not giving as much attention to school properties as these public buildings deserve," Morrell wrote I. A. Long, president of the police board. "This is brought to your attention in the hope that such steps as are necessary to bring about closer supervision may be taken."

The letter stated that, despite the installation of flood lights on some school property, vandalism and thefts are increasing.

SINATRA, WITH PAIN IN NECK, MISSES TWO TV SHOWS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3 (AP) — Frank Sinatra's press agent says the singer is resting at his home with muscular pains in the neck and back that kept him from appearing on two television programs.

One was Jackie Gleason's TV tribute Saturday night to Sinatra's onetime boss, bandleader Tommy Dorsey, who died last Monday. The other was Ed Sullivan's show last night on which Sinatra was to have accepted a movie magazine's award.

4 Killed by Avalanches.

ZURICH, Switzerland, Dec. 3 (UP)—An avalanche yesterday killed an Alpine fortress guard, the fourth victim of Switzerland's first series of avalanches this season. Three workers were killed Saturday in an avalanche near Grindewald in the Bernese Oberland.

DULLES SAYS PEACE HOPES HAVE IMPROVED

particularly concerned with the strains and dangers that flow from the persistent disregard by international Communism of the principles and pleas of the United Nations."

Mr. Eisenhower believes this situation should engage the attention of the United Nations to an increasing degree, the statement said. Its criticism of Soviet actions clearly referred both to Russian suppression of the Hungarian revolt and to the domination of satellite nations by Russia and Red China.

Dulles sharply assailed the two big Communist powers, saying: "Nations both in Asia and in Europe remain forcibly divided; many peoples are subjected to a ruthless external rule which they deeply resent, and many live in fear, under the shadow of a similar fate."

Spends Morning With President.

The 68-year-old Secretary, who has been in Key West, Fla., recuperating from an operation for cancer, flew to Augusta yesterday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Dulles attended church with Mr. and Mrs. Eisenhower then the two men conferred for two hours. The Secretary met afterward with reporters before going on to Washington.

Questioned on the Middle East, Dulles first said he believed chances for peace in that area "are now pretty good."

A few moments later he added that "the general impression which both the President and I have is that the prospects of peace are now reasonably good."

A short time after that, he put it another way, saying the prospects for peace in the Middle East today were "considerably improved over what was the case a month ago."

Dulles said several times, however, that he was not familiar with all the details of Middle Eastern developments, due to his enforced absence from Washington.

No Comment on Syria.

Specifically, he refused to be drawn out on conditions in Syria, where a Russian arms buildup has produced grave concern in Western capitals.

A reporter said Dulle's statement "that the prospects of peace in the Middle East are pretty good appears to imply that we are not too alarmed about the buildup of Communist arms in Syria. Is this true?"

"No," Dulles replied. "I think I said that I did not care to comment or appraise in detail the developments in Syria.

"I do not think, however, that they have achieved dimensions which endanger the peace of the area."

Another reporter noted that Dulle's views and those of White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty on the Middle East crisis seemed at variance with the opinions expressed in foreign capitals.

It was at this point that Dulles remarked on the "pessimism" of those who think the danger of a Middle East conflict is as great as it was a month ago.

He explained that the United States position at the NATO meeting, which is scheduled to begin Dec. 11, could not be disclosed in advance because this country will co-ordinate its moves with other NATO members.

'Wise Men's' Report Awaited.

Dulles said steps to strengthen the alliance will depend on the recommendations of a committee of "three wise men of NATO," composed of the Foreign Ministers of Canada, Norway and Italy—Lester Pearson, Halvard Lange and Gaetano Martino.

Their report has not been made public, Dulles pointed out. He has previously suggested giving NATO responsibility in the field of economic affairs, as a way of strengthening the alliance.

The special NATO committee is reported to be ready to recommend giving NATO increased diplomatic authority, in addition to its primary defense function.

Dulles said he would not rate the differences between the United States and Britain and France as the most pressing problem confronting the Atlantic alliance nations.

He said the "urgency" of this and other situations varies from day to day and week to week.

No Talks With Hungary.

In response to a question, Dulles pointed out that the United States already had indicated its willingness to discuss possible economic assistance to the new government of Poland, but was not ready to do the same thing with Hungary.

Dulles said it "remains to be seen" whether the new United States minister to Hungary, Edward T. Wailes, will present his credentials to the new government of Premier Kadar.

He was asked if this implied that the United States would not recognize the Kadar government. Dulles said that was not the implication. He explained that there often was a delay in the presentation of credentials when a new regime takes over.

A newsman said "there have been allegations in some of the press of Western Europe that perhaps we encouraged the Hungarians to rise" against Russia.

In reply, Dulles said:

"We have constantly emphasized that liberation (of Soviet satellites) would have to be brought about as an evolutionary process, and we did not encourage violent revolution because we did not see how violent revolution would prevail."

Cites Improvement.

In assessing the improvement in British-French relations with the United States, he cited the two nations' acceptance of the U.N. cease-fire, the "considerable withdrawals" of Israeli troops from Egypt and creation of the U.N. cease-fire force.

Dulles said he was not aware of any "trend" on the part of the United States toward closer diplomatic ties with the so-called "neutralist" countries.

This arose when a reporter noted that the United States and the African-Asian bloc in the U.N. had joined in opposing the Britsih-French movement of troops into the Suez canal area.

Dulles answered that he thought there was a "growing understanding" of United States foreign policy, which had "dissipated some of the doubts that were entertained by some of the neutrals."

organization. The Secretary General has accepted this responsibility."

Naval Angle Not Clear.

Lloyd did not immediately make plain whether British naval units also will be left behind with the salvage equipment. Government officials have been saying the British equipment is so complicated it can be handled only by their own experts.

"Lastly," Lloyd said, "there is the question of a long term settlement of all the problems in the area.

"I believe our action has done a great deal to produce conditions in which progress can now be made."

The stationing of U.N. troops in the area would contribute to a final settlement, the Foreign Secretary said.

"I claim therefore that we have stopped a local war," he said. "We have prevented it from spreading. The extent of Soviet penetration has been revealed.

"We have caused the United Nations to take action by the creation of an international force. We have alerted the whole world to the situation of great peril."

Jeers and laughter from Labor benches greeted these remarks.

"Of course," Lloyd added, "there will be heavy costs to bear, but they would have been far greater if our action had not been taken."

He sat down to loud Conservative cheers and Labor cries of "resign-", directed of course at Prime Minister Eden, who is in Jamaica taking a rest cure.

Aneurin Bevan, Labor's new spokesman on foreign affairs, immediately welcomed the announcement that French and British troops will be withdrawn.

"Secondly, we are glad to hear that the Government are no longer attempting to dictate conditions to the United Nations," he said.

"We sympathize with the Foreign Secretary in having to sound the bugles in advance to cover his retreat."

The House will have 48 hours to think things over before beginning a two-day foreign policy debate which will culminate in a confidence vote Thursday night.

There was a chance—but only a chance—that a revolt among his own parliamentary followers at that crucial point would turn the vote against Eden and force him to resign.

It was considered more likely that, distasteful as the government's policy might be to some right-wing Conservatives, enough of the diehards would close ranks behind the Prime Minister to save him rather than risk defeat by the opposition Labor party in new national elections that would have to be called.

Estimates of the numbers of Conservatives who might abstain from supporting the Government unless satisfied with Lloyd's explanation of terms and timing for the British-French "phased withdrawal" from Egypt ranged up to 40.

The Government has an overall majority in Commons of 57 at the moment and could win a vote of confidence even without the help of these malcontents. If that many actually deserted him, however, Eden might feel disinclined to carry on.

U.N. STATEMENT ON WITHDRAWALS

By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 5—United Nations Secretary Dag Hammarskjold issued this statement today in connection with the announcements in London and Paris:

"The Secretary General has instructed the commander of the U.N. emergency force, Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, to get into immediate touch with the Anglo-French commander with a view to working out with him arrangements for the complete withdrawal of Anglo-French forces without delay.

"Gen. Burns has been further instructed to arrange for the earliest possible date for the completion of this program, taking into account the military and practical questions involved and the need to maintain public security in the area.

"In view of the Secretary General's understanding of the policy of the British and French governments regarding withdrawal, the attention of Gen. Burns has been drawn to the need to insure that the United Nations Force should be in a position to assume its responsibilities in the Port Said Area by the middle of the month."

RUSSIA CHARGES TURKISH TROOPS ARE AIDING IRAQ

Iraqi troops in Jordan:

"They had stated that they preferred to say in Jordan and fight side by side with Syrian and Jordan troops for the just cause of the Arab nation. All attempts by the Iraqi mission in Amman to compel the troops to obey the order had failed."

Observers' Views.

Observers said the Soviet statements may have been broadcast in further attempts to stir up dissension in the Baghdad pact itself.

Britain, meanwhile, called in experts and ambassadors from Middle East countries to plan the buildup for the Baghdad pact nations with which it is formally allied — Iraq, Iran, Pakistan and Turkey.

Diplomatic sources said they believed no sizable arms shipments would go immediately to Iraq lest that action itself be seized on by Syria or other Arab countries as a "provocation."

Diplomatic sources said Turkey was "gravely concerned" over the reported Red buildup in Syria and was bringing pressure for United States membership in the Baghdad pact.

The United States, although not a member of the pact, has suported it and President Eisenhower warned Russia and Syria last week against attacking any of the member states.

The Syrian situation, complicated by charges and countercharges, was even more confused by a total news censorship in that country. Syrian officials have denied any Syrian arms buildup.

Egyptian Press Publishes Iraqi Warning to Syria.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

CAIRO, Dec. 3—The Arabic language press in Cairo reported yesterday that the Iraqi Government had sent Syria a warning note. Publication of this news was regarded as evidence that Egypt wants Middle East tension relieved rather than increased.

While Cairo newspapers continued to publish personal attacks on Iraqi Premier Nuri Said—who represents for Egyptians a pro-British policy—the fact that the press here accorded adequate space to reports of the Iraqi warning to Syria was regarded as a notable contribution toward easing tension.

The view held by Western diplomatic quarters here is that increased tension in the Middle East could benefit only the Soviet Union and that President Gamal Abdel Nasser, whose influence in Syria is considerable, has given concrete evidence that he thinks along same lines.

Egypt is reported to have given Syria a diplomatic hint not to tolerate sabotage of the pipeline of the Arabian American Oil Co. Although the Iraq Petroleum Co. pipeline and pumping stations were sabotaged, Aramco's is understood here to be still functioning.

Treasury Counsel Named.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey yesterday announced the appointment of John P. Weitzel of Rhode Island to be an assistant general counsel of the Treasury. He succeeds Charles R. McNeill, who has resigned to become assistant general counsel for the American Bankers Association.

Ben-Gurion Lists Terms For Getting Out of Egypt

seeking to reach or leave our southern port of Eilat will be at the mercy of Egyptian six-and-three inch guns covering the straits in the Solomon's bay area is utterly unacceptable and would be contrary to every tenet of international law on the freedom of the seas."

Border Tension.

Heightened tension lately along Israel's frontier with Syria and Jordan suggested the question: "What is the possibility of Israel's waging a preventive war against either Syria or Jordan?"

Ben-Gurion replied: "The real danger is that Syria and Jordan getting arms from the Soviet bloc may attack Israel. They know well that if they will not attack they have nothing to fear from Israel."

On the subject of some 200,000 Arab refugees that came under Israel's jurisdiction with its seizure of the Gaza strip, the Prime Minister was asked if he saw some possibility of a final solution of at least that much of the Arab refugee problem.

He replied: "We are seriously considering constructive proposals about the general settlement of the Arab refugee problem which would offer more hope for the future of these unfortunate people than has been extended by Egypt and the other Arab states among whom they have dwelt and who have treated, and still treat, their own kin as outcasts in their lands.

Ben-Gurion avoided a direct answer to a question about the Jordan river water diversion project which would benefit Israel, Syria and Jordan, but which the Arab states have blocked for the last three years.

Asked what plans Israel has for resumption of work on the project, the prime minister replied: "This is a perfect example of how Arab intransigence and contempt for the United Nations and the efforts of the United States special envoy, Mr. Eric Johnston, have held up a constructive plan which would benefit the people of the whole region, both Arab and Israeli.

Completely Recovered.

Ben-Gurion, who was in bed with an attack of influenza in much of the Sinai campaign and who suffered since from lumbago, was asked if he had recovered completely and what was the present state of his health. "'Yes' to the first and 'fine' to the second part of your question," he replied, "If my present health will last another 50 years I will be quite happy."

The 70-year-old Prime Minister's animated smile and bright eyes bore out his boast about his good health.

He received the Post-Dispatch reporter in the ground floor living room of his official residence, a modest stone house five minutes walk from his office, his small British automobile, which he chose in contrast to the big black limousines generally used by heads of governments, stood outside.

Ben-Gurion was listening to the evening news broadcast by Kol Israel, the government radio station. Slouched in an overstuffed chair, he listened intently, occasionally making some brief comment in Hebrew to Yaaco Herzog, chief of the American and United Nations desks of the foreign office, or to Yitshak Navon, the Prime Minister's personal secretary. When the broadcast began giving a list of Jewish refugees newly arrived here from Egypt, Ben-Gurion smiled at the mixture of East European and Arabic names. He wore a double breasted navy blue suit with a vest and a carelessly knotted dark blue figured tie instead of the olive drab wool army uniform in which he often makes public appearances.

Because of the delicacy of the present diplomatic situation, Ben-Gurion had asked that a list of questions be submitted in advance, and he had prepared written answers to them. With formal questions taken care of, he consented to answer a few more general inquiries.

Dealing With Neighbors.

The first was what sort of relationship he hoped Israel would be able to achieve with its Arab neighbors in the years to come.

"First, I am not a prophet," he replied. I cannot tell what will happen. I can only tell what we will do.

"We will build a country, absorb immigrants and build up a civilization of which every Jew in the world will be proud. "We will do everything possible to reach a settlement with our neighbors. That is what we will do. What they will do I don't know. But I do have faith in humanity, and they are part of humanity. There have been cases of people who behave badly and later improve. I believe the Arabs will improve.

"If not, we will go on as we are doing now."

Pointing out similarities between Israel's development and that of America 300 years ago, he suggested that the Indian troubles were somewhat like Arab-Jewish friction in Palestine. He noted that both Israel and the United States developed in a wasteland, received immigrants from all over the world and welded them into a free democratic nation.

He was asked what should be the future relationship of Jews in America and throughout the world to the state of Israel. He listed these three "governing principles":

1. "The Israeli Government represents only the people living in Israel and speaks only for them and makes laws only for them." He explained that he included both Arab and Jewish residents.

2. "Israel is open for every Jew if he wishes to come here for any purpose. And the first day he comes here to settle he becomes a citizen."

3. "Jews all over the world—in America or Russia or wherever they are—have a common heritage, a common past and a number of common beliefs in the future received from the prophets."

Explaining that Jewish nationalism embodies this historic past, he said: "You can't separate Jewish religion from Jewish history."

With a smile, the Prime Minister pointed out that the United States also required no passport and no visa of immigrants when he went there in 1916. He went on to say that he did not want to stay in America and moved to Palestine after service in the British army.

"Not that I think America is a bad country—but Israel is better," he said.

MOTORIST KILLED, AMBULANCES IN TWO ACCIDENTS

Potosi Man Loses Life —12 Injured in Other Weekend Traffic Crashes.

One man was killed and 12 persons were injured yesterday in a series of traffic accidents, two of them involving ambulances of the Mahn undertaking establishment in DeSoto, Mo.

Corbett Coffman of Potosi, Mo., was fatally hurt when his automobile collided with another driven by George Randolph, 2249 South Jefferson avenue, on State Highway 21, two miles south of DeSoto. Coffman, 58 years old, died of head injuries at Deaconess Hospital here.

Randolph, his wife, and their sons, Ray, 12, and Jerry, 3, were taken to City Hospital for treatment of injuries. Coffman's wife and their son, Paul, 21, were taken to Deaconess.

An ambulance from the Mahn establishment reached the scene of the accident and the injured were placed in it. Also at the scene was a pick-up truck from the funeral establishment. Vincent Mahn, driving the truck, was to hurry ahead of the ambulance to get a doctor in DeSoto.

As the truck was passing an automobile, driven by Miss Mary Aubuchon, 16, of Festus, the automobile turned left into the side of the truck, police said. The two machines were then struck by the ambulance, driven by Edward Mahn.

Miss Aubuchon and a passenger in her car, Miss Margaret Alcott, also 16, Festus, were taken to Deaconess suffering head injuries. Vincent Mahn and his brother, Edward, also were taken to the hospital. Those in the wrecked ambulance were transferred to others.

Last night another Mahn ambulance, driven by Gerald Mahn, was taking a patient to Veterans' Hospital at Jefferson Barracks when an automobile crowded it off the road at Highway 21, near Lindbergh boulevard. Raymond Sanders, an employe of the funeral home, and Clarence Brown, a relative of the patient, suffered head and chest injuries.

The driver of the automobile, Harold J. Hamilton Jr., 5343 Staley avenue, Affton, was not hurt. Charges of careless and reckless driving were placed against him.

Kansas Reinforcing Its Border To Halt Flow of Missouri Liquor

Agents Use Binoculars, Radios to Catch Motorists Taking Whisky Into State.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Dec. 3 (AP)—Holiday spirits can come high in Kansas if you cross the state line to buy them in Missouri.

A lot of Kansans along the state line do. Kansas estimates it lost $317,257 in tax revenue that way last year. Something is being done about it this holiday season.

Several teams of Kansas state agents are stationed on the Missouri side of the line, equipped with binoculars and radios.

They park near liquor stores, watch for Kansas license plates and tip off other officers by radio whenever they see a Kansan heading home with a large package.

If picked up with more than two quarts of liquor not bearing revenue stamps, the erring Jayhawker is taken to the nearest magistrate. The penalty is $10 to $500 and costs. The liquor is confiscated.

There wouldn't be any enforcement problem if Missouri liquor prices weren't more attractive, Kansas agents moan.

"It's just human nature to buy where a product of equal quality is cheaper," says Charles W. Pratt, director of alcoholic beverage control in Kansas.

The state tax on whisky in Kansas is $1 a gallon. In Missouri it's 80 cents. A fifth of whisky can be bought in Missouri as much as $1 cheaper.

FORMER UNDERCOVER MAN NAMES WITNESS AS RED

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (AP)—A former undercover agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation today identified Saul Grossman of Detroit as a Communist with whom the agent had served on various party committees.

Grossman, asked by a congressional committee to admit or deny the witness's testimony, said: "I have heard this man was a paid labor spy for the Ford Motor Co. and committed perjury on the witness stand."

Grossman, executive secretary of the Michigan Committee for the Protection of the Foreign Born, invoked the Fifth Amendment and declined to discuss the testimony of the former agent, Stephen J. Chemanski, Dearborn, Mich.

Chemanski did not give his occupation on the witness stand. Afterward he told reporters he was an investigator for Ford.

WOBURN, Mass. (UP)—When Mrs. Helen Haley lost control and her car crashed through the wall of a firehouse, the most surprised person, next to Mrs. Haley, was her husband, Firt Capt. Joseph Haley, who was sitting in a chair just inside.

SUPREME COURT REJECTS APPEAL ON INTEGRATION

Lets Stand Decision Requiring 'Prompt' Admission of Negroes to Texas School.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Supreme Court today let stand a decision requiring "prompt" admission of Negro students to the Mansfield (Tex.) high school.

The tribunal rejected an appeal from the Mansfield board of education that it review the decision given by the United States Circuit Court in New Orleans.

Rioting occurred at the opening of the school term last September, but the appearance of Texas Rangers ended the disturbance.

The circuit court found the school board had failed to comply with the Supreme Court's ruling in the public school segregation cases that integration should be brought about "with all deliberate speed."

The circuit court overturned a district court finding that the school board had shown "it is making a good faith effort toward integration. The circuit court said the district court should have declared the right of Negro students to attend the high school on the same basis as white students.

In sending the case back to the district court the circuit court instructed it to make the declaration of Negro rights, to restrain the school board forever from refusing admission to qualified Negroes, and to retain jurisdiction of the case "for further orders at the foot of the decree to promptly, fully, and effectively carry out this mandate and the orders of the district court entered pursuant thereto."

The school board, in appealing for a Supreme Court review, contended the district court was the proper tribunal to determine its good faith.

In another action, the Supreme Court dismissed by a 6-2 vote an appeal from a decision upholding California's law exempting from property taxation schools of less than collegiate grade operated by religious or charitable groups for non-profit purposes.

The Supreme Court dismissed the appeal on the ground it involved no substantial federal question.

Paul W. Heisey of Oakland had appealed as a taxpayer on his contention that the exemption "overwhelmingly benefits the non-public schools of the Roman Catholic church."

Violation Contended.

Heisey contended the exemption violated the First Amendment, which forbids the enactment of laws respecting the establishment of religion.

The high court ruled 8-1 that a lawyer who loses money on a business venture unrelated to his practice may not charge off the loss as a bad debt for federal income taxes purposes. The decision, the first delivered by Justice William J. Brennan Jr. since he went on the high court bench, rejected a claim by Max Putnam, Des Moines attorney, that he was entitled to a business bad debt deduction of $9005 in his 1948 tax return. At issue was an unpaid debt of the defunct Whitehouse Publishing Co., which Putnam and two others had formed in 1946.

The Internal Revenue Commissioner contended the $9005 had to be treated as a non-business bad debt, deductible only to a limited extent as a short-term capital loss.

Putnam appealed after the United States tax court and the United States circuit court in St. Louis upheld the commissioner. Putname said their rulings were in conflict with decisions in similar cases by circuit courts in Philadelphia and New Orleans.

In other actions today the Supreme Court:

Denied Gangster Elmer (Trigger) Burke a review of his conviction and death sentence for a 1952 barroom shooting in New York.

Agreed to review a decision holding invalid an Illinois effort to exempt from licensing and bonding the money order business of American Express Co. and Western Union. The decision in a special three-judge federal court was a victory for Bondified Systems, which issues money orders through agents located principally in drug and grocery stores.

SUNKEN UNION WARSHIP FOUND IN YAZOO RIVER

VICKSBURG, Miss., Dec. 3 (UP)—A Union warship, one of the first vessels ever sunk by a mine, has been discovered on the bottom of the Yazoo river where a Confederate charge blasted it in 1862.

Edwin C. Bearss, a Government historian, said attempts to find the U.S.S. Cairo, a 512-ton ironclad, had been going on since reconstruction days. Bearss discovered the wreckage 12 miles up the river from here with the aid of magnetic equipment. Skin divers helped identify it.

EX-G.I. TRAINED TO SHOOT IN DARK KILLS ROBBER

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 3 (AP)—A holdup man fleeing from a pawn shop with $227 in cash was shot to death Saturday night by a man who learned how to shoot in the dark in World War II.

A. R. (Al) Stevens, a clerk in the pawn shop, told police he was an Army sniper at Anzio, Italy.

FOUR KILLED IN COLLISION

MODESTO, Calif., Dec. 3 (AP)—A head-on collision near Modesto killed four Californians and injured six others late Saturday night.

"The dead were Headley Dean of Tuolumne; Bob Baker of San Jose; Carol B. Stewart of Sonora and Jerry Whitaker of Tuolumne.

HUNGARY AGAIN BARS OBSERVERS; COUNTER OFFER

will get out as soon as order has been restored.

Lodge Presses Point.

Lodge, however, pointed out that "it is now one month since the General Assembly adopted its first resolution on the Hungarian situation." That resolution called upon Russia to stop its intervention in Hungary, and requested the Secretary General to "observe directly" the Hungarian situation and to report to the Assembly "at the earliest possible moment."

"The Hungarian offer to accept observers at some remote, distant date is not compliance with General Assembly resolutions," Lodge said.

Subsequently, the General Assembly passed other measures, including one calling on the Russians to stop deportation of Hungarians.

"The response of the Soviet Union to these resolutions," Lodge declared, "demonstrated its utter contempt for the purposes and principles of the United Nations."

Instead of ceasing its intervention, he said, Russia has poured more troops into Hungary, forced out the government of Imre Nagy and substituted "direct control" over Hungarian administration. The Russians, he said, have "devastated Budapest" and attempted to stamp out popular resistance with "tanks and rockets." Mass deportations have continued, he said.

"It is incredible," Lodge said, "that a member of the United Nations should fail to respond to an offer of a visit by the Secretary General. What a self-accusation."

Co-sponsors with the United States of the new Hungarian resolution were Denmark, The Netherlands, Belgium, Italy, Ireland, Australia, Pakistan, Thailand, El Salvador, Argentina, Cuba, Norway and Sweden.

United States delegates were not pretending that this action, if adopted by the Assembly, would make a serious dent in Russian military control of Hungary. They hoped, however, that it would serve to keep up the pressure of world opinion on Russian force in eastern Europe.

State Department policy planners were said by members of the American delegation here to be studying possible moves in addition to the new resolution. Such actions as breaking diplomatic relations with Hungary, expelling Hungarian delegates from the United Nations, or imposing economic sanctions on Hungary have been suggested.

Disadvantages Weighed.

American diplomats here felt, however, that it was easier to bring pressure on Hungary in the U.N. with Hungary's foreign minister, Imre Horvath, sitting here, than if he were absent.

As for economic sanctions, they felt this would only serve to make the people of Hungary suffer, to drive them closer to the Soviet Union, and in any event would conflict with the United States policy of trying to get relief to the Hungarian people.

Senator Humphrey (Dem.), of Minnesota, a member of the American delegation, told the Post-Dispatch he thought the resolution introduced today did not go nearly far enough.

"What good is the United Nations if we can only enforce action against our friends? he asked, referring to U.N. resolutions demanding withdrawal of Britain, France and Israel from Egypt.

"In my opinion," Humphrey said, "we should vote economic sanctions against Hungary and withdraw our Ambassador from Budapest as a symbol of our disapproval." He said that economic sanctions wouldn't hurt the Hungarian people as much as Russian tanks.

TESTS DISCLOSED ON MAKING H-BOMB WORK FOR PEACE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (UP) —The Atomic Energy Commission has lifted the secrecy lid on Navy experiments seeking a way to put the H-bomb to work for peace, it was disclosed last night.

Dr. Alan C. Kolb, a scientist in the Navy research laboratory's radiation division here, told a reporter he will present a paper on his work on high temperature physics to a meeting of the American Nuclear Society here later this month.

He said that while his work does not directly involve production of the H-bomb or thermonuclear reaction in a laboratory, it is "leading in this direction."

Kolb said the AEC had removed the secrecy label hitherto imposed on his work when he submitted his paper to them for clearence. Some members of Congress, chiefly Democrats, have been urging the AEC to remove the secrecy wraps on experiments on harnessing the enormous power of the H-bomb for peaceful uses.

Sore Throat Pain Stopped Amazingly

FAST WITH NEW

ISODINE GARGLE

Doctors in leading hospital have discovered new, fast relief for painful sore throat—with revolutionary new type iodine gargle. In clinical tests on hundreds of patients suffering from worst sore throat pain, 9 out of 10 obtained fast relief. Doctors said, "Results were dramatic".

First used in babies' throats under doctor's supervision, this new iodine proved dramatically safe and effective to cure the dreaded throat infection, called "thrush". The secret is the remarkable achievement of detoxifying iodine to make it safe to use — yet retain its potency.

Here for the first time is the full power of iodine at work in a gentle, soothing film so that sore throat pain stops fast. This new gargle coats raw nerve ends inside the throat and mouth where pain starts — while it kills harmful bacteria that cause infection. And even hours later, germ count is practically nothing so relief lasts and lasts.

You can now get this dramatic new iodine gargle without prescription under the name of "Concentrated ISODINE GARGLE". It is stainless and has a remarkably refreshing taste. Use ISODINE Gargle freely to relieve sore throat . . . at the first sign of a cold to prevent sore throat misery. If symptoms do not respond to ISODINE Gargle, no gargle will suffice. At all drugstores 98¢—money back if not completely satisfied.

TOO TIRED FOR TV SHOW, FAT MAN TO BE A SANTA CLAUS

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Robert E. Hughes, who weighs 1041 pounds, took things easy in a hotel suite today while a promoter buzzed around town arranging for a tent-sized Santa Claus suit.

Hughes, whose home is near Fishhook, Ill., but who lives with a brother in Hannibal, Mo., was brought in by air freight from St. Louis Saturday when commercial airlines were unable to accommodate him.

Billed to appear on a New York television show yesterday as the world's fattest man, Hughes didn't show up, and was reported too tired from his trip. An aid said he liked the plane ride, his first experience with air travel, but the plane hit some rough weather over the Great Lakes.

Alex Daybreak, the television producer who brought Hughes to New York, said he could not say for sure just when Hughes would go on the telecast. He said he wants to get that Santa suit and introduce Hughes as the world's biggest Santa Claus.

STOCKHOLDERS IN ROAD FIRM LISTED FOR JURY

Names Presented in Inquiries on Labor Racketeering in Illinois Project.

By ROY J. HARRIS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3—A list of stockholders of Public Contractors Inc., of Gloucester City, N.J., the firm now building the first section of the $415,000,000 Illinois toll roads, was turned over today to a federal grand jury investigating possible labor racketeering in the road project.

The records were submitted by Louis I. Fisher, counsel here for the construction company in keeping with his agreement of last Tuesday with United States District Judge Philip L. Sullivan. Fisher had sought to quash the subpena for the stockholder list on the ground its disclosure might give other contractors a competitive advantage.

Fisher told the Post-Dispatch it was feared that other contractors might make "exaggerated" offers for the stock to some stockholders and thus acquire control of the company.

While refusing to make public the list, Fisher insisted there were no Illinoisans among the stockholders, after he concluded a 20-minute appearance before the grand jury. He said a statement in a Chicago newspaper that Peter Weber, business representative of a New Jersey local of the International Union of Operating Engineers, was a stockholder in the company was untrue. Weber was described in the newspaper article as former bodyguard of Joseph (Joey) Fay, a union racketeer who served eight years in prison for extortion.

In addition to getting the award for the first 4.4 miles of toll roads, Public Contractors Inc. and the John C. Peterson Construction Corp. of New York have received a joint award for the construction of the second section of about five miles. This contract calls for payment of slightly more than $481,000 as compared with $3,027,100 for the first section. Fisher explained a great deal of rock had to be blasted in the first section which added to the cost.

MAN WHO SAVED BABY IS MISSOURI 'DRIVER OF YEAR'

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 3 (UP)—Ernest Roedel of New Franklin, Mo., 28-year-old driver for Freight Ways Inc., today was the winner of the "Missouri Driver of the Year Award" for his efforts in saving an infant's life following a highway accident.

The award was presented at a dinner last night in connection with the convention of the Missouri Bus and Truck Association here.

On Sept. 5, Roedel rescued a one-year-old girl who had been thrown into a water-filled drainage ditch when a station wagon driven by her father plunged over an embankment. Roedel also gave emergency aid to the infant's mother and sister. The father was killed.

AUTO 'SAFETY' FEATURES TERMED OFTEN DANGEROUS

Improvements in automobiles, intended to make them safer, are often nullified by instilling in some drivers a false sense of security, Col. Hugh H. Waggoner, superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol, said today at Jefferson City.

Waggoner cited such "safety" features as increased horsepower, power brakes, longer range headlights and seat belts as factors which tempt some drivers to take more chances. Drivers must remember that every advantage has its accompanying disadvantages, he advised.

Simultaneous improvement must be made in the car, the road and the driver, the three factors involved in traffic safety, and the driver remains the decisive factor in auto accidents, Waggoner said.

NAVY COMMISSIONS FIRST GUIDED MISSILE DESTROYER

BOSTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Navy today took the wraps off the world's first guided missile destroyer, the Gyatt. Its her principal weapon is the "Terrier," an all but thinking device which can search out a target more accurately than the human eye.

The destroyer was named for Edward Earl Gyatt of Syracuse, N. Y., who was killed by a Japanese hand grenade as the Marines took Tulagi, a Solomon Island, in World War II.

The Gyatt will carry a crew of about 300, undetr Comdr. Charles F. Helme Jr. of Sayre, Pa. After sea trials it will join the Atlantic fleet destroyer force. The Gyatt is the third buided missile vessel in the Navy, the others being the cruisers Boston and Canberra.

WEALTHY BRITISH BARONET MARRIED FOR SEVENTH TIME

ST. HELIER, Isle of Jersey, Dec. 3 (AP)—Britain's most married baronet, Sir Francis Ferdinand Maurice Took, today took his seventh wife in a brief ceremony at a registrar's office.

The wealthy nobleman was to have married Mrs. Bridget Pollard Saturday but retreated when he found a crowd assembled for the "secret" ceremony.

Only a handful of onlookers stood by as they arrived today. Took, 48 years old, has been divorced six times. His 28-year-old bride also is a divorcee.

He inherited more than $1,000,000 on his father's death.

NEHRU REJECTS SOVIET CLAIM IN HUNGARY REVOLT

Indian Leader Scoffs at 'Reactionary' Charge, Says Rebellion Was a 'Popular Upheaval.'

NEW DELHI, Dec. 3 (UP)—Prime Minister Nehru today rejected Communist claims that the Hungarian revolt was a reactionary movement.

"It was undoubtedly a popular upheaval directed against Soviet forces sent there," he said.

Nehru's statement to the upper house of Parliament was his strongest condemnation thus far of the Soviet armed intervention in Hungary. It came after a weekend of discussions between Nehru and Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai in which the two failed to reconcile their views on the Hungarian problem.

Nehru said the Hungarian situation is one "which may drift to war." But, he added, India is "in a difficult position" in the United Nations because "we can neither say yes nor no" on some resolutions.

He said the kidnaping and deportation of ex-Premier Imre Nagy was "most unfortunate." Nagy, he said, is being held in a "healthy spot" in Romania.

'Agreement Broken.'

"The fact remains that it was the breaking of an agreement with Yugoslavia" by puppet Premier Janos Kadar but noted that Nagy was "arrested" by the Soviet authorities in Hungary.

The Soviet-Hungarian refusal to permit U.N. observers into Hungary "leads people to think the charges are true," the Prime Minister said. He was referring to charges of mass deportation of Hungarian youths by the Russians. He said he hesitated to believe the charges.

Nehru said he objected to the reference to the Hungarian government as an "authority" in one U.N. resolution. "Hungary may not be completely independent but in dealing with it we have to refer to it as a government," he said.

Of his talks with Chou, Nehru said "we agreed and disagreed on many points. However, we also agreed to disagree."

"It was a friendly disagreement," he said, but did not elaborate.

He also said the loss of British influence in the Mideast was creating a power vacuum which could lead to war.

Hits at Baghdad Pact.

The Indian leader also had harsh words for the American-backed Baghdad pact, Iraq and Pakistan.

The five-nation anti-Communist Baghdad pact, he said, actually promoted Soviet influence in the Middle East and was one of the "major reasons the countries of west Asia and Egypt fell out. . . ."

Nehru described the situation in the Middle East as "confusing." He said the "people of Iraq are pro-Egyptian and the government there is against that feeling."

Iraq is a founding member of the Baghdad pact. Nehru repeated his conviction that such military pacts are futile.

"The Moslem nations now say it is a pact for the protection of Moslem nations," he said, adding jokingly that they now wanted to dump Britain and substitute the United States as the "leading Moslem power in the world."

He devoted about 35 minutes to a discussion of the dispute with Pakistan over Kashmir. .

NATO'S STRENGTH A WAR DETERRENT, NORSTAD ASSERTS

VALLETTA, Malta, Dec. 3 (AP)—Gen. Lauris Norstad, new supreme allied commander in Europe, today said NATO's strength is "so great that war is unlikely except as matter of accident or misunderstanding."

Speaking at a news conference in a 14-hour tour of this British island base, said that "part of the deterrent to was with Russia is the Soviets' knowledge of the magnitude of the destruction which our forces can wreak on the other side."

Norstad denied that the Western split over the British-French invasion of Egypt had been reflected at his headquarters.

"NATO hasn't been impaired by the differences experienced between the Western nations in the past weeks," he said. "We have been harmoniously working together."

Asked whether North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations would go to the aid of Turkey if attacked, Norstad replied: "Yes. We are agreed to go to the assistance of any member nation attacked."

PET COLLIE SAVES LIFE OF STRICKEN ILLINOIS MASTER

RUSHVILLE, Ill., Dec. 3 (UP)—Samuel Wise's pet collie was credited today with saving the 82-year-old man's life after he had lain helpless for six days.

Wise, who lives alone on a farm near Bader, suffered a stroke last Monday, and although he remained conscious he was unable to help himself, except to crawl to a stove and get water from a teakettle.

Late Saturday Kenneth Stambaugh and his son, Leon, neighbors of Wise, were working in a field near the Wise home. Wise's dog ran to them and marked until they followed him to the Wise home. Wise, who had had no food for six days, was taken to a hospital where he was reported resting well.

Afghan Premier Ends Visit.

KARACHI, Dec. 3 (AP)—Premier Sardar Daud Khan of Afghanistan left for home yesterday after an eight-day visit in Pakistan. Premier H. S. Suhrawardy of Pakistan accepted an invitation to visit Afghanistan the first week in January.

RIESEL TESTIFIES ON ACID THROWING

Calls It 'Most Pain I Have Ever Felt' — Three Being Tried.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (UP)—Labor columnist Victor Riesel told in court today of the acid throwing attack which blinded him.

Riesel testified in United States district court at the trial of three men accused of conspiracy in connection with the attack.

The columnist, wearing the large dark glasses which mask his sightless eyes, said he first saw his attacker lounging in a dark doorway as he left Lindy's restaurant about 2:40 a.m. April 5.

"He began to move toward me," Riesel said. "I paid him no attention, but reached in my pocket for a quarter.

"He said 'Hey!' I turned, and as I turned I faced him and a completely sudden burst of liquid hit my face.

"The liquid hit above my nose and dripped into my eyes. It was the sharpest, (the) most pain I have ever felt," Riesel said.

After the attack, Riesel said he ran back into Lindy's where they began to wash his face. But, he said, he already had begun to lose his vision.

Doctors were unable to save Riesel's eyesight.

Just before the government rested its case, United States Attorney Paul Williams asked Riesel to take off his glasses.

"Can you see?" he asked him.

"I am totally blind," Riesel replied.

Earlier, the jury heard the grand jury minutes on testimony of Gondolfo Miranti, one of those on trial, whose statements implicated John (Johnny Dio) Dioguardia, reported labor racketeer, as the mastermind of the attack.

Miranti is on trial with Domenico Bando and Leo Telvi, brother of Abe Telvi, the alleged acid thrower. Abe Telvi was found shot to death.

In the grand jury statement, Miranti said Dio paid $500 for the acid-throwing job.

Miranti told the grand jury how Charles Tuso, a defendant in the conspiracy indictment, arranged with him to hire someone to throw acid "in a guy's face."

He said that Dio later gave him $50 to confirm the contract in his candy store. Miranti said there were six or seven men playing cards in the store at the time and that one or two of the card players could identify Dio.

The institutions will divide an estimated $100,000, it was said. They include Boys Town of Missouri, Girls' Industrial Home of St. Louis, the Episcopal Church of St. Michael and St. George, St. Vincent's Hospital, Deaconess Hospital, St. Luke's Hospital, Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children and St. Louis Children's Hospital.

Kennard, who lived at 11 Thornby place, died Oct. 21. His estate consisted of stocks valued at $46,922 on today's market; cash in the bank in Wellston, $122,808, and 765 shares of stock in the bank the value of which was not listed.

In his will, Kennard made specific bequests to friends, relatives and neighbors amounting to $80,000. He directed his secretary, Miss Martha E. Helmkamp, 7627 Stanford avenue, University City, receive $10,000 and he left varying sums to two maids and a butler.

He also left 365 shares of stock to officers and employes of the bank.

Otherwise Living There Isn't Too Bad, Says Commander of Base U.S. Is Establishing.

McMURDO SOUND, Antarctica, Dec. 3 (UP)—One of the first men ever to establish residence at the South Pole said yesterday that living there isn't too bad if you don't mind monotonous scenery.

"My men probably think I'm psycho, but I enjoy the wilderness," said Lt. (j.g.) John Tuck Jr. of Auburn, Mass. "Life is pretty good up there."

Tuck, who is military commander of the base the United States is establishing at the pole, conceded that there isn't much to look at, but added that his men are too busy to bother about sight-seeing.

"One of the construction crew described it best as 'miles and miles and miles of miles,'" he said. "You can't see anything in any direction except the white of the polar plateau merging with the blue sky at the horizon.

The young naval officer, who already has spent one winter in the Antarctic, said life at the pole is now more interesting than the time he spent here last winter.

He said the 24 men of his advance party have construction work to occupy their time, instead of "just living" as the Americans at McMurdo sound did while they were waiting out the winter.

The construction camp is about 1000 feet from the pole. The scientific station probably will be set up directly over the world's southern tip.

By the Associated Press.

Tuck flew back to this Antarctic coast base in one of two ski planes that took Dr. Paul A. Siple of Washington, D. C., and five more Seabees to the pole.

"The first couple of days we went around like actors in slow motion," Tuck said.

This was because of the thin air at the pole's high altitude, and the bone-chilling cold of 25 degrees below zero even in this period of antarctic summer. Nowadays the sun shines 24 hours a day at the pole.

"The time of day depends on where you stand because all time zones and date lines converge at the pole," Tuck said.

The United States Army-Navy trail party laying out Antarctica's first highway has completed the most difficult known stretch of its 650 mile route from Little America into Marie Byrd land.

The seven-mile section through coastal crevasse fields 185 miles southeast of here was finished yesterday and a 37-ton tractor was driven over the route without mishap.

Cougar Attacks Hunter.

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 3 (AP)—Deer hunter Kirby Allen escaped with a scratched neck, torn coat and damaged gun stock yesterday when a wounded cougar jumped him in the mountains about 15 miles southeast of here.

Director of Jewish Congress.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Isaac Toubin of New York, an authority on Jewish communal affairs and intergroup relations, has been appointed executive director of the American Jewish Congress, it was announced yesterday. He succeeds the late David Petegorsky.

U.S. and Syrian Sources at Odds Over Soviet Aid and Influence And Danger of a Dictatorship

Damascus Spokesmen Deny There Have Been Any Military Deliveries Since Conflict in Egypt—America's Goodwill Appreciated as Well as Russia's.

By KENNETT LOVE
BEIRUT, Lebanon, Dec. 3.

SYRIA has become an enigma. Three major issues are in dispute. The first is whether Syria has renewed its purchases of Soviet arms since the war in Egypt. The second is whether the country has fallen under Soviet influence. The third is whether military dictatorship exists in Syria or is about to come into being through a coup d' etat.

On all these issues, Syrian government spokesmen and United States sources in Damascus are in partial or complete conflict. The conflict is compounded by Syrian and other diplomatic and foreign sources.

Syrian Foreign Minister Salah Bitar has denied new Soviet arms purchases. He said that if any arms deliveries were arriving they were in fullfilment of old contracts. He later corrected this to deny flatly that any arms shipments had arrived since the war in Egypt.

United States sources in Damascus insist that Soviet military vehicles are continuing to arrive in quantity at the port of Latakia. They add that they believe small arms are also arriving but that they are not sure.

An embassy spokesman said this weekend it had seen five new military lorries on the Aleppo road north of Damascus and had seen "some" new artillery pieces being hauled through the streets of Damascus. He said he could not definitely identify them as Soviet but that Syria was not receiving arms from any other source. He also said he was sure all previous arms deliveries had cleared Latakia and that these weapons must therefore be new deliveries.

Budget Figures Quoted.

In response to an estimate that Syria had received $100,000,000 worth of Soviet arms in the past year, a Syrian spokesman replied that the total government budget in the past fiscal year was only $104,000,000 with a 30 per cent increase for the next fiscal year.

Whether Syria has Soviet-built MIG jet fighters in the country is also subject to controversy. Egyptian sources in Damascus say Syria bought about two dozen MIG aircraft earlier in the year and had sent pilots to Egypt to be trained.

At the Damascus airport on Thursday there were about two dozen Italian and British propeller-driven fighter planes under camouflage nets and four British-made jets. But there were no MIGs. A French pilot recently expelled from Syria said there were no MIGs at the Aleppo airport in northern Syria.

If Syria actually has any MIGs—and even the Syrian government spokesmen are in conflict on this—they are probably in Egypt.

A major cause of the cloak of rumor surrounding Syria is that censorship there has necessitated "long distance" reporting for want of something better. In all the other countries of the Middle East, including Israel, consorship has also led to remote control reporting and its consequent risk of inaccuracy.

Soviet Influence.

A second major point of controversy is whether Syria has become or is approaching the condition of a Soviet satellite. The Syrians say frankly that the government has strong sympathy for and gratitude to the Soviet Union for its espousal of the Arab cause in the Middle East.

Syrian spokesmen say they have made no commitments to the Soviet Union. They insist they have paid in full, mostly in cotton and wheat, for their Soviet arms. They indignantly declared that they have not won freedom from the French and British influence only to fall under Soviet reign.

The United States show of good will toward Arabs, Syrian officials say, has been equally appreciated. They would prefer the United States to the Soviet Union as an ally but Syrian censors will not permit quotations to this effect.

A survey of news stands and reception rooms showed that virtually all Western publications are barred together with Lebanese newspapers and most other foreign periodicals. Soviet periodicals brought into the country by the Soviet embassy are everywhere.

Syrian press and radio have favored Soviet news and the dispatches of the Tass news agency over news favoring the West. This is the result of Syrian army censorship. On the other hand the government chose to buy oil from Aramco (Arabian American Oil Co.) rather than accept Soviet offers to overcome their present shortages.

Role of Col. Serraj.

United States sources have described Syria's pro-Soviet shift as similar to that in the United States during World War II. This causes them great concern. It could become dangerous, these sources warn, but they do not regard either the Syrian army or the government as dominated by Communists.

The most hotly disputed question is whether Lt. Col. Abdel Hamid Sarraj, chief of Syrian army intelligence, holds the real reins of power in Syria as the strong man behind the scenes.

United States spokesmen in Damascus believe this is true. One embassy official put it this way:

"Sarraji may or may not be giving all the orders to the government, but he is certainly not taking orders from the government."

Serraj himself has in a way lent substance to this belief, which is not confined to Americans only. Always avoiding meetings with correspondents and with most diplomats, he has created an aura of mystery around himself.

Syrian officials admit that Sarraj is widely popular in the army and in close touch with the Socialist-Arab Resurrectionist party, the strongest and best organized in Syria both for obtaining votes and for calling out street demonstrations. But they deny that Sarraj is anything more than might be expected of an intelligence chief under conditions of martial law.

Victory Over Parliament.

Sarraj and his adherents appeared to have what would be regarded as excessive influence in a Western democracy. Together with top Cabinet leaders and President Shukry Kuwatly, they defeated a move to maintain the institution of parliamentary immunity from arrest during the state of emergency.

The army took the lead in investigating the alleged Iraqi arms smuggling plot aimed at the overthrow of the regime. Five members of the Syrian Parliament have been arrested and jailed pending trials, including Adnan Al Atassy, a son of former President Hashen Al Atassy. Syrian agents seized the first deputy arrested, Hail Serour, a tribal representative, in his room in a hotel in Beirut and brought him back to Syria.

On the other hand, United States sources report that an attempt a week ago to oust the right-wing members of the Syrian cabinet failed. The move was said to have had the support of Col. Sarraj. These sources said Foreign Minister Salah Bitar and the minister of national economy, Khalil Kallas, both members of the Socialist-Arab Resurrectionist party, had threatened to resign in an effort to force the removal of the Minister of Public Works, Majdeddin Jabry, and of Ahmed Qonbar, Minister of the Interior.

United States sources say they do not know exactly how Sarraj exerts his authority or who are the members of the junta that they believe exists around him. They are uncertain how Sarraj maintains liaison with civilian departments, but they say that evidence of his authority is clear.

Dictatorship Question.

Since both Sarraj and top government leaders are strongly pro-Egyptian and sympathetic toward the Soviet Union, these sources say they see no immediate prospects of a coup. But they feel that Sarraj may seek eventually to take power openly.

Syrian sources say that even if Sarraj could seize power, he would be unlikely to overthrow the present government because of its close ties to the Egyptian regime of President Gamal Abdel Nasser, who would oppose such a move.

Some Western sources say Sarraj strength depends in part on the support of Col. Amin Mafoury, chief of army personnel. He is another mystery man who appears to have wide influence in the army.

A series of army coups from 1949 to 1954 appears to show that any Syrian government can be overthrown by the army, provided an army leader exists who can carry the majority of the ranks with him. But political divisions in the country are generally reflected in the army.

Syrians have traditionally enjoyed being an enigma but are worried by the fact that the answers published in the West to questions about them are generally damaging. They are making an intensive effort at all levels to "reveal" to the world that everything is all right.

They have described reports about themselves as an "imperialist" propaganda campaign designed to prepare a pretext for aggression against them by Britain, France, Israel, Turkey or Iraq.

U.S. Begins Work on Weapons System for Atomic Bomber

Nuclear-Powered Planes to Require Different Techniques of Operation and Strategy.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP).
By ELTON C. FAY

THE Air Force, apparently confident of success in building an atom powered bomber, has started organizing a complete weapons ssytem for such aircraft.

The same deep secrecy which has surrounded the aircraft nuclear propulsion project cloaks the new weapons system program.

The use of complete "weapons systems" has come into vogue in the last 10 year's production of intricate new nuclear weapons, carriers, bombers and radar warning-jet interceptor combinations. They involve not merely the weapons or device itself, but all the complicated operational techniques and strategy that go into its use.

Atomic-powered bombers will make possible strategy entirely different from those for present aircraft weapons systems.

Contracts Reported Let.

Available information indicates that the Air Force already has let contracts for development of some of the equipment that would be needed for operation of the intricate atomic plane weapons system.

Currently in charge of this phase of the weapons system is a "director of nuclear systems," an office of the Air Research and Development Command.

The aircraft nuclear propulsion program includes two separate reactor development projects, one under contract by the General Electric Co. at an Ohio plant and the other by Pratt and Whitney at Hartford, Conn.

The Atomic Energy Commission recently completed a big nuclear aircraft propulsion test facility, including a runway as well as static test equipment, at its national reactor test station in Idaho.

There are a number of other little-known projects related to the atomic aircraft engine project, including several under direction of the AEC's San Francisco office.

Reference by Quarles.

In an obvious reference to atomic powered aircraft, Secretary of the Air Force Donald Quarles said in an ABC-TV interview yesterday that "we have the development of such a plane in the research and development" stage, but that it is several years away from realization.

His reply was to a question whether the Air Force is working on a plane which could make a flight to Russia and return without aerial refueling.

Quarles said the United States Air Force has "substantially greater striking power" than that of Russia and predicted that despite development of guided missiles "the manned aircraft will still be our mainstay."

Quarles said also that the Air Force goal of 137 wings by next June 30 "will undoubtedly be modified" somewhat but its strength will not be cut. He said the force now has 131 combat wings.

Asked whether atomic or hydrogen weapons should be used in a "little war," Quarles replied:

"I think we should use the weapons needed for the purpose at hand . . . I don't think we should hold them back if they are needed."

Sees No End to Situation.

The Secretary was asked when the budget requirements of the Air Force might level off.

"I can see no end to the situation in which we need more and more money," he replied. "I do not mean to hold it out as a prospect that we will have budgets increasing without limit, but we have to have money to meet the competition."

He did not elaborate on the subject of an atomic powered plane, but it is known that the mere "ground handling" of such a craft will call for special procedures in storing and fueling the plane with its potentially dangerous nuclear reactor.

The hazards of radio-activity in event of a crash probably will limit its operation to certain bases and over carefully prescribed take-off and landing patterns to avoid flying over heavily populated areas.

The virtually unlimited range of such an aircraft will impose new problems in manning the plane and keeping in communication with it, for command control purposes, over long period of time and at points half a world away.

A nuclear powered aircraft could stay in the air far beyond the endurance of any one crew. The longest routine training periods for heavy bomber crews is about 48 hours. An atomic engined plane might be able to fly for weeks.

FRANCE RECEIVES FIRST OIL FROM U.S. IN SUEZ CRISIS

SETE, France, Dec. 3 (AP)—The first of the United States oil shipments promised to France in the Suez crisis arrived at this southern port yesterday from Texas aboard the American tanker Silvan Arrow.

The ship carried 28,000 tons of oil for the refineries near here. Three other American tankers, carrying a total of 52,500 tons are expected.

Gives Peiping's Views of World to Be Passed On to Eisenhower.

By A. M. ROSENTHAL
© New York Times News Service
BOMBAY, Dec. 3.

CHOU EN LAI, Premier of Communist China, has given Prime Minister Nehru of India a full briefing of the way Peiping sees the world—to be passed on to President Eisenhower.

The Chinese Communist leader reached Bombay yesterday on his tour of India. Chou had long talks with Nehru in New Delhi, and in most of them the Indian Prime Minister's forthcoming visit to the United States was understood to be a pivot point of discussion.

According to authentic but second-hand information, Chou passed on these views on the import of international topics to Nehru:

Middle East: The United States is offended at its western allies for not keeping it informed of the plan to attack Egypt. But the basic western aim in the Middle East is to prevent Moscow from moving in. Chou is interested in, but dubious about, Nehru's belief that Washington's policy is undergoing important "anti-colonial" changes in its foreign aspect and has come to a new realization of the importance of the newly independent countries of Asia.

American Prisoners.

Prisoners: Chou has expressed what Indians consider a "moderate" point of view toward the problem of United States nationals still imprisoned in Communist China. This is one of the topics which Chou expects Nehru to discuss with Mr. Eisenhower. The Chinese Communist premier has said that with "good behavior" the prisoners' sentences may be reduced. Indians are intested in this because, they say, this is the line Peiping took before the Chinese released United States airmen last year.

Eastern Europe: There could be no immediate consideration of dissolution of the Communist Warsaw pact. Chou took the position that the pact would have to remain as long as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization remained. The Indian position generally, has been that all military alliances are harmful.

Hungary: Chou said bad Com-

Hungary Shook Russia's Trust In Satellite and Own Armies

Other Factors Brought Out by Uprising Were Spread of Strikes to Soviet Union, Student Unrest.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP
WASHINGTON.

THE events of the last few weeks have revealed unsuspected weakness in the Western alliance, but they have also revealed weaknesses in the Soviet system which were only dimly suspected.

For example, the Hungarian uprising and the Polish defiance of Moscow have caused a complete re-assessment of the real value of the satellite armies to be made in Washington, and no doubt in Moscow, too. It had always been assumed that the satellite forces were of dubious offensive value. But it had never been thought that they represented an actual danger to the Soviet rear in case of war. That, it now appears, is exactly what they do represent.

The Hungarian army, which went over almost en bloc to the "freedom fighters," has had to be largely disbanded by the puppet government of Janos Kadar—there are now thought to be fewer than 25,000 Hungarian troops in service. There have also been reports that the Russians have disarmed the Romanian army. And as for Poland's well-equipped army of 30 divisions, the Soviet rulers must devoutly wish that they had never created it.

Gomulka's blunt threat to use the Polish army if need be was of course what saved him when Khrushchev went to Warsaw to bring him to heel. Thereafter, Marshal Zhukov was heard to remark in Moscow that "we could have crushed them like flies," and no doubt the Red army could have defeated the Poles handily. But there is an obvious difference between a dependable allied army and an army which it may be necessary in time of war to crush, whether or not like flies.

Doubt of Own Army.

The Soviet rulers have new reason to doubt, moreover, the reliability of the Red army itself. It is now known beyond question that there were fairly numerous defections from the Red army to the Hungarian side during the revolt. The Hungarian freedom fighters even broadcast amnesty for our "Russian comrades" as one of their demands.

The defections took place, what is more, among elite units, like the Soviet Second Guards Division. The defections were serious enough so that the regular Russian units first sent to quell the revolt had to be replaced by more dependably murderous troops of Asiatic origin.

Rot Has Spread.

There is now evidence, moreover, that the rot in the Soviet satellite empire has spread, in a small way at least, into the Soviet Union itself. Rumors that there were strikes within the last few days in Moscow have now been absolutely confirmed and there have been unconfirmed reports of strikes elsewhere, especially in the Ukraine. The strikes were quickly suppressed, but that there could be such a thing as a strike in the Soviet Union is itself astonishing.

There have also been signs of rising ferment among Soviet students, especially at Moscow University — and it was

SOVIET TROOPS TO REMAIN IN ROMANIA BECAUSE OF 'INTERNATIONAL SITUATION'

LONDON, Dec. 3 (AP)—SOVIET troops will remain in Romania, the Moscow radio said tonight.

The broadcast said that at the end of talks which have been going on between Romanian Premier Stoica and Soviet Premier Bulganin, it was decided that:

"In view of the international situation in Europe, the two sides consider it expedient to maintain temporarily Soviet military units on Romanian territory in accordance with the terms of the Warsaw treaty."

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

From University City
(Telegram)

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

We take exception to the charge of Harold Cook that the University City Board of Education has asked for a blank check in its proposed bond issue.

A class-room average of 27½ pupils is a recorded policy of the board. To maintain this policy the classrooms which the bond issue will build are needed by 1962. In deciding on the bond issue the board counseled with a large Citizens' Committee on two separate occasions.

It was the almost unanimous opinion of this committee that the bond issue should provide funds to meet the needs for the next six years.

In the fall of 1954 population figures suggested a school enrollment of 700-750 per grade. Since then, because of rapid growth in population, our entering grades have been 840-850, and the enumeration of last spring indicates that the entering grades for the next few years will continue at this level.

This extra student load during the coming years is the reason for the need for classrooms which the bond issue will provide. The number of pupils in our schools and community in the next few years is not a matter of conjecture but has been counted.

The maximum cost of the bond issue will be approximately 22 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. Naturally the costs in a school system with an expanding enrollment will go up.

With the existence of so many variables it is impossible to predict the tax rate for the operating budget. This matter was discussed fully with the advisory committee.

We believe our class-size policy is a fundamental reason for our high quality schools. The Kincaid report arbitrarily assumed a higher class size than board policy. In addition he lost 500 pupils in his projection. The University City Board of Education urges all citizens to vote YES on the school bond issue.

HOMER TAYLOR,
President, University City Board of Education.

Where to Get Lieutenants

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

We ought to revise the intellectual basis of our defense forces by abandoning West Point, Annapolis and Colorado Springs as undergraduate military schools turning out junior officers. Instead they should be made command and general staff installations for generals and field officers. Lieutenants would come from our state universities and land grant colleges.

A Permanent Peace Force

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

What kind of a United Nations Police Force? How composed? Where located?

Article 45 of the U.N. Charter provides: "In order to enable the U.N. to take urgent military measures, members shall hold immediately available national air-force contingents for combined international enforcement action."

No such contingents have ever been made available. Why? Because the U. N. has no legal enforcement powers. Each nation can, as crises arise, arbitrarily decide whether or not to make military units available. Not until each member nation of the U.N. can, under U.N. law, be counted upon to supply the permanent armed forces and facilities demanded of them, will a real international army come into being.

This permanent international army esimated at not less than 300,000 or more than 700,000, would be the only military force in the world equipped with weapons of mass destruction just as here in the United States these weapons are in the sole control of our national department of war.

In addition to many checks and balances to keep this force "tyranny-proof" are the general control of the Chief of Staff and Army by a vetoless Executive Council, a carefully regulated proportionate distribution of nationalities and provision that not more than 10 per cent of the entire force would be located in any one region.

Charlestown, R.I. J. A. MIGEL.

Israel's Dilemma

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

After listening to the delegate of Egypt to the United Nations recently, I can see the dilemma facing Israel. The gentleman was repeatedly asked if Egypt would sit down and negotiate with Israel in order to settle their differences, and he repeatedly refused to give an affirmative answer.

Here's hoping that the leaders of Israel can find a way to make peace with those who refuse to negotiate, but at the same time point a gun at their backs.

Wondering

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I wonder what the Eisenhower Democrats think of the uneasy world situation and whether they have done any soul searching since the election?

With the Middle East a potential powder keg and anti-Americanism rampant throughout England and France, the world situation is radically different from the rosy picture described by the Republicans during the campaign.

I believe the future will prove Stevenson right on the issues of foreign affairs and hydrogen bombs. But apparently the Eisenhower Democrats are not interested in such dull subjects.

JEFFERSON CITY READER.

Go All the Way

St. Louisans expect two great and uncompromising decisions from the Freeholders they have selected to write the new City Charter.

First, the city's municipal officials should enjoy direct control over the so-called "county" offices, the never-never land of local government that in large measure exists as a trough for the private feeding of ward politicians. The Freeholders have moved aggressively to accomplish this and they deserve commendation.

Second, the new Charter should create conditions under which the Board of Aldermen can be more responsive to the good of the whole community, not merely to its individual parts as at present. Here the recent performance of the Freeholders is not so bold.

The Freeholders currently have before them, with a recommendation for approval, a proposal to reduce the membership in the Board of Aldermen from 29 to 19, including four members and the board president to be elected at large. This is a half-hearted compromise that recognizes the need for change but does not go far enough to make the change effective.

In our view the change that would best make the Board of Aldermen more responsive to the good of the whole city is to require that at least half the members be elected from the city at large. This is the essential of legislative reform.

A smaller board is also important, but not so important as the 50 per cent at-large requirement. For this is the surest way of checking "aldermanic courtesy," the abuse by which a majority of the aldermen elected by wards clique together and agree to permit each other complete control over legislation affecting their wards. Thus the good of the total city is ignored, and petty local pressures encouraged.

Freeholder Major B. Einstein, spokesman for the committee majority urging the 14-4-1 aldermanic body, agreed that greater use of the at-large election system provided substantial advantages, but he shied away from taking the one step that would make it fully effective. Why?

For one thing, he thought city-wide elections might cut down on public access to board members. But in a 7-7-1 board, every citizen would be directly represented by his own district alderman (one alderman for every four wards) and through him would have exactly the same degree of "access" to city government as he does to the Missouri Senate, since the city has seven state senators. Furthermore every citizen would also be represented by seven aldermen elected at large, and he would have just as much access to all of them as he now has to his Mayor, his Aldermanic President, and other city-wide officials.

Mr. Einstein also thinks the at-large requirement might tend to reduce representation of minority groups. It is difficult to see how. If the aldermanic districts were fairly drawn, as they should be, then dividing 28 wards into 7 districts should give minority groups, in this half of the Board, exactly the same representation they have now. As for the other half to be elected at large, the practical politics of slate-making for these aldermen would surely tend to assure fair minority representation there also.

St. Louisans certainly will demand that the Board of Aldermen continue to reflect minority viewpoints, be they political, racial or otherwise. But the Board of Aldermen exists to legislate for all the city, and it must be so established that city-wide aims and objectives are not submerged by local pressure. The tail should not be permitted to wag the dog.

For that reason we earnestly hope that the Freeholders adopt the 7-7-1 plan—seven aldermen by districts and seven others and the board president elected at large—that is urged in a minority report by Dr. Ralph A. Kinsella and supported by Mrs. Conrad Sommer. This is the kind of full-fledged reform that ought to appeal to Mayor Tucker's instinct for good government, and perhaps the time is ripe for him to speak out for it.

The Freeholders are under no obligation to compromise on this article. They hold office by virtue of a victory over the politicians of both parties, so there should be no fear of Charter opposition from that quarter. Ward opposition exists and it won't go away. What the Freeholders have to fear is the creation of a Charter so weak, so lacking in essential improvements over the present system of government, that the people will turn their backs on it.

What Gen. Pick Started

Gen. Lewis A. Pick, who died Sunday, was perhaps more responsible than any other one man for the vast progress that has been made in the last decade and a half in harnessing the Missouri river.

He was decisive and able to enthuse others—a natural leader. From building the famed Ledo Road of World War II through Burma, connecting northwest India with China, he came to the Missouri valley in 1945, as Army division engineer at Omaha.

The Missouri is a river whose panoramic scope and complexity invite indecision. Gen. Pick settled doubts and galvanized the doubters into enough unity to get started. We did not think then and we do not think now that a divided authority was desirable for the planning, construction or operation of the system of dams and reservoirs.

But with the imperfect instruments at hand, Gen. Pick in four short years really got the dirt flying, the concrete pouring and the dams rising from Montana on down—one of the largest and potentially most useful engineering projects ever undertaken. The work is still in progress.

A unified management for these far-flung works is still possible. It is the last achievement necessary to bring into the full service of this region, embracing one sixth of the nation, the project which Lewis Pick so energetically began.

Oil, But Not Monopoly

A watchdog committee of Congress should unquestionably supervise the emergency oil-for-Europe plan, as Senator O'Mahoney suggests, to prevent it from fostering monopoly.

When the junior Senator from Wyoming warns about monopoly, his words carry more than usual weight; for he has been a one-man anti-monopoly watchdog ever since he was chairman of the Temporary National Economic Committee in the Administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Calling a special session of Congress for the purpose, as Mr. O'Mahoney suggests, seems an extreme measure. It is true that, to be really effective, a watchdog must be on the ground from the very first days, during which some decisions of a basic nature may be made. But it would seem that an appropriate committee of Congress—Senator O'Mahoney mentions Foreign Relations—could gather its members together without a general mobilization.

The powers which the emergency plan gives to 15 major oil companies would, under ordinary circumstances, constitute violations of the anti-trust laws, and they are truly tremendous. This legalized trust, Mr. O'Mahoney points out, can determine where and at what rate oil is to be produced and where and in what quantities it shall be refined. Care must be taken that in the exercise of these powers smaller competitors are not damaged. Since the methods to be used are essentially those of monopoly and restraint of free trade, they must be terminated sharply when the emergency is over, not allowed to continue tacitly of established habit.

A 'Crash' Program in Compassion

From his office on the Augusta, Ga., golf course, President Eisenhower now has offered asylum to 21,500 Hungarian refugees—16,500 more than were offered a haven in the United States originally. This is an act of humanitarianism for which he is to be praised, especially since he added that the situation will be "re-examined" after the 21,500 have reached this country, and because he also promised to take it up with Congress in January.

Credit also goes to Tracy S. Voorhees, former Army Under Secretary, who was asked by the President only last week to take charge of the admission of refugees. He lost no time in conferring with all concerned, and thus made possible the presidential announcement.

One may regret that this came only after bitter protests—especially from the warm-hearted Austrians—that the United States was not doing its share in providing for these victims of Soviet brutality. And it will not help much to say that things like this take time. No Austrian said that to refugees crossing into his country.

More serious, however, are the obstacles of the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act which the President had to circumvent. Because of this law, he was forced to say that 15,000 refugees will be allowed to enter the United States only on "parole." This means that they may be shipped back, or to some other country; in short, that admission to the United States carries only limited reassurance for them.

There has been much opposition to this legislation, yet it is doubtful that anybody dreamed that it would put the United States in so ungallant a position in a major crisis of liberty. To his credit, Representative Francis Walter of Pennsylvania, one of its authors, was among the first to beseech the President to admit more than 5000 refugees. He hardly could have anticipated the present situation.

Mr. Walter's personal observation of the flight of these people from their homes may induce him to join others in remedial legislation, legislation more in accord with Liberty's invitation to the downtrodden and persecuted of the world. Happily, that need not be passed before our gates are opened. The world will little care how our laws must be rewritten, but it will carefully note the spontaneity and extent of our generosity. We need a "crash" program of compassion.

A Reproach to Our Neglect

The death of a 74-year-old man, sick and neglected, in an unheated chicken shack near DeSoto, has served again to call Missourians' attention to the shameful need for regulating nursing homes. Like the nursing home fire at Hillsboro which cost 18 lives in 1952, this incident is a tragic measure of the fearful plight of some of our senior citizens.

Gov.-elect Blair in his campaign expressed the "deep concern" of Missouri legislators over inadequate health facilities. Among organizations which have urged stricter regulation of nursing homes are the St. Louis County Medical Society and the St. Louis County League of Municipalities. The Licensed Nursing Home Association is preparing corrective legislation. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney James H. Connor Jr., aroused over the situation, says "little attention" is paid to nursing homes, probably because the punishment for unlicensed operation is only a $25 fine.

Legislation was enacted in 1955 at Jefferson City, but it was a weak compromise, and was soon held unconstitutional by the Attorney General's department because of the exceptions that had been written into it in an effort to make it politically acceptable. One of the first acts of the Legislature in the coming year should be the enactment of laws that will prevent repetition of such human disasters as the Hillsboro fire and the death in the chicken shack.

Salute to Don Faurot

Now that the Kansas Jayhawkers, gambling souls that they are, have provided Missouri with a harum-scarum final football victory for the year, it is time to say goodby to Don Faurot as the Tigers' football coach.

Mr. Faurot took Missouri football out of the doldrums, invented the prevalent split-T formation and won 101 games. He depended largely on Missouri boys for Missouri football. All this is to his credit, but we think what is most to his credit are the clean recruiting standards which he maintained. He clung firmly to the conference formula of board-room-tuition, and publicly announced all athletic scholarships with the scholastic records of the boys getting them.

This is not simon-pure amateurism of the old school, but the system certainly avoids the most expensive and most hypocritical features of the play-for-pay new school in football. And Missouri can expect, as Mr. Faurot becomes athletic director and looks for a new football coach, that the state university will keep its gridiron policies open to public inspection.

The Hungary Story in Russia

Proof that the Voice of America carried the story of Hungary's oppression into Russia itself has been adduced by Abbott Washburn, deputy director of the United States Information Service.

Quoting Irving R. Levine, Moscow correspondent of NBC, Mr. Washburn cites the fact that while the Soviet press would have preferred to ignore the Hungarian revolt, it printed many columns "explaining" the uprising and the "necessity" for counter measures against the rebels. So it is clear that the Voice of America broke through the Iron Curtain to enough people in Russia to necessitate extensive efforts by the Kremlin at justification of Soviet brutality.

In discussing the Voice of America at the annual convention of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalistic fraternity, in Louisville, Mr. Washburn told what extreme steps the Communists have taken to "jam" broadcasts of news from the United States. He said Moscow and its satellites have spent more than $113,000,000 to block Voice broadcasts.

But American readers and the editors and publishers whose business it is to serve American readers with facts need to remember that not all the news "jamming" takes place behind the Iron Curtain. On the same program, a panel of newsmen showed how hard it frequently is to dig out the whole truth in Washington and elsewhere in the United States.

Closed-door meetings of official bodies, locked-up records and the tendency in many cases to rely on the handouts of publicity agents were listed by the speakers as evidences that a large-scale "jamming" operation takes place in this nation, too. A constantly alert free press, fighting against official news suppression wherever it occurs, is essential in a society that depends upon freedom of information.

Communism's Great Debate

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Moscow backs world Communism, Marshal Tito national Communism, but Milovan Djilas, ex-Titoist now under arrest, introduced new note by urging Communism to permit political democracy; it is this idea which frightens Kremlin and Tito alike.

Joseph C. Harsch, Washington Correspondent, in The Christian Science Monitor

We of the Western world are interested spectators these days of one of the most fascinating debates of all history.

The Communist world has been riven by the popular revolution in Hungary and its ugly repression by Soviet tanks.

The philosophers, rationalizers, and politicians of the Communist countries and parties are groping with the implications of this event and filling their newspapers, journals and air waves with anguished, turgid, devious and interminable theories and contentions.

It is not easy for a Westerner even to read their texts, let alone comprehend what they are talking about. But it behooves us to make the effort, for power as well as Communist dogma is involved, and also the peace of the world.

Marshal Tito

World Communism could disappear with a whimper. It could come crashing down in a Gotterdammerung involving all of us. It could also, although this seems the least likely outcome, find a new content, form, and mission.

The most graphic single event to date which focuses the issues and the stakes was the arrest in Belgrade on Nov. 19 of Milovan Djilas, wartime loyal lieutenant of Josip Broze Tito, stormy petrel of the Yugoslav Communist movement, and first important Communist in the world to argue that Communism should abandon its one-party dictatorship concept and permit a revival of political democracy.

Mr. Djilas might have been arrested in Marshal Tito's Yugoslavia long ago. He proposed the end of one-party rule in Yugoslavia in 1953 shortly after the demise of Stalin. This was striking at the political foundation of Marshal Tito's power. In any Communist country such heresy would normally put an end to a political career—at the very least.

In 1954 Mr. Djilas wrote that Communism had become a "synonym for totalitarianism in this country as well as in Russia." He was then expelled from the Yugoslav Communist party's central committee, but still was allowed to live in Belgrade, move about freely, and talk with whom he pleased.

Why, then, was he finally arrested on Nov. 19 of this year?

He had to be arrested because this time he not only was challenging Communist doctrine and Marshal Tito's domestic political foundation but the very foundation of Marshal Tito's foreign policy, upon which he, and Washington diplomats as well, hope to avoid a repetition in other Eastern European countries of the tragedy now found in Hungary. It is an ironical fact, and one which testifies to the vast complexity of the issues at stake, that the arrest of Milovan Djilas in Belgrade produced a sigh of relief audible in the corridors of the State Department in Washington.

Not that anyone there wishes him ill. His views are generally accepted as probably sound. But the expression of such views by Mr. Djilas at this particular time could have played havoc with the peace of the world.

What had he done?

Specifically, he had written an article for the New Leader in New York in which he argued that in the long run "national Communism is only a phase in the evolution and withering away of contemporary Communism" and, conversely, that internal democracy in an Eastern country "is inseparable from complete independence from Moscow."

But if this is true, then President Tito is attempting to perpetrate a fraud on the Kremlin, for the essential Titoist argument in these days is that it is possible for an Eastern European country to enjoy national Communism and still be associated with the Soviet Union.

The Djilas article for the New Leader was printed on Nov. 15 and he was arrested on Nov. 19. Marshal Tito had made a speech at Pula on Nov. 11. It was answered by Moscow, in a long Pravda editorial, on Nov. 23.

The Tito speech of Nov. 11 had criticized the Soviet Union for its original use of troops in Hungary, but had condoned the "second intervention" on the ground that it was a "lesser evil" to the alternative of "chaos, civil war, counter-revolution, and a new world war."

Behind that Titoist argument is the fact that all during the last year Marshal Tito has been urging Moscow to accept "national Communism" in Eastern Europe both as being inevitable and as being the way whereby Moscow could retain friendly power relations with the Eastern European countries.

Marshal Tito argues this to protect himself, to sustain the Polish government, and to gain Moscow's consent for the emergence of "national Communism" in the other satellite countries.

He has been telling Moscow that it is safe, from Moscow's point of view, to permit such a development; that it can trust "Socialist" countries to remain friendly with Moscow even when pursuing their "independent roads to socialism."

If Marshal Tito is right, then Moscow can afford to let Communist leader Wladyslaw Gomulka survive. If Marshal Tito is wrong, then the logic of the proposition would lead Moscow to a repetition of the Hungarian story in Poland, and perhaps in Yugoslavia as well.

From The Washington Post

A boom in the sale of European castles is reported paradoxically at a time when everyone's "castle in Spain" had seemed to be a ranch house with two-car garage, picture window and all the labor-saving gadgets known to electronic science.

Naturally the castle buyers, mostly from North and South America, have much more to invest than do ranch house purchasers. Even so, why are they buying big stone fortresses without central heating or air conditioning, with crude plumbing, if any, with small jail-like windows set in three-foot walls, with primitive kitchens, and with front doors with one-pound keys? Why? Why? Perhaps it is the grandeur of hill-top views. Perhaps it is the privacy castles still afford, even without their moats and drawbridges.

Perhaps it is the sense of feudal grandeur they give their occupants. Perhaps it is desire for indirect association with castle knights, ladies, troubadors and ghosts of the fairy tales.

Or perhaps—it's only good business. For nobility increasingly finds it impossible to support ancestral mansions. And Europe, with its growing hordes of tourists, has a hotel shortage in many places, particularly in Spain.

What could be more simple than to offer somewhat modernized "castle accommodations" to the visitor from Main Street?

Student's Visit to India

FRIENDS AND FELLOW STUDENTS, by Thomas Bruce Morgan. (Crowell, 175 pgs., $5.)

In the summer of 1952 the University Religious Conference, a privately financed, non-denominational group affiliated with U. C. L. A., began sponsorship of an annual trip to India for a carefully selected group of students. Partially financed by the Ford Foundation, the project was designed to foster an exchange of American and Indian cultures at the college level.

This book is an expansion of a report made by a Look writer, who, accompanied by a photographer for the magazine, covered the 1955 tour as a special assignment.

The dozen students making the tour were divided into two six-member teams and, under the guidance of a sponsor, each team undertook a strenuous schedule of visiting, addressing and talking personally with as many Indian students in as many colleges as possible.

All the American students got an embarrassingly warm reception everywhere they went, but the most stunning success was scored by the Negro member of one of the teams.

When he spoke, the author says, "the audience was his, and suddenly the assembly room was filled with a kind of spontaneous warmth and good will that only he was able to create. There was a wave of understanding that passed between them—a 'colored' audience, a colored American. It was a very special and wholesome understanding that is difficult to describe unless you, the reader, happen to be Jewish, Italian, or Irish, in which case you perhaps know the feeling."

The writer, himself a Jew, found no anti-Semitism or other religious prejudice in India. He noted that the set speech of one of the Jewish students, patriotically pointing to the freedom of religious worship enjoyed in America, seemed to fall flat with the Indian audience.

The American students were asked some very provocative questions and gave some very provocative answers. Mr. Morgan observed with a sharp, though sympathetic, eye and ear, and his report makes lively and informative reading.

Plot and Poetry

This is a searching study of the action and language in "Othello," perhaps the most moving of Shakespeare's tragedies. The title is taken from the magical web, a handkerchief embroidered by a prophetess, which gave heroine Desdemona the power to hold Othello's love. It was the mere loss of this handkerchief which set off events leading to the violent death of all but one of the play's half dozen main characters.

To critic Heilman, "magic in the web" takes on a further meaning. We might paraphrase it as "poetry in the plot" since these are the two broad categories he covers. Basically, he considers the theme of love in "Othello" is most significant and this idea underlies his whole study. It would seem that in assuming this he severely limits his outlook; yet, other aspects of the play (war and economics, for example), though minor ones, he manages to discuss thoroughly. The book is excellently balanced by almost equal attention to villain Iago and hero Othello, the first with his "strategies against the spiritual order," the latter with his "readiness in the victim." Rounding out the scholarly presentation are copious notes and index.

"Magic in the Web" is more than what its author calls "one man's reading of 'Othello'." It's a revelation (and in places a provocation) to other readers. Maybe Heilman here and there skips a thread, gets slightly tangled or finds a bit of action or language too knotty to unravel fully. But we suspect that the greatest of plot-weavers, were he alive, would admire the ingenuity of Heilman who so clearly sees the workings of his loom.

CHARLES GUENTHER

WALTER LIPPMANN

U.S. Must See Allies' Side, Too

WASHINGTON.

THERE IS NO DOUBT that the President is most sincerely concerned to repair the break which has opened up within the Atlantic alliance. But if the break is to be repaired, and not merely covered up, the deep cause of it, which is a moral issue, will have to be resolved.

How do we judge the intervention in Egypt? Was it naked aggression against an innocent and law-abiding country? Or was it a reprisal, however unlawful and unwise, against a willful disturber of the peace who has long been in open defiance of the spirit and of the specific orders of the United Nations? Unless we can come to a common judgment of this issue, the spiritual unity of the Western alliance will be broken.

Lippmann.

The just view is, it seems to me, that Britain, France and Israel acted wrongfully but under great provocation. They should not have defied the United Nations, but the United Nations has been unable to defend their vital interests.

Basis for U.S. Policy.

They must leave Egypt but, in view of the provocations, they have the right to be assured that the U.N. will defend their rights.

As this is the justice of the issue, so it should be, I believe, the moral foundation of United States policy.

We should not allow ourselves to remain in the same position, into which we have drifted and been pushed, where the whole weight of our influence is against the wrong done by our allies and no serious part of our influence is against the wrong done to our allies.

The President will be able to repair the break in the alliance when he corrects the one-eyed moral bias upon which his Administration has been acting.

Must Look to Cause.

He will also have a solid and realistic foundation for a practical policy. If he identifies this country with an insistent and resolute demand that the U. N. deal with the problems that caused the explosion, he will make it possible for the British, the French, and the Israelis to withdraw and to comply without dishonor and abject surrender.

This is of the highest importance. For if we do not open up for them an honorable way out of the error into which they were provoked, if we merely compel them and do not persuade them, there will be left in the aftermath a most unhealthy state of mind.

There is an urgent need within the Atlantic alliance for a renewal of confident consultation.

New Explosions Possible.

This will not be possible as long as the moral issue, which I have been trying to describe, is not resolved. The situation in the middle of Europe is far from being stabilized and is full of the most dangerous possibilities.

We must be prepared—and by us I mean the British, the French, ourselves, and the other NATO countries—to see the convulsion, which has engulfed Hungary, break out elsewhere.

If it breaks out in Eastern Germany, as it could and as it may, all of NATO will be faced with grave choices. We have been impotent in Hungary except to protest. But what will our armies in West Germany be doing if East Germany blows up?

Negotiations Should Start.

We must be prepared for that, and we must not be caught by surprise and with no clear policy, which we have concerted with Britain, France, and West Germany. For if what has happened in Hungary were to happen in Germany, we would be nearer than we have ever been since 1945 to being sucked into a great war.

No one now need predict that there will be an outbreak in East Germany. Much can be done to avert one. But there could be an outbreak.

And so great would be the danger that we may say, quite cooly and soberly, that the Western alliance should be prepared to avert it by taking big measures in the near future.

It should be attempting to negotiate with the Russians some kind of working settlement, perhaps only partial and intermediate, about the security of the middle of Europe.

DR. W. E. HENNERICH, HOSPITAL CHIEF, DIES

Physician Had Been Commissioner of City Facilities Since 1949.

Dr. Walter E. Hennerich, hospital commissioner of St. Louis since 1949, died of heart disease early today at DePaul Hospital. He was 65 years old.

The physician, who had been in the city's employ for 15 years, suffered an attack at his home at 5670 Arsenal street shortly after retiring last night. An ambulance was called and a police squad car escorted it to the hospital about midnight. He died within five hours. He had been ill four weeks.

Widely known in hospital circles, Dr. Hennerich served as assistant hospital commissioner here from 1941 until he was appointed commissioner in charge of the city's four hospitals, Malcolm Bliss, City, Homer Phillips and St. Louis Chronic.

Last February, Dr. Hennerich and Mrs. Edward G. Brungard, director of public welfare, prepared plans for improving services for the treatment of mentally ill in the city. The plan was contingent upon the state taking over the care of patients needing prolonged and extensive psychiatric treatment.

Born in St. Louis Dr. Hennerich was graduated from St. Louis University School of Medicine in 1916. He served his internship at City Hospital and was the first intern from that institution to enter the armed services in World War I. He went into the Navy as a lieutenant, junior grade.

Following the war, he joined the United States Public Health Service as a hospital inspector in Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska. In 1921, he entered private practice, specializing in surgery. He was an assistant professor of surgery at St. Louis University School of Medicine and a Fellow in the American College of Surgeons.

In 1945 Dr. Hennerich was awarded a plaque for distinguished service to the city's hospitals by the alumni of City Hospital.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Ethel Hennerich; a daughter, Mrs. John Lemay of Detroit, and a sister, Miss Anna Hennerich. A son, Walter E. Hennerich Jr., died in 1937.

Funeral services will be at 9 a. m. Wednesday at St. Vincent De Paul Church, 1415 South Ninth street, with interment in Calvary Cemetery.

CHRISTIANS CAN'T BE NEUTRAL, POPE SAYS

Tells Philippines Meeting Mankind's Conscience Has Been Defiled.

MANILA, Dec. 3 (AP)—Pope Pius XII told the Filipinos yesterday a true Christian cannot be neutral "while the very conscience of mankind is being assaulted and defiled."

A papal radio broadcast from Vatican City closed the second National Eucharistic Congress of the Philippines, at which a prayer by President Ramon Magsaysay drew criticism from minority religious groups.

Part of the Pope's address was given in English and part in Spanish. His pontifical legate at the Congress, which opened last Wednesday, was Cardinal Francis Spellman, Roman Catholic archbishop of New York.

President Magsaysay, a Catholic, prayed at a pontifical high mass conducted by Cardinal Spellman that Christ would "take under (His) strong and self-giving protection . . . all government agencies whose cooperation is essentail for the progress and prosperity of our republic."

This drew protests from non-Catholic religious spokesmen of the Philippines, the only Roman Catholic nation is Asia. Criticism was voiced by the Moslems, estimated to number 2,000,000 of the nation's 22,000,000 people, the Philippine Independent Church and the Philippine Federation of Christian Churches.

Datu Ahmad Badarrudin, secretary general of the Moslem Association, issued a statement saying that, "as head of a democratic state, President Magsaysay cannot foster a particular sect or religion."

He said Moslems do not question the right of the President to profess his own religion, but that he should not be "subservient to any particular religious dogma as head of the state."

PIANO RECITAL GIVEN BY VIVIAN WILKERSON

Student's Appearance Is Sponsored by Artist Presentation Committee.

By FRANK T. MENENDEZ

Vivian Wilkerson, a young pianist studying under William Schatzkamer in the Washington University Department of Music, gave a piano recital at the Wednesday Club Auditorium yesterday afternoon, sponsored by the Artist Presentation Committee of St. Louis. A small, though very appreciative, audience welcomed this local artist.

The first part of the program included the Liszt transcription of the Bach A minor Organ Prelude and Fugue, in which Miss Wilkerson maintained the evenness required of such contrapuntal writing; the Mozart Fantasia in C Minor, and the Beethoven sonata in A flat, Op. 110. There seemed to be a certain apprehension in these last two works, particularly in the opening of the Beethoven sonata, where some uncertainty as to the speed at which the music should go obscured the expression that Miss Wilkerson was able to put into the final fugue.

Little of this hesitancy, however, was apparent in the second part of the program, when Miss Wilkerson played the Bartok Improvisations, Op. 20, with great clarity and precision. These pieces admirably set off the Chopin group with which she concluded. Miss Wilkerson played these Chopin pieces, F sharp major nocturne, two mazurkas, and the Scherzo in C sharp minor, with efficiency and understanding, and the contrast with the preceding Bartok was well made and stylistically effective.

2000 ATTEND LABOR'S DAY CONCERT AT OPERA HOUSE

About 2000 persons attended the Labor's day concert at Kiel Auditorium Opera House yesterday to hear the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, led by Harry Farbman, and other musical units.

The concert was sponsored by the Central Trades and Labor Union of St. Louis, and proceeds will go for the support of the orchestra. Because of the heavy response to yesterday's concert, the first of its kind, the labor group hopes to present another concert in February or March, a spokesman said.

In addition to the orchestra, a 40-voice mixed chorus of members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union sang two songs. Russ David of Post-Dispatch stations KSD and KSD-TV played several piano numbers.

PROF. O. E. NORTON FUNERAL IS HELD

Washington University Political Science Educator Dies of Heart Ailment.

Funeral services for Oliver Edward Norton, associate professor of political science at Washington University, were held today at the Hilleman undertaking establishment, 9709 Lackland road, Overland. Cremation followed.

Prof. Norton died of a heart ailment Friday night at his home, 2750 Walton road, Normandy. He was 60 years old. He had been teaching a limited schedule at the university this semester and had planned to take a leave of absence next semester for reasons of health.

Prof. Norton was appointed an assistant professor at the university in 1928, and in 1943 was made an associate professor. He previously had taught at the College of the Pacific from 1921 until 1924, at Stanford University from 1924 to 1927, and the following year at Hamline University.

A member of the American Political Science Association, Prof. Norton had been a member of the St. Louis and St. County Committee for Revision of the Missouri Constitution.

His only survivor is a daughter, Mrs. Robert T. Polack of Howell, Mich.

THE REV. DR. N. L. EUWER DIES FOLLOWING A STROKE

Funeral services for the Rev. Dr. Norman L. Euwer will be at the Second Presbyterian Church, 4501 Westminster place, at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow. Dr. Euwer, 79 years old, died yesterday at St. Luke's Hospital, after suffering a stroke at his home Thursday.

Dr. Euwer, who lived at 4557 McPherson avenue, was assistant pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church from 1917 until his retirement in February 1942. He also served as the stated clerk of the Missouri Presbyterian Synod until last month. Prior to coming to St. Louis, he was a missionary for nine year in Iran, and following his return from the Middle East, he held a pastorate for five years in Pennsylvania.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Campbell Euwer; his daughter, Mrs. Verne Roberts of Wichita, Kan., and six grandchildren. Interment will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

400,000 TAKE SACRED BATHS IN HINDU CEREMONY

KURUKSHETRA, North India, Dec. 3 (AP) — More than 400,000 persons took sacred baths here yesterday as Hindus observed a partial eclipse of the sun as a symbol of good triumphing over evil.

Kurukshetra—one of India's holy cities, where an artificial lake about half a mile square is the main bathing place—is the site of a legendary battlefield where Hindu gods of good once defeated those of evil. Hindus consider solar eclipses fights between good and evil. The end of the eclipse is considered to represent the final triumph of good.

Because of this view, Hindus observe eclipses with sacred baths. They try to come to Kurukshetra because the bath at Kurukshetra is considered, during an eclipse, to be a thousand times more sacred than any other. However, thousands bathed in sacred rivers elsewhere in India.

FUNERAL TO BE TOMORROW FOR SISTER M. NICOLA

Funeral services for Sister M. Nicola of the Order of St. Francis will be held at the convent at Oldenburg, Ind., tomorrow. Sister Nicola, a former St. Louisan whose maiden name was Mary Schroeder, died last Friday in Indianapolis. She was a member of the Order of St. Francis for 52 years.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Helen Pohlmann and Mrs. Gesina Behrman, both of St. Louis. Burial will be in the St. Francis cemetery at Oldenburg.

MRS. R. L. CROWLEY, EDITOR'S WIFE, DIES

Funeral Services to Be Wednesday at St. Louis Cathedral.

Mrs. Raymond L. Crowley, wife of the managing editor of the Post-Dispatch, died of a heart ailment today at DePaul Hospital.

She was 62 years old and lived at the Greystone Apartments, 410 North Newstead avenue. She and her husband came to St. Louis in 1922 from Minneapolis. Born in Minneapolis, Mrs. Crowley was the former Alice Golden.

Surviving, in addition to her husband, are two sons, John R. Crowley and Raymond L. Crowley Jr., both of St. Louis; two daughters, Mrs. James M. Clark of St. Louis and Dr. Jean C. Antonmattei; her mother, Mrs. Marian Grimes of San Diego, Calif., and 16 grandchildren.

Raymond Crowley Jr. is assistant editor of the Post-Dispatch TV magazine. Dr. Antonmattei is deputy health commissioner at Milwaukee, Wis. John R. Crowley is president of Crowley, Barclay, Sheridan & Associates, Inc., a St. Louis insurance agency.

Beginning tonight, the body will be at the Arthur J. Donnelly undertaking establishment, 3840 Lindell boulevard. Funeral services will be at 9 am. Wednesday at St. Louis Cathedral. Burial will be in Resurrection Cemetery.

EDWARD BOKERN GEISEL DIES IN SANTA MONICA, CALIF.

Edward Bokern Geisel, retired salesman and special representative for Anheuser-Busch Inc., died today at his home in Santa Monica, Calif. He was 72 years old. He retired after 50 years with the company, and moved to Santa Monica.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Margaret Fay Geisel; a daughter, Mrs. Marshall Salmon of Santa Monica, and two sisters, Mrs. Arthur A. Blumeyer of St. Louis, and Mrs. Charles Franz of Little Rock, Ark.

Carroll A. Gunderson Dies.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Carroll A. Gunderson, an officer of the American Bankers Association, died last night of a heart attack. He was 59 years old.

FOUR CANCER DRESSING GROUPS TO GET AWARDS

Awards will be presented to four dressing groups of the St. Louis and St. Louis county units of the American Cancer Society at a 1 p.m. meeting Thursday at Hotel Melbourne. Each group has been dressing bandages for more than five years.

Speakers at the meeting will include Dr. George A. Carroll, member of the board of the American Cancer Society; Mrs. Marcella Cohen, executive director of the Visiting Nurse Association and Mrs. Harry Wuertenbaecher, chairman of the society's service committee. They will discuss various phases of the association's service program and the care of cancer patients.

Dr. Thomas S. Arbuthnot Dies.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 3 (AP)—Dr. Thomas S. Arbuthnot, president of the Carnegie Hero Fund and former dean of the medical school at the University of Pittsburgh, died yesterday. He was 85 years old.

'MET' TO ATTEMPT TO KEEP TENOR OFF TV PROGRAM

© New York Times News Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 — The Metropolitan Opera took preliminary steps over the weekend in its efforts to prevent an appearance by Richard Tucker in Sol Hurok's "Festival of Music" over the National Broadcasting Co. television network next Monday night. Lincoln W. Lauterstein, attorney for the Metropolitan, said yesterday that papers were in the process of preparation for seeking an injunction.

The Metropolitan has maintained that Tucker, in appearing on the TV program, would be competing with the opera company, which has a performance the same evening. The tenor's contract with the Metropolitan provides that he cannot engage in outside activities "without written consent of the association." It also specifies, however, that permission "shall not be unreasonably withheld."

AMVETS CONDUCT ANNUAL PEARL HARBOR SERVICES

Services in remembrance of Pearl Harbor were conducted by the Missouri Department of Amvets for the tenth consecutive year. State Commander Lewis Pruitt, Poplar Bluff, officiated at the ceremony at the monument to World War II dead in Memorial Plaza.

A wreath was placed at the monument base by Pruitt and Mrs. Marion Ross, state president of Amvets auxiliary. The honor guard of Greater St. Louis Amvets presented arms while Andrew Sgroi, deputy state commander, sounded taps.

Benediction was given by the Rev. E. S. Filipiak, an Amvet chaplain. The ceremony was attended by about 100 persons.

LEO B. WEINER PLACES THIRD IN NATIONAL BRIDGE TOURNEY

Leo B. Weiner, St. Louis bridge teacher, placed third among 328 players last night in the contest for the national open individual bridge championship at New Orleans. He scored 374½ points.

Israel Cohen, Washington, D.C., won the title with a score of 379½ points, edging Said Haddad, McLean, Va., by just half a point.

About 1000 players from the United States, Canada, Mexico and the British West Indies are participating in the winter tournament conducted by the American Contract Bridge League.

GRACE KELLY STREET OPENED

MONTE CARLO, Dec. 3 (UP)—Monte Carlo gave a boulevard to its princess yesterday. The city officially opened Grace Kelly boulevard. The princess herself inaugurated the thoroughfare by snipping a red and white ribbon.

Then she and Prince Ranier rode down the street in their Rolls-Royce limousine—another gift from the principality.

LOUISVILLE SCHOOLS BAR SEGREGATIONIST

Non-Resident Youth Who Opposes Integration Not Allowed to Enroll.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 3 (AP)—A 17-year-old boy who says he opposes forced integration was refused permission today to enroll at Louisville Male High School.

Billy Branham, who came here from Detroit, walked into the office at Male, displayed a handful of cash, and said he was prepared to pay the non-resident tuition—$254.64.

Male's assistant principal, C. W. Knudson, declined to accept it or enroll him, citing a "clear ruling of my superiors."

After being turned down by Knudson, the youth went to the Board of Education offices where his tuition fee again was rejected.

City school Superintendent Omer Carmichael, after refusing Branham permission to enroll last week because he was a non-resident, repeated his stand yesterday.

Carmiachel, who won praise from President Eisenhower for the smooth integration of public schools this fall, said: "Billy has publicly stated his purpose to work against established policies of our schools . . . to accept him would be to set a precedent which would enable troublemakers in any number from anywhere to enroll in our schools."

Young Branham told Knudson, "I have been called a troublemaker. Here's the kind of troublemaker I am."

Then he produced documents which he said showed he was not a troublemaker but a good student.

One of them certified his election to the National Forensic League chapter at Cass Technical High School, Detroit, for "praiseworthy participation in high school speech activity," dated 1956. Another was a home room "honor certificate" for "highest citizenship" for the semester ending June 24, 1954, from Jefferson Intermediate School, Detroit.

Three elderly adults came to the school office at the same time as young Branham today, but he said they had not accompanied him to the school. They declined to identify themselves.

5000 Children Are Entertained At Famous-Barr's Annual Party

Santa Claus and All the Trimmings Are Provided for Handicapped Youngsters —Extra Troupes Tour Hospitals.

The seventeenth annual Famous-Barr Christmas party for crippled and handicapped children took place yesterday. Like many occasions in celebration of the Nativity, it was a mixture of joy and sadness. The children themselves had a wonderful time, and for the adults present the party was, as usual, an experience that came very close to the spirit of Christmas.

Blind and crippled children were whisked by elevator to the Exhibition Hall of the downtown store, which had been converted into a holiday wonderland. Other children came up the escalators. They found themselves in a room decked in silver ribbon, with animated lions and seals at either side of the stage, and Christmas music playing.

A troupe headed by Santa Claus, and including a magnificent clown, a dog act, a magician, a unicyclist and a burlesque boxing match, put on five 30-minute shows. That was at the store. Two extra troupes, each equipped with a Santa Claus, visited six hospitals and institutions during the day. In all, 5000 children joined the fun.

An Extra Treat.

Those young guests who came downtown had an advantage, because in addition to seeing the show they had the privilege, afterwards, of filing—or being pushed or led — through the aisles of the toy department on the floor below. That department was fully manned and brightly illuminated. The electric trains were running, the toy dogs were barking, and the dolls were crying and doing a lot of other things, such as blowing soap bubbles.

Troupes that visited hospitals and institutions gave each child a Santa Claus comic book, a toy appropriate to his age and a Christmas stocking filled with candy. At the store, children received the same. For their gifts, they went past three windows shaped like grinning clowns' faces.

The gifts were handed out neatly wrapped. Many children could not wait to open them. Some compromised, as did Jacqueline Miller, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Miller, 1417 South Seventh street. Jacqueline, a pretty, red-haired child with a brace on her left leg, unwrapped her present enough to see that it was a game.

More Eager Guest.

More eager was Stephen Winters, 6, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Winters, 6809 Eisle street, Berkeley, who got a pair of binoculars. Young Stephen, paralyzed from the waist down, was in a wheel chair. In the procession through the toy department, Stephen went strongly for a plastic robot that walked back and forth.

"Hey, Mommie, I want that," the boy said, in a request that was echoed often during the day as children passed the gleaming shelves and racks of toys. The robot was operated by Mrs. Ethel Hall of Cahokia, one of 500 Famous-Barr employes who volunteered their services to help with the party.

The volunteer hosts and hostesses, who acted as guides, helped give out the presents, kept things moving generally and served as escorts for children needing help, were not all company employes. Mrs. Irma Friede, a member of the St. Louis Board of Education, was pushing a wheel chair. She has missed only one year since the parties began.

Plenty Volunteers.

Beaming in the wings was Morton J. May, board chairman of May Department Stores Co., which operates Famous-Barr. Stanley J. Goodman, general manager of the store, said: "This is something we never have trouble getting volunteers for." There was a turkey dinner for all workers at noon in the cafeteria.

Most of the badly crippled children, the poliomyelitis and cerebral palsy victims, attended the first show. Their wheel chairs formed rows in front. Ollie Sandel at the organ and Uncle Otto Griebling, the clown, had them singing and cheerful between acts. The excitement could hardly be contained when the great man himself, Santa Claus, finally came on stage and boomed:

"I wish you all a very merry Christmas!"

Howard Becker of Famous-Barr's advertising department, a volunteer Santa of seven years' experience, reported that his traveling troupe got the most enthusiastic reception of his career.

"When you see those kids' eyes light up, it does something to you," Becker said during a lunch break. He had a new nylon beard this year, not nearly as hot to wear as the one he had in 1955.

The blind children attended the 1:30 p.m. performance. They were a little late in arriving, providing an interim during which Uncle Otto, the clown, kept the other children amused. Finally the blind came in, some of them escorted individually and others hand in hand. There was a rousing chorus of "Jingle Bells" as they took their seats.

This scene was particularly affecting, to some observers at least. A cute little girl of 3 or 4, wearing a red woolen cap, sat down and at first her head was bowed and she had the blank stare the blind sometimes have. When "Santa Claus is Coming to Town" was struck up, she brightened, broke into a smile and began to clap her hands. It was apparent that everything was going to be all right.

Glenn Munson of the toy department and several of his colleagues organized an impromptu glee club that serenaded departing children. One of their songs, accompanied by guitar and maraceas, was the Mexican one in which people are urged to sing rather than weep, a piece of advice which the young people did not need at all.

munist administration and failure to keep pace with the demands of the people led to the revolt in Hungary. But he made it clear Peiping backed the Soviet intervention as a necessity. Nehru publicly has taken the stand that Communism itself failed in Hungary and that that was one of the most important aspects of the story of Hungary. Chou indicated clearly that New Delhi and Peiping saw Hungary differently.

No Designs on Nepal.

Nepal: Chou told the Indians that the Chinese had no designs on Nepal.

All this is what the Indians are willing at present to have the world know about the Nehru-Chou talks. It is obvious that there is more to the story, information and impressions that Nehru will save for President Eisenhower.

Informed Indians dismiss the idea that the Nehru-Eisenhower talks will result in any dramatic changes in relations between Peiping and Washington or even that that will be the Indian Prime Minister's goal. They say that talks cannot in themselves remove such differences as Washington's opposition to Communist China's admission to the United Nations and Washington's fundamental worries about the growth of Chinese Communist military power in Asia.

What Nehru will aim at apparently is to get across to President Eisenhower his own belief that the Chinese Communists need such a long period of peace to develop internally that they do not present an active military threat.

RUSSIA'S TRUST SHAKEN IN OWN, SATELLITE ARMIES

among the students and workers that the trouble in the satellites started. For example, an entire class at Moscow University walked out on a lecturer who was parrotting the official line on Hungary.

The ferment reached a point where Krushchev a few days ago felt compelled to go to the university to read the assembled students the riot act, in effect threatening them with the salt mines if they went too far.

In the Baltic states "Russkies go home" signs have appeared on walls and anti-Soviet underground leaflets have been circulated. Elsewhere in the Soviet Union, there has been the kind of sudden open grumbling against the regime which preceded the Poznan riots and the Hungarian uprising.

Such small signs do not mean that there is any likelihood of another Hungary within the Soviet Union itself. No qualified judge believes this possible, although further uprisings in the satellites—above all East Germany—are not to be ruled out. Moreover, although the satellite uprisings hurt the Soviets badly, they hurt the West, too, for they proved once and for all to the satellite people that the West would do nothing effective to help liberate them.

Finally, there is no doubt at all that, in case of further trouble anywhere in their empire, the Soviet rulers have both the will and the means to "make a desert and call it peace," as they have done in Hungary. But when these things are said it must also be said that the newly revealed weaknesses in the Soviet system are real, and that they run deep.

When someone's counting on you...
you can count on life insurance

Life insurance actually provides two forms of protection. First, it enables you to protect your family now. And at the same time, it builds added security for you when you retire. It's money you can count on.

This year, for example, retired men and women will receive millions of dollars from their life insurance companies—either from annuities or their life insurance policies. Annuities alone are now providing more than $400 million a year in income to the American people.

You may be able to use your present life insurance policies to provide income for your retirement. The best person to explain how this may be done is your own life insurance agent.

You will also find helpful suggestions in the new booklet, Your Life Insurance—and How to Use It, which we have prepared as a service to America's policyholders. Your free copy will be mailed promptly; simply send your name and address on a postcard to Dept. D.

GEN. LEWIS A. PICK OF ENGINEERS DIES

Drew Up Pick-Sloan Missouri Valley Flood Control Plan.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) —Lt. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, former chief of Army Engineers and builder of the Ledo Road from India to China in World War II, died yesterday at Walter Reed Army Hospital. He was 66 years old.

Gen. Pick retired in February 1953 after serving four years as Army Engineers chief and 36 years in the Corps of Engineers.

He entered Walter Reed Nov. 9 after an operation at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Gen. Pick became chief of Army Engineers March 1, 1949. He retired Nov. 30, 1952, but was recalled and continued in that post until February 1953.

The world first heard of Gen. Pick when Gen. Joseph Stilwell chose him to build a truck road from northwest India through Burma into China.

He supervised the work of some 45,000 persons in constructing the road through 438 miles of jungle. The road, used to supply United States and Chinese troops in the India-Burma theater, was completed in 57 days.

They called it "Pick's Pike."

Gen. Pick served as engineer of the Missouri River Division, Omaha, from 1945 until 1949 after a brief assignment in the office of the Chief of Army Engineers at the close of World War II.

Gen. Pick and Glenn Sloan of the Bureau of Reclamation, drew up a comprehensive plan for a Missouri river valley flood control and water conservation program which was known as the Pick-Sloan plan.

Gen. Pick was graduated from Virginia Polytechnic Institute in 1914 as a civil engineer. He enlisted in the Army at the outbreak of World War I and was commissioned a first lieutenant in the Corps of Engineers in 1917.

Funeral services and burial will be Thursday at Auburn, Ala., where Gen. Pick made his home. He is survived by his wife; a son, Capt. Lewis A. Pick Jr. of the Army Engineers, and one granddaughter.

Since his retirement from active duty, Gen. Pick had been Alabama industrial development director and was also chairman of the board of John J. Harte Co., an Atlanta architectural and engineering firm.

FRENCH SOCIALISTS REFUSE TO CONDEMN EGYPTIAN WAR

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 3 (AP) —The French delegation walked out of a Socialist International meeting yesterday to protest a resolution condemning the invasion of Egypt.

The resolution was introduced by Hugh Gaitskell, leader of Britain's Socialist Labor party. One French delegate commented: "We do not want to be condemned for reasons of English internal policy." The implication was that Gaitskell presented the resolution as political ammunition against the Conservative Eden government.

The resolution, condemning the use of armed force in the Middle East as a breach of the United Nations charter and of U.N. resolutions, was adopted without opposition. Eight of 13 nations present with voting rights voted for the part condemning armed intervention in Egypt. The others, including Israelis, abstained. The resolution also called for "unconditional withdrawal of British, French and Israeli forces from Egyptian territories."

Lenin-Stalin Tomb Closed.

MOSCOW, Dec. 3 (UP)—The Lenin-Stalin marble mausoleum in Red Square has been closed to the public "until further notice," it was revealed today. No reason was given for the closing.

ON INAUGURAL COMMITTEE

Three state Senators from St. Louis—John W. Joynt, James Webbe and Robert Pentland—and Senator Gary Davidson of St. Louis county were among 18 Senators named to the Missouri inauguration committee last night by Senator Floyd R. Gibson who has been designated president pro tem of the Senate.

State Representative Roy Hamlin of Hannibal, speaker of the House, will appoint 18 representatives to the committee. Gov.-elect James T. Blair Jr. and other state officials will be inaugurated Jan. 14.

3 HUNTERS FIND MAIL POUCH WITH MISSING $44,000

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 3 (AP)—Three young hunters found $44,000 in dollar bills missing from a mail shipment since Sept. 6, postal inspectors announced last night.

Emmet E. Harding, chief inspector in the Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi postal division, said the mail pouch was found Saturday by Ingram Mitchell, his brother, William Mitchell, and Edward Chamblee of Leighton, Ala.

The youths reported they found the pouch wedged under a wire fence bordering the right-of-way of the Southern Railway a mile east of Leighton, a small village near Sheffield. The pouch was locked and undamaged.

Harding and his first assistant J. Robert Sims, said they feel certain the pouch had not been where it was found more than a few days. The boys who found it, they said, told of hunting over the same ground Nov. 21 without seeing it.

"Whoever had it probably decided it was too hot to hold and placed it where it could be found," Sims said.

MAYOR TUCKER WINS AWARD OF BUS, TRUCK ASSOCIATION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 3—Presentation of the Missouri Bus & Truck Association's "good citizenship award" for 1956 to Mayor Raymond R. Tucker of St. Louis was announced today at the nineteenth annual convention of the association here. The award is given annually to a Missourian in recognition of outstanding public service.

Tucker was unable to be present to receive the award because of the strike of garbage collectors and drivers in St. Louis. Roy F. Reed, president of the association, announced the award, which will be given the Mayor later in St. Louis.

Tucker was cited for his contribution in bringing modern transportation facilities to Missouri's largest city and his efforts for civic improvements of all kinds. These efforts, the citation read, "always will be a living memorial to your energy, foresight, ability and statesmanship." Reed praised, as Tucker's "greatest achievement in transportation," his leadership in overcoming "inertia and opposition" to a modern system of expressways for the nation's eighth largest city.

TOXICOLOGIST SAYS DORSEY HAD TAKEN SLEEPING PILLS

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 3 (UP)—A toxicologist reported today that band leader Tommy Dorsey took enough sleeping pills to "knock himself unconscious" before he choked to death on food particles a week ago.

Dr. Abraham Stolman, chief toxicologist of the state health department, declined to say whether the band leader had swallowed a sufficient quantity of nembutal to kill him. "That's for the coroner to decide," he said.

Dr. Stolman said that Dorsey had taken about six grains of the barbiturate. He said "the usual sedative amount prescribed by a doctor is a couple of capsules which contain a grain and one-half each." He said a person could take six grains and survive but probably would go into a coma "for a day or so."

WOMAN IS FOUND HANGED

The body of Mrs. Rudolf O. Dietzschold was found yesterday by her husband hanging in the basement of their home at 1443 Lyndale avenue, University City. She was 47 years old. A note was left saying she intended to take her life.

Her husband told police she had been under treatment for a nervous condition and was released from a hospital two weeks ago.

RULES BOTH DRIVERS IN CRASH WERE DRUNK

City Judge Fines Two and Suspends Driving Licenses for 90 Days.

Both drivers were intoxicated, Police Judge Robert G. Dowd decided today after hearing evidence about an automobile collision at Third and Victor streets on Oct. 25.

Joseph Baker, 331 Lemp avenue, said he had drunk "two or three beers," and Clifford Green, 3430A Oregon avenue, said he had "about five glasses of beer," but both insisted they were not drunk. Police testified that each driver walked unsteadily, talked incoherently and smelled of alcohol.

The two were fined $150 each for driving when intoxicated and their driving licenses were suspended for 90 days. Baker, who was fined an additional $50 for careless driving, appealed his conviction.

William R. O'Neill, 1917 South Eighth street, was sentenced to serve 30 days for drunken driving, pay a $100 fine for careless driving and pay $2 for driving without a city license. In addition, his driver's license was suspended for 90 days.

Mrs. Jessie Wehrle, 3154 Michigan avenue, testified that she was driving west on Lafayette avenue near Tenth street on Aug. 25 when O'Neill's machine crashed headon into hers. Two children riding with her were injured. O'Neill appealed the case.

NAMED CHAIRMAN OF BOARD

Herman T. Pott founder and former president of the St. Louis Shipbuilding and Steel Co. has been named to fill the newly created office of chairman of the board of directors, it was announced today.

Arthur R. Parsons, formerly vice president and chief engineer, was named president. Also named to new positions were Edgar H. Enslin, as a director of the corporation, and Edward Renshaw, who succeeds Parsons as chief engineer.

'THIN MAN' ROBBER HANGS HIMSELF IN NEWARK JAIL

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 3 (AP) —Henry Weber, Newark's "thin man" holdup man of the 1930s, hanged himself in Essex county jail yesterday.

The 64-year-old man was nicknamed the "thin man" in 1936 after a string of 30 holdups. He had spent 18 of the last 20 years in state prison, being paroled last March.

He started looking for work but told detectives Saturday, "Everywhere they said I was too old or my record was against me." Jobless and broke, Weber bought a revolver, tried to hold up the Consumer Finance Co. in East Orange Friday, and wound up in jail.

ACCUSED IN 3 POISON DEATHS, HANGS SELF

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Dec. 3 (UP)—A 72-year-old man accused of killing three members of a fruit-picker's family by putting arsenic in their cistern hanged himself in his jail cell today.

The suspect, William F. Knighton, of Bolivar, W. Va., committed suicide after he was formally charged with murder in the arsenic deaths of J. S. Kidwell and his one and two-year-old sons at Kearneysville, W. Va.

State police trooper J. E. Durst said Knighton, arrested last night, denied he was responsible for the poisonings, but an investigation revealed Knighton, an unemployed widower, was infatuated with Mollie Kidwell, 13, eldest of 11 Kidwell children, and was angry because the girl had jilted him, Durst said.

Knighton was placed in a cell in the Jefferson county jail early today. About mid-morning he was found dead, hanged in a noose he had fashioned from strips from the mattress on his bed and thrown over the top of the bars in the cell door. Apparently he climbed atop a radiator, placed the noose around his neck and jumped off.

Durst said the man's ankles and wrists were cut, indicating he had first tried to kill himself with a razor blade.

Police said it was established that Knighton purchased two quarts of weed-killer containing 38 per cent arsenic in November at a hardware store here. They theorized that he poured the poison in a cistern on the Kidwell farm on Nov. 10 while the Kidwells were away from home.

Two days later, all 11 members of the family turned themselves in at a Hagerstown (Md.) hospital, Charles, 2, and Thomas, 1, died within 24 hours. Kidwell died Thanksgiving day.

All of the other members of the family were made ill by the poison after drinking water from the cistern. Mollie was in the most serious condition, but all are recovering in the hospital.

REPEAL OF TRANSPORTATION, COMMUNICATION TAX URGED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Excise taxes on transportation and communications came under fire from business and farm groups today as wartime emergency measures for which the emergency no longer exists.

Several witnesses urged repeal of the taxes in testimony to a House Ways and Means subcommittee. Groups from the West Coast described the transportation taxes as discriminatory. Florida fruit and vegetable growers said both levies amounted to taxes on food.

A spokesman for independent telephone companies said it was discrimination of the rankest sort to impose the 10 per cent excise tax on telephone service.

POLISH REDS BID FOR FRIENDSHIP OF U.S., FRANCE

WARSAW, Dec. 3 (AP)—Trybuna Ludu, organ of the United Workers (Communist) party, called today for an independent foreign policy in line with Poland's national interests.

Previous Polish foreign policy, the paper said, has been "always and everywhere" identified with the Soviet Union and it is now time to develop friendship with the countries of western Europe "where we long had a fund of sympathy," particularly France, Poland's traditional European ally.

"Nor must we forget the traditional friendship of the American and Polish nations, reaching back to the beginnings of the United States," the paper added.

Trybuna Ludu said a foreign policy based on these considerations, while at the same time seeking strengthened friendship with the Soviet Union, could "bring great profit, not merely for Poland but for peaceful coexistence in Europe and the world."

URGES INTERNATIONALIZING OIL, URANIUM, AVIATION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—A speaker over the Voice of America yesterday suggested that non-Communist nations internationalize the great basic industries of petroleum, uranium and civil aviation as a first step toward organizing a world federation.

The proposal came from Prof. Salvador de Madariaga y Rojo, Spanish writer who now lives in England. He spoke as one of a series of international authorities taking part in a weekly broadcast series, "The Frontiers of Knowledge and Humanity's Hopes for the Future."

De Madariaga said the Communists seek to reduce all men to the quality of "grains of sand in a desert." Nationalists, he said, treat men as "herds" of animals and are "incapable of rising above the interests and powers of their own kith and kin."

PRO-BOND LEAFLETS GIVEN TO UNIVERSITY CITY PUPILS

Children in University City public schools today were given handbills urging their parents to vote tomorrow on the school board's bond issue proposal for $3,875,000 for additional school facilities.

In addition, principals of all schools were given fact-sheets designed to answer questions the board thinks will be asked by most parents about the bond issue. A two-thirds majority is necessary for passage.

Opponents of the proposal say if passed the bond issue will give the school board a "blank check for the next six years." They pointed out that a survey made by a Chicago concern reported no immediate necessity was found for additional classrooms. A second survey by the same firm, however, concluded that 58 more classrooms are needed.

TAKES LEAD BY 4 VOTES

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Dec. 3 (UP)—Republican Christopher Del Sesto took a slim four-vote lead over Democratic Gov. Dennis J. Roberts today in Rhode Island's "overtime" gubernatorial election.

Del Sesto's slight lead was based on the latest count of civilian absentee ballots by the State Board of Elections. The board is expected to complete its count of civilian absentee votes tomorrow. Another 3000 shut-in votes and some 4000 G.I. ballots also have to be counted.

BOARD ASKS U.S. TO HELP ENFORCE SEGREGATION BAR

Clinton (Tenn.) Group Calls on Brownell for Aid, Threatens to Close School.

CLINTON, Tenn., Dec. 3 (AP) —The Anderson County School Board told the Federal Government today it had reached the end of its rope in trying to enforce racial integration at Clinton High School and asked for help.

In a letter to United States Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., the board said it might become necessary to close the school witin five days unless the Government comes in to enforce a federal court integration order.

All of the 10 Negro pupils still enrolled remained away from classes since last Tuesday after reporting white students had thrown stones and eggs at them. None showed up for classes today and no disorders were reported as classes were resumed for the week. Principal D. J. Brittain Jr. said, "I believe they will stay out this week."

Hoxie (Ark.) Case Cited.

(In Washington, Government attorneys indicated a belief that the Clinton board should go to the federal court as was done by the Hoxie (Ark.) school board when strife arose over its racial integration program.

(In response to an inquiry, a spokesman for Brownell said: "Of course we cannot comment on the communication from the Clinton board until it has been received. Meanwhile, we would like to call attention to the Hoxie (Ark.) case."

(Hoxie was the first community in the south to attempt integration. After Negro children were absorbed into a previously all-white school in Hoxie, there were demonstrations. The school board went to the United States district court and obtained an injunction against first interference. At that point, the Justice Department intervened as "a friend of the court" to support the Hoxie board.

(The district court injunction was recently upheld by the United States circuit court in St. Louis.

First in Tennessee.

Clinton high was the first state-supported school to be integrated in Tennessee. The county has no high school for Negroes and parents of the Negroes have indicated they will turn down a school board offer to transport the boys and girls to a Negro high school in Knoxville, 20 miles away.

Today's action was taken at 7:30 a.m., before school opened.

Brittain told a press conference following the board meeting that he felt the board "took the strongest action it could have taken" in drafting the letter to the department of justice.

He added that he believed the only way to enforce the integration order was for the Federal Government "to put people in here, get information and prosecute people."

The principal blamed the Tennessee White Youth Council, organized at the school last month, for recent racial strife.

"Since it was organized, I've had trouble with about 50 students," he said.

Letter to Brownell.

The letter to Brownell said: "The school board of Anderson county has conscientiously done all in its power to comply with the direction of the" United States District Court in Knoxville, which ordered the integration last Jan. 4.

"This has been done, contrary to our convictions on the matter and in the face of constant criticism and harassment from our fellow citizens. . . . The Anderson county school board must know whether the Department of Justice intends to continue lack of enforcement of the federal court injunction (against interfering with integration). If so, it might become necessary to close the Clinton high school so long as we are under order to abolish segregation."

An Election Issue.

Clinton holds a municipal election tomorrow, and the race question has become a chief issue.

Handbills indorsing candidates approved by segregationists were circulated over the weekend. As a result, Clyde F. Brewer has withdrawn as a candidate for alderman, explaining he not want to be obligated to any group or clique.

Mayor W. E. Lewallen is not a candidate for re-election.

One question on the handbill read: "If elected, will you work to maintain separation of the races and racial segregation in all public institutions and facilities in Clinton?"

None of the 10 attended classes today.

The admission of the Negroes among 800 white pupils Aug. 27 was followed by a week of increasing crowds and disorders, climaxed by arrival of state troopers and national guardsmen Labor day weekend.

One board member said last night, "We just don't have the police power to implement this injunction."

He said, however, that the policing was not needed inside the school, adding: "All the trouble is coming from the outside—it's being planned and there and then handed down to the students."

EMPLOYMENT IN MISSOURI

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 3 (AP)—Missouri had 5500 more workers in non-farm jobs in October than September, but 4500 fewer than in October a year ago.

The figures were reported today by Gordon P. Weir, state employment security division director. The October job total reached 1,291,700 and Weir said part of the gain over September came when automobile plant workers returned to their jobs after a layoff during re-tooling.

MERCHANT BEATEN, BUT FOILS HOLDUP

East St. Louis Grocer Resists Two and They Flee Empty Handed.

Michael Simon, operator of a grocery at 1218 Gaty avenue, East St. Louis, was severely beaten yesterday by one of two robbers who fled from the store empty handed when Simon resisted.

Simon told police the two men, Negroes, entered the grocery and asked for certain articles. When he came from behind the counter to fill one request, one of the men produced a two-foot length of pipe with which he struck the 69-year-old grocer repeatedly. When Simon resisted the men ran.

He was treated by a private physician and returned to the quarters he and his wife occupy above the store.

Taylor Greer, a bus driver for the East St. Louis City Lines, reported the loss of $68 to an armed robber in his bus last night. Greer said he was driving south in Broadway in East St. Louis and had just made a boulevard stop at Sixth street when the lone passenger, a Negro, produced a .32-caliber revolver and took Greer's money changer and reserve cash box. Greer lives at 713 North Thirty-first street, East St. Louis.

Another driver for the same company, Jerry Pathenos, 1827 Baugh avenue, East St. Louis, reported a thief took his reserve cash box containing $26 in quarters and nickels from his bus while it was parked briefly in front of 310 East Broadway.

Pathenos said he left the empty bus for a short time to go into a nearby restaurant. He took his money changer with him but found the cash box missing on his return.

TECHNICIANS NEEDED, U.S. OFFICIAL SAYS

180 Required for Every 100 Scientists and Engineers, Speaker Asserts.

The country is facing a growing demand for trained technicians to support the work of scientists and engineers, Seymour L. Wolfbein said here today at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson. He stated that for every 100 scientists and engineers there is a need for 180 technicians such as laboratory workers, skilled machinists, clerks and typists.

Wolfbein, chief of the division of manpower and employment statistics of the federal Department of Labor, advised persons attending a meeting on technical education being held in conjunction with the American Vocational Association convention here, to be ready to meet a growing demand in this field.

The statistician estimated that by 1965 there will by 10,000,000 new jobs in this country. Of this number one-half will be for women. Nearly half of the new workers are now in elementary schools, he said, and their education for future jobs is not yet completed.

One problem in training persons vocationally is that it is often difficult to decide whether to give them a general background for a variety of similar jobs or to prepare him for a specific task, Wolfbein said.

Cecil E. Stanley, assistant commissioner for education in Nebraska, said here yesterday that America should imitate Russia and expand its training of highly skilled technicians. This can relieve scientists and engineers from routine duties and permit them to concentrate on more challenging work.

Stanley, a panelist on a Board of Education television program on KWK-TV, explained that too many American engineers are now doing relatively simple technical jobs that do not make the best use of their ability. Russia has a reported 2,500,000 students in two-year technical colleges, training to relieve engineers for more difficult work, he asserted.

The American Vocational Association, an organization of teachers, administrators and others interested in vocational education, will open the general session of its fiftieth anniversary convention Wednesday at Kiel Auditorium. Other organizations interested in special aspects of vocational education began holding preliminary meetings Saturday.

NEW WAGE PROPOSAL MADE TO TELEPHONE WORKERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (UP)—Negotiations between the AFL-CIO Communications Workers of America and the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. adjourned early today to permit union consideration of a new wage proposal. Exact terms of the proposal were not disclosed. An A.T.&T. spokesman said the negotiations would be resumed late today.

The spokesman said bargainers had agreed on "a few points" since the marathon session began at 5:30 p.m. yesterday. The negotiators recessed their talks at 1 a.m. to caucus and met again from 3:30 to 4:55 a.m.

The union's contract expired at midnight last Tuesday. The union's 25,000 members voted overwhelmingly to authorize a strike. The union represents long distance operators and maintenance personnel in 42 states and the District of Columbia.

PAKISTAN WON'T BE WEAK, ISOLATED, PREMIER SAYS

LAHORE, Pakistan, Dec. 3 (AP)—Premier H. S. Suhrawardy said yesterday "neutrality in global war means shutting the eyes to reality, while in peace it means merely blackmail."

Addressing a student meeting here, he said recent world events have shown it is well nigh impossible to live without friends and promised that while he held office Pakistan would not become weak, friendless and isolated.

"Even strong countries, like the United States and the U.S.S.R. are seeking and making friends and alliances all 'round," he said. "Weakness and isolation invite aggression, in spite of the best intentions of the weak and the isolated."

CLASSES CHANGED, TO HEAR GODFREY, FACULTY OBJECTS

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J., Dec. 3 (AP)——Rescheduling of classes at Rutgers University so students can hear entertainer Arthur Godfrey in a seminar on air power brought opposition from some professors today.

One spokesman for the professors, Richard Schlatter of the history department, wrote in a letter to the university newspaper, The Targum:

"That a university which claims to be seriously interested in intellectual excellence . . . should extend an official invitation . . . to Mr. Godfrey is scarcely believable.

"May we expect that in the future other departments will receive official blessing when they invite Elvis Presley and Liberace to appear at a university concert and Lloyd Douglas, (the Rev.) Norman Vincent Peale and Cecil B. De Mille to conduct a seminar on religion."

The seminar is scheduled for Thursday, Dec. 13. The university has ordered professors to reschedule classes from that afternoon to the preceding Tuesday afternoon.

Dr. Mason W. Gross, Rutgers provost, and Edgar Curtain, associate dean of men, have said the seminar is timely because of the world situation.

WANTS SMALL BOAT OPERATORS LICENSED

Barge Official Tells Senate Committee 'Driver's' Permits Should Be Required.

Operators of small outboard motor-propelled boats should be required to have "driver's licenses," a congressional committee investigating recreational boating safety was told here today by a tank barge company official.

The recommendation was made by Capt. Ralph F. Clark, manager of Lake Tankers Corp., who appeared before the United States House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries at its hearing in the Federal building.

Clark said a driver's license should be required of all operators of motor vessels, but added: "Smaller boats, particularly those in the outboard motor class, are often of unsafe design and operated by persons who have not taken the trouble to determine even the most basic rules of procedure and safety. It is my opinion that most accidents and violations occur among this type of vessel."

The barge official also recommended that all motor vessels should be required to carry registration numbers for easy identification. Boats under the 16-foot length presently are not required to bear identification numbers.

Clark told the six Congressmen present for the hearing that he believed the issuance of the driver's license could be handled by giving applicants "a very simple examination on the rules of the road."

"This examination should be easily available for applicants," he said. "Perhaps the examination could be taken before any notary public asking questions provided by the United States Coast Guard."

Representative Jackson B. Chase of Nebraska asked if it would be advisable to let states enforce such licensing provisions.

"I believe if the states were given the burden of enforcement, you would end up with a wrose hodge-podge than you have now in the highway traffic laws among the states," Clark answered.

Representative George Miller of California, acting chairman of the committee, said later during a recess that in hearings elsewhere many witnesses have advocated federal regulation for safety of small craft. He said local regulation would undoubtedly result in non-uniformity of regulations and disputes over jurisdiction of offenses in waters which serve as boundaries between states and other political subdivisions.

The committee will decide later if Congress should be urged to pass uniform regulations for recreational boating safety on all inland waters.

Representative John J. Allen Jr. of California asked Clark if, should such licensing become effective, a minimum eligible age should be established.

"I've known kids 12 or 13 years old who are tremendously good boat handlers," Clark said. "They swim like fish and they have been well instructed in water safety. I'd rather entrust my children to them in a boat than some of the adult owners of pleasure boats."

MOLLET WONDERS IF U.N. IS TRAP FOR DEMOCRACIES

PARIS, Dec. 3 (AP)—Premier Mollet questioned yesterday whether the United Nations is "only a trap for the democracies, and should it let the dictatorships win every time?"

Discussing the Suez canal crisis in an interview distributed by the French News Agency, he urged democracies to stand together in meeting world problems.

"The U.N.," he said, "will achieve just and lawful solutions only if all democratic countries, attached to the great values of humanistic civilization, stand side by side."

In an apparent reference to the United States voting with the Soviet Union in the U.N. against Britain and France on Suez, Mollet said:

"That today certain of these (democratic) states do not hesitate to vote with the Soviet Union and to give in to a most demagogic sort of bidding creates grave misunderstanding which can only profit or encourage international communism."

ARGENTINE FLEET LEAVES, INDICATING RIFT HAS ENDED

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 3 — Argentine fleet units have resumed annual maneuvers in the South Atlantic, indicating that the danger of an open split between the armed forces has passed, at least for the time being.

The fleet interrupted its maneuvers and returned to Buenos Aires last week when a crisis developed between a group of young officers and generals in key army positions.

Four top-ranking generals, including the army commander-in-chief and the chief of staff, were forced to resign. Thirty-six other generals were placed on the retired list.

Largest Tax Refund Claimed Is for $416 by Steelville Man

Misspelled Name Caused Check to Be Returned to Internal Revenue Service.

Largest claim for a federal income tax refund by a "lost" taxpayer was submitted today by George Souders, Steelville, Mo., as the Internal Revenue Service began accepting identification of some 1144 taxpayers to whom refunds of 1955 taxes will be made, if they can be found.

Souders, who had a refund of $416 due him, was not exactly "lost," he explained. Through an error the check was issued in the name of George Sanders and was returned by the Steelville post office.

The first claimant on opening day today was Albert Carter, a truck driver of 1327A Goodfellow boulevard, whose refund of $1.06 was mailed to 4218A Ashland avenue. Carter had moved from that address without leaving a forwarding address.

He said he would spend the money, when he gets the check in about two weeks, for carfare. He was the only caller at the revenue office in the first 15 minutes after it opened at 8:30 o'clock.

Carter saw his name in a list of 211 names of persons and firms with refunds due on their 1955 returns which was released by Ernest M. Flinn, St. Louis director of the Internal Revenue Service, and published in yesterday's Post-Dispatch. Additional lists will be published daily through Friday.

Persons listed should write or go to the basement office of the Internal Revenue Service in the Federal Building, Twelfth boulevard and Market street.

Taxpayers should bring a copy of their 1955 tax returns. Those properly identifying themselves will receive checks for their overpayments within about two weeks. However, refunds will not be made at the Internal Revenue office, Flinn said.

Most refund checks range from $1 to $650 with a payment of $4500 awaiting one taxpayer.

The "lost" taxpayers gave wrong addresses on their returns or have moved and could not be found by the Post Office, Flinn said.

The second list of names follows:

Adkinson, Harry D., Waynesville.
Abner, Charles W. and L., 5820 Clemens.
Albritton, Tracey, 3715 Olive.

GOLDA MEIR SAYS SYRIAN BUILDUP THREATENS ISRAEL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — Israel's Foreign Minister, Mrs. Golda Meir, said last night her nation "feels threatened" as a result of the military buildup in Syria and threats from the Soviet Union.

Mrs. Meir said on NBC's "Meet the Press" television show:

"Our appraisal of the situation is that Syria has now become, and is becoming rapidly, a very important military base. If we put this together with the threats . . . we at least think there is reason for our fear."

She described the situation as "very critical."

Asked why Syria rather than Israel called on the United Nations to discuss the situation, she replied that Israel had planned to appeal to the U.N. and is glad the subject is before the international organization even at Syria's request.

Mrs. Meir said she favors a proposal to establish a buffer zone between Israel and Egypt consisting of Egypt's Sinai desert, which is uninhabited.

GETS TWO YEARS; ACCUSED OF SELLING, HAVING HEROIN

George Henry Wise of the 4400 block of West Belle place pleaded guilty to five narcotics charges today and was sentenced to two years in prison by United States District Judge George H. Moore.

Wise, 31 years old, a Negro, was accused of possession and making four sales of heroin last February to an undercover agent of the Narcotics Bureau.

U.S. TAX CHARGE AGAINST C.F. STUART JR. DISMISSED

An income tax evasion charge against Charles F. Stuart Jr., an undertaker, was dismissed by United States District Judge George H. Moore today on recommendation of Assistant U. S. Attorney Wayne H. Bigler Jr. and approval of the Attorney General's office.

Stuart and his father, who died last August, were indicted in March 1954, the son being charged with evading payment of $5471 for the years 1947 and 1949-51. The father's case had not been brought to trial at the time of his death.

Bigler said the son had no part in preparing false work sheets, supplied by his father, on which the returns were based.

100 PATRONS URGE NON-WALKING JOB FOR ILL POSTMAN

More than 100 persons living near the Delmar loop in University City have petitioned Postmaster Bernard F. Dickmann to give their mailman a desk job because he has a circulatory ailment which makes it difficult for him to walk.

The petition points out that the mailman, Irving Spector, who lives with his wife and four teen-age children at 6255 Clemens avenue, University City, has been suffering from varicose veins since 1942 and in the past six months has been in the hospital twice.

Spector, who has been delivering mail in the Delmar loop area for 10 of his 18 years with the Post Office, has been unable to work full-time since last July, the petition states. His physician has recommended that he be given some kind of desk job.

ZHUKOV GETS FOURTH ORDER OF LENIN ON 60TH BIRTHDAY

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

MOSCOW, Dec. 3—Soviet Defense Minister Georgi K. Zhukov yesterday was awarded an unprecedented fourth Order of Lenin and a fourth Gold Star as a hero of the Soviet Union to mark his sixtieth birthday.

All newspapers ran on their front pages portraits of the World War II commander and the text of the message of the central committee of the Communist party and the Council of Ministers making Marshal Zhukov the most decorated figure in Russia.

Diplomatic observers did not attach undue political importance to the newspaper prominence or the greeting. Such awards are standard practice when a Soviet leader reaches either his fiftieth or sixtieth birthday.

AUTO WOMAN PUSHED DRAGS HER INTO RIVER DES PERES

Mrs. Henri R. Grand-Jean, wife of a dentist, 6815 Melrose avenue, University City, was seriously injured today when she was dragged by her automobile, which she had pushed to get it started, down the driveway of her home, across the street and into a dry bed of the River des Peres.

Her 11-year-old daughter, Renee, told county police her mother started the car rolling backward down the driveway and then attempted to run around and get in the door on the driver's side. She apparently tripped and her clothing caught on the door of the car.

At St. Louis County Hospital, physicians said Mrs. Grand-Jean suffered a fractured skull and multiple bruises over the body. She was to be transferred to St. John's Hospital later.

MORE HUNGARIAN REFUGEES ARRIVE, TOTAL PASSES 1000

CAMP KILMER, N.J., Dec. 3 (UP)—The number of Hungarian refugees brought here passed the 1000 mark early today after the fourteenth refugee flight landed at McGuire Air Force base.

The plane brought 72 refugees, increasing to 1064 the number brought here for assignment throughout the country.

Other refugee flights have gone directly to Middle Western points, including Detroit and Milwaukee.

The intergovernmental committee for European migration, which is co-ordinating refugee transport, announced 21 planes would bring 1500 Hungarians to America this week. This will boost to more than 2500 the total number given asylum.

STOCK MARKET SURGES UP, LED BY OILS, STEELS

Pivotal Issues Are Ahead 1 to 5 Points or So as Friday's Advance Is Resumed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Oils and steels paced the stock market to a lively advance today in a resumption of Friday's rise.

Pivotal issues went ahead 1 to 5 points or so.

The market was ahead from the start. The high-speed ticker tape lagged briefly behind the heavy volume of transactions as the accumulation of weekend orders was disposed of.

In the early part of the session the turnover was so fast that it looked like the biggest volume in months but things quieted down in the afternoon and prices were a bit under their best at the close.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $2.30 to $177.50, with the industrials up $3.80, the rails up $2.30 and the utilities up 20 cents.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrials was 480.61 up 7.83 points at the close; the 20 rails 153.67, up 1.98, and the 15 utilities 67.17, up .75.)

The advance in the averages indicated a jump in quoted market values of 2.3 billion dollars.

It was the biggest rise in the Associated Press average since Nov. 1 when the average rose $2.70 on President Eisenhower's statement that the United States would not become involved in the Egyptian strife.

Of 1184 issues traded, gains outnumbered losses by 740 to 238. There were 21 new highs for the year and 66 new lows.

Volume totaled 2,570,000 shares compared with 2,300,000 on Friday.

Impressive prospects for the steel and oil industries, plus the optimistic statements by Secretary Dulles on the Middle East bolstered the market, brokers said.

At one time Gulf Oil was ahead around 5, Royal Dutch about 4 and Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line well over 3.

Youngstown also went ahead beyond 3 and Bethlehem Steel better than 2. U.S. Steel, Lukens and Republic Steel were 1-point gainers.

Gains of 2 points or so were scored by Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Kennecott Copper, International Nickel, Union Carbide, International Paper and Johns-Manville.

Beatrice Foods, which announced a higher dividend last week, was a 4-point gainer.

Up around a point were General Motors, Texas Co., Seaboard, General Dynamics, Glenn L. Martin, Boeing, General Electric, American Cyanamid, Anaconda and Sinclair.

London stocks were higher, the Financial Times index gaining 3.3 points at 166.8.

PRICE LOSSES SHOWN IN MOST GRAIN PITS

Buyers Lacking Due to Apparent Easing of Foreign Situation.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (AP)—Persistent selling brought some wide losses in grains on the Board of Trade today.

An apparent easing in the tense international situation made buyers shy away from the market. As a result declines of several cents were rung up in wheat, corn and soybeans at times.

Old crop wheat futures were under pressure on reports of a substantial movement of cash wheat to terminals. Heavy deliveries of cash corn and oats on December futures undermined those grains.

Rye resisted the selling pressure, largely because of an improved technical situation after a steep decline over recent weeks.

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Dec. 3—Grain futures range:

GENERAL 13A

Emily Post SAYS:

Upon the death of a friend you should go at once to the house, write "With sympathy" on your card and leave it at the door. Or, you write a letter to the family. In either case you send flowers, addressed to the funeral of (name of the deceased) or to the nearest relative. The latter method is preferable, if the relative is a friend. But the former method is followed if the deceased alone was known to you.

Oo-la-la...new Super-Rinse all!

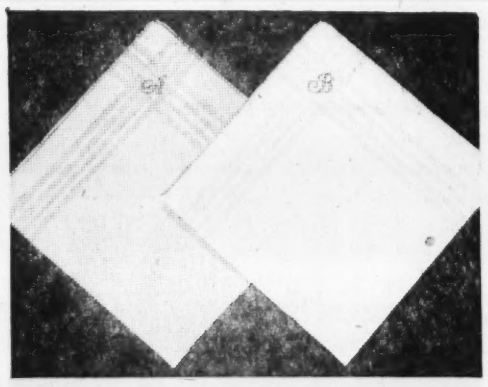
Prescribed for automatic washers

all is the original "controlled suds" detergent prescribed by automatic washer makers and servicemen for best washing results. Try new Super-Rinse all in your automatic . . . you'll love it!



50% whiter than ever before!

Never a Suds Scum Streak

all costs less to use

One tablespoon of all with "controlled suds" gives water greater wash-ability than three tablespoons of the leading thick-sudsers. It takes so little of condensed all to wash clothes free of dirt! Just measure new Super-Rinse all by the tablespoon . . . instead of by the cupful . . . and save on every load you wash in your automatic!

AUSTRALIAN SWIM RELAY TEAM SETS WORLD RECORD

AMERICANS SECOND IN ONLY FINAL ON PROGRAM

MELBOURNE, Dec. 3 (UP)—Australia's crack 800-meter relay swimming team whipped the United States by a solid 20 yards in the only Olympic championship decided tonight, but Pat McCormick of Lakewood, Calif., headed for the third gold medal of her career by rushing into the lead after six rounds in springboard diving.

A smashing anchor leg by Jon Henricks, handsome 21-year-old Olympic 100-meter freestyle champion, gave the Aussies a new world record of 8:23.6. Only four yards ahead of Ford Konno of Honolulu when he started his final leg, Henricks splashed ahead so quickly he left Konno as if he were treading water.

The United States was second by five yards over Russia with Japan a fast-closing fourth.

Mrs. McCormick, a 26-year-old mother and housewife who won two gold medals in the 1952 Olympics, easily led the 12 qualifiers for tomorrow night's springboard final. United States hopes soared for a big haul of points when other American girls placed third and fourth in the standings after the first six dives.

Mrs. McCormick, hoping to become the first in history to win both Olympic dives two consecutive times, scored a total of 76.80 points for a comfortable lead over Irene McDonald of Canada who had 73.25.

Barbara Sue Gilders, a pretty blonde from Detroit, was third in the first phase of the diving with 71.47 points and Jeanne Stunyo of Gary, Ind., was fourth with 71.02.

Miss Mann Sets Record.

In one other standout performance, Shelley Mann of Arlington, Va., set a new Olympic record of 1:11.2 in the women's 100-meter butterfly trials. The butterfly is a new event in Olympic competition.

Japan's Masaru Furukawa, known as "The Human Fish," set a new Olympic record of 2:36.1 as he won his qualifying heat of the 200-meter breaststroke. The old Olympic record of 2:42.5 was set at Berlin in 1936 by Tetsuo Hamburo of Japan. Bob Hughes of Los Angeles, the only United States entrant, was last in his heat in 2:52.2 and failed to qualify.

Opening with 19-year-old Kevin O'Halloran, the husky Aussies followed in this order—John Devitt, 17-year-old Murray Rose and then the flashy Henricks.

Their time of 8:23.6 bettered the previous record of 8:24.5 set by Russia last month. It broke the Olympic standard of 8:31.1 set by the United States in the 1952 games.

The second place finish for the United States was good for five points but Russia picked up four for third. Hence the Americans gained only one slim point in the race for the unofficial team championship and now lead Russia, 468 to 419½.

It was a comparatively quiet day on most Olympic fronts after Saturday's hectic session during which 36 gold medals were awarded.

Americans made some advances but had scant hopes for many medals in yachting, cycling, Greco-Roman wrestling, shooting or gymnastics while the Russians have a high point potential in most of those events.

In cycling, Jack Disney of Pasadena, Calif., lifted some eyebrows when he unexpectedly captured his heat in the 1000-meter sprint to qualify for the quarterfinals.

The U.S. dragon class yacht, Spirit III, skippered by Eugene Walet of New Orleans, won the fifth of seven races on which the medal is decided. Kathleen, U.S. entry in the star class, was third in its race of the day.

U.S. Fencers Lose.

The American men's saber team, however, lost to Hungary, 9-1, and was eliminated from the semifinal pool.

In the early Greco-Roman wrestling competition, flyweight John Wilson of Washington, Pa., advanced with a decision and bantamweight Kent Townley of Sioux City, Ia., drew a bye. Alan Rice of New York, a featherweight hope, lost to Ion Popescu of Romania.

While Mrs. McCormick was piling up her lead in the springboard event in one of the ultra-modern Olympic pools, two other American girls qualified for Wednesday's final in the 100-meter backstroke as Margaret Edwards of Britain set a new Olympic record of one minute, 13 seconds. The old record of 1:13.8 was set in 1952 by G. Wielema of Holland.

Carin Cone, 16-year-old high school star from Ridgewood, N. J., won her heat in 1:13.9 and Maureen Murphy of Portland, Ore., qualified with 1:14.8, even though fourth in her heat. The eight fastest clockings made the final.

Mrs. McCormick appeared supremely confident as she began her springboard defense. Beaten only twice since she reached the top in 1952, the acrobatic young mother had only one relatively low-score dive in her first six.

She earned only 10.01 points for her fourth effort, an inward dive pike, but she followed it with 14.30 points on a one and one-half somersault with full twist running to show she hadn't lost her touch.

Miss McDonald, the hard-challenging Canadian, was off badly with 7.04 points with a forward one and one-half somersault pike but closed out with the best dive of the day—15.75 with a two and one-half somersault tuck—and shot into second place in the standings.

Triumphant Exit for Missouri's Faurot

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

A happy DON FAUROT is carried from the field on the shoulders of his players following Missouri U.'s 15-13 victory over Kansas at Columbia, Saturday. The game marked a successful conclusion to Faurot's career as Tiger coach that started in 1935. He now takes up new duties in the athletic department, starting with the interview of coach candidates.

Retiring Faurot Starts Screening of Candidates For Job as Tiger Coach

By Bob Broeg

Don Faurot, rating the last game of his coaching career as his most thrilling, today turned to the challenging task of interviewing and screening candidates for the job he has held since 1935.

Faurot said this morning that the first men to be evaluated at the University of Missouri campus at Columbia would be Volney Ashford, 48 years old, now in his seventeenth year as coach of Missouri Valley College, Marshall; Kenny Knox, 36, head coach at Southeast Missouri State, Cape Girardeau; Robert Devaney, 41, end coach at Michigan State, East Lansing; and Clay Cooper, 38, Missouri U. freshman coach.

"The order of interview is not necessarily significant," said the veteran coach who announced before this season that he would give up his field job to devote full attention to his athletic director's duties. The season ended Saturday with a dramatic final-minute 15-13 victory over ancient rival Kansas.

"We've had 40 to 50 application for the coaching job," Faurot said, "but without thoroughly studying 'em—after all, I've been trying to win some football games—I'd say only 10 to 12, maybe a few omre, would have to be taken seriously."

Committee to Help.

The procedure is for Faurot to screen candidates, take them before the faculty-alumni athletic committee and Elmer Ellis, university president. Faurot and the committee then will appraise their selection and put before Ellis a name or names to be recommended to the university board of curators.

Ellis has said he would keep the curators informed to avoid recurrence of the 1932 embarrassment. The late Chester L. Brewer, then athletic director, hired Lynn Waldorf of Oklahoma A. & M. to replace Gwinn Henry, but a dissenting curator insisted on a "big name." Frank Carideo got the job, not Waldorf who went on to successful coaching terms at Kansas State, Northwestern and California. Young Carideo's complete failure in three years led to engagement of alumnus Faurot.

Faurot said he felt he would turn over to his successor the nucleus of a strong team with problems of inexperience and manpower at only two positions, the highly important quarterback and center spots.

15 End Play as Tigers.

Fifteen Tigers finished their football careers at Mizzou in the exciting contest with Kansas, including All-Big Seven Quarterback Jimmy Hunter and No. 1 understudy Dave Doane, plus the top two centers, linebacking Carl Osterloh of Clayton and Ralph (Skip) Schulz.

Others whose eligibility ended in the traditional game, which evened results in the 65-year series, were End Bill Craig; Tackles Paul Browning of East St. Louis and Chuck Mehrer, hero of the last-minute game-winning safety; Guards Jim (Cornbread) Martin, Guy Barrickman and Ray McMichael, Halfbacks Sonny Stringer, Dick Stuber, Tom Morrell and the East Side's Bill Rice and Fullback Gene Roll.

"Only six of the seniors were on the first two teams, though, and that's why I believe the new coach will have a good chance to get off favorably," Faurot said. "Pat Fischer and Bill Feind have had some experience at center and there's apt to be a capable quarterback among Stub Clemensen, Don Mason and two freshman-team graduates, Phil Snowden and, if he recovers from a shoulder separation, Gary Starr."

Faurot said he wouldn't minimize loss of Hunter even though Doane, particularly, and Clemensen, too, took over and directed the Tigers to their second-half victory over Kansas after the team captain suffered an injury which sidelined him.

What Might Have Been.

Faurot expressed the thought a 4-5-1 season could have been 8-2 with an Orange Bowl trip if the Tigers had "had a couple of breaks and maybe a little more inspirational coaching", noting that Missouri had outgained every opponent except Purdue and Oklahoma.

"As for breaks," Faurot said, breaking into a smile, "I think we were fortunate to beat Kansas and as Alex Estes (a friend) said, 'It's about time one washed up on the beach.'"

It was here the retiring coach added:

"I'm mighty happy and so is my family and the rest of the coaching staff. I'll never forget it. This one—because it was over Kansas, our kids kept firing away so determinedly, we won so dramatically and the fact it's so warming to go out a winner—was the most thrilling of my career."

Shipboard Named as No. 1 Steeplechaser

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 3 (UP) — Shipboard, who only started three times during the year, was named the champion Steeplechase horse of 1956 today by the selection board of the Thoroughbred Racing Association.

The six-year-old gelding, owned by Mrs. Marion duPont Scott, received 17 of the 28 votes.

Shipboard carried 164 pounds to victory in the Broad Hollow Steeplechase and the same poundage to win the Grand National Steeplechase Handicap. But 168 pounds proved too much in the Temple Gwathmey Steeplechase, in which Shipboard finished second.

2 Bowl Games Rated Even by Odds-Makers

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (UP) — According to the wizards of odds, the Tennessee-Baylor meeting in the Sugar Bowl and the Clemson-Colorado head-knocking in the Orange Bowl will be the closest-fought games among the major post-season classics.

Both contests were pegged as "pick 'em" (even money) affairs today in the initial prices released by the odds-makers.

The point spreads on the other major games favored Iowa by 6½ over Oregon State in the Rose Bowl; Texas Christian seven over Syracuse in the Cotton Bowl, and Georgia Tech 6½ over Pittsburgh in the 'Gator Bowl.

The bowl pairings were completed during the weekend and, with one exception, produced no surprises. Navy was considered Texas Christian's likely opponent in the Cotton Bowl, but the Middies didn't even get a chance to vote on the Dallas trip following their disappointing 7-7 tie against Army.

Rear Admiral W. R. Smedberg, superintendent of the Naval Academy, turned down the bid because "I do not think in the light of our record that it would be in the best interests of the Naval Academy to participate in a post-season bowl game." Navy wound up with a 6-1-2 record.

Syracuse Accepts Offer.

Following the Middies' refusal, Syracuse was offered the Cotton Bowl berth and quickly accepted. The Orange, led by All-America Halfback Jimmy Brown, completed its regular season with a 7-1 record, but may be overmatched against T.C.U., which cruised to a season-ending 21-6 victory over Southern Methodist Saturday.

Tennessee, as expected, was awarded a Sugar Bowl berth after completing a perfect-record season by mauling Vanderbilt, 27-7. Baylor won the other bid to the New Orleans extravaganza via a 46-13 triumph over Rice.

Georgia Tech, beaten only by Tennessee this year, agreed to play Pittsburgh in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 29, following a 35-0 victory over Georgia. It will be a revenge meeting for the Panthers, who dropped a 7-0 decision to Georgia Tech last New Year's day in the Sugar Bowl.

Clemson was picked to represent the Atlantic Coast Conference in the Orange Bowl by a unanimous vote of the A.C.C. members. Duke reportedly also was considered for the Miami junket, but Clemson's convincing 28-7 victory over Furman apparently served as the clincher.

40 in Row for Sooners.

Oklahoma, the nation's No. 1 team but ineligible for a repeat visit to the Orange Bowl this season, closed out another perfect record campaign by walloping Oklahoma A.&M., 53-0. It was the Sooners' fortieth straight victory, topping the old national record of 39 set by the Washington Huskies in 1908-14.

Notre Dame, fighting mad over former Coach Frank Leahy's charges that it was "spiritless," put up a surprisingly strong fight against Southern California, but still wound up absorbing its eighth defeat in 10 games, 28-20.

17 ELEVENS END SEASON UNBEATEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Oklahoma and Tennessee ranked one-two in the nation, topped the list of unbeaten-untied college football teams for 1956. Seventeen schools finished the regular season with perfect records.

The list:

Dixie Walker Will Manage Toronto Club

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 3 (UP)—Fred (Dixie) Walker was named manager of the Toronto club in the International League today, succeeding Bruno Betzel, who retired after the 1956 season.

Walker's appointment was announced by Jack Kent Cooke, owner of the Maple Leafs.

The 46-year-old Walker managed the Rochester Red Wings since May of 1955 when he replaced his brother, Harry, who moved up to the parent St. Louis Cardinals.

Rochester defeated Toronto in the league playoffs during 1955 and 1956. Walker played the outfield for the Yankees, White Sox, Pirates and Dodgers.

Lou Kahn, who served as coach under Betzel, will continue in the same capacity under Walker.

Cavarretta to Return As Buffalo Manager

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 3 (UP) —Word was officially received here today that Phil Cavarretta had agreed to return as field manager of the community-owned Buffalo Bisons for the 1957 season.

Cavarretta's re-appointment had been rumored for several weeks and became a certainty two weeks ago when he began investigating possible training sites for the International League Bisons.

The ex-Chicago Cubs playing star and manager took over the helm of the Bisons last spring.

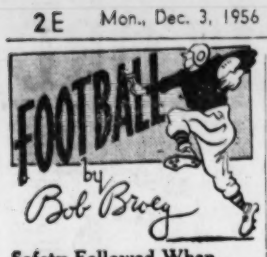
Eddie Stanky Named Indians' Coach at Farrell's Request



Safety Followed When Safety Wasn't First.

THERE was even a little humor on the Kansas side, though understandably a bit forced, after the incredible finish of the traditional border battle Saturday at Columbia, where Missouri won by scoring eight points in the final three minutes, the tie-breaking last two on a safety with 39 seconds to play.

As a happy DON FAUROT, carried off by his players, was congratulated later by CHUCK MATHER, the young Kansas coach quipped, "You ought to give me a Missouri letter, Coach."

Mather apparently referred to the shoot-the-works gambling he had ordered, disdaining a tie after the Tigers pulled even on DAVE DOANE's needle-threading pass to LARRY PLUMB when blue-helmeted Jayhawks surrounded the black headgear of the Mizzou end like Sitting Bull's Indians converging on Custer's cavalry.

By way of further explanation, Mather reportedly told one writer that from the disadvantage of his field-level chair in front of the Jayhawk bench he thought his team was on the 14-yard line, not the 4, when the Red and Blue tried the risky T-formation halfback reverse on which CHUCK MEHRER, Tiger tackle, dropped K.U.'s BOBBY ROBINSON in the end zone for a decisive safety. The coach's implication was that he had called the deep sweep which, if it really was intended to be a fake pass as some suggested, got no deception at all from Quarterback WALLY STRAUCH.

Mehrer, as described in Sunday's Post-Dispatch, said he smelled a reverse—Robinson was the left halfback going right on the play—when the guard opposite him pulled out to lead the interference. HARRY SMITH, Mizzou line coach, credited RALPH SCHULZ, calling signals for the No. 2 unit, for having the Tigers in a 5-4-2 defensive alignment with the linebackers shooting the gaps at the time Robinson was nailed, a good six yards or more behind the line of scrimmage, two or three behind the goalline.

When Kansas had insisted on firing away in its own territory after Missouri's tying touchdown, Faurot had rushed fresh linemen into the game with instructions to rush the passer.

"But I never expected anything so unbelievable, the good defense becoming the best offense," the smiling coach said, referring to PAUL BROWNING and BENNY ALBURTIS exploding through to throw Strauch for a long loss trying to pass, then Mehrer wrapping Robinson and the ball game into his strong arms.

"Imagine," Faurot imagined happily, "a team scoring the winning points when the other side has got the ball, scoring 'em by throwing the other guys for more than a 20-yard loss in two plays."

Of the Sporting News All-America, Hornung.

THE Quarterback, football section of The Sporting News, announced an All-America team, selected by writers, on which three Oklahoma players were named. Halfback TOMMY McDONALD, named the Most Outstanding Player of the Year, was chosen along with Center JERRY TUBBS and Tackle ED GRAY of the Sooners. Others picked included Michigan End RON KRAMER and Notre Dame Quarterback PAUL HORNUNG for the second successive year. Rounding out the all-senior team were End JOE WALTON, Pitt; Tackle PAUL WIGGIN, Stanford; Guards JIM PARKER, Ohio State, BILL GLASS, Baylor, and backs JOHNNY MAJORS, Tennessee, and JIMMY BROWN, Syracuse.

TERRY BRENNAN, backing off from a public fuss with FRANK LEAHY, insisted his Notre Dame players had performed as hard all season as in their 23-20 loss to Southern California. He and Leahy, who agreed that the Irish had fought from whistle to whistle against the Trojans after being "spiritless" previously, indicated that a point of personal testiness had been the unwillingness of Brennan to permit Hornung to appear on Leahy's TV show the night before the game. Leahy said he understood, but there's not all sweetness between teacher and pupil.

Hornung, by the way, said he didn't believe Notre Dame played harder against Southern Cal than in earlier games, saying: "In every game we've been just trying our hearts out. We had a better team last year. This year we just didn't have the horses."

JESS HILL, former Washington outfielder stepping up into the Trojan athletic directorship after six seasons in which he was under fire from hard-to-please alumni despite a 45-17-1 record, saw his 8-2 team become the first U.S.C. squad to defeat top rivals U.C.L.A. and Notre Dame in the same season since 1938.

"Hornung," said Hill, "is the best back in the country—next to our own JON ARNETT."

Tebbetts to Speak.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 3 (UP)—Cincinnati Manager George (Birdie) Tebbetts has accepted an invitation to be the main speaker at the fourth annual dinner of the Milwaukee baseball writers Jan. 28. Tebbetts led the Redlegs to third place in the National League during the 1955 season.

Alston Is Rehired by Brooklyn

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 3 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced that Manager Walter Alston has been rehired for 1957.

Alston, who led the Dodgers to two consecutive National League pennants after finishing second his first year at the helm of the Brooklyn club, reportedly will receive a salary of $36,000 which is an increase of $4000 over his 1956 salary.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 3 (UP)—Eddie Stanky, former manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, was signed as third base coach for the Cleveland Indians today to serve under the Tribe's new manager, Kerby Farrell.

Announcement of Stanky's hiring was made jointly by General Manager Hank Greenberg and Farrell. Stanky was hired at Farrell's personal request.

Stanky managed Minneapolis of the American Association last season and then was let out shortly after the conclusion of the campaign. He sought a job as coach of the New York Giants, a team which he helped to a National League pennant in 1951, but Giant Manager Bill Rigney announced he had "other plans."

Greenberg explained that Farrell and Stanky were "old friends" and that Farrell, who succeeded Al Lopez as Cleveland manager this year, personally requested that Stanky be named as one of his coaches.

"I'm tickled to death with this job," Stanky said. "People have no idea how badly I awnted to coach in the major leagues."

Greenberg also announced that Coaches Mel Harder and Red Kress were being retained but Bill Lobe, bullpen coach, would be replaced.

CARDS ONLY CLUB TO DRAFT 2 MEN

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 3 (UP) — The Chicago Cubs chose Catcher Cal Neeman from Denver of the American Association today as the No. 1 pick in the Major League draft.

The Cardinals drafted Bob Gilchrist Smith, 22-year-old Sotuhpaw pitcher from San Francisco of the Pacific Coast League. He had an 8-11 record last season. His earned-run average was 4.38.

Also selected by the Redbirds was Righthanded Pitcher Lloyd Merritt, a St. Louisan (who attended Beaumont High) from Richmond of the I.L. He was used in relief by Birmingham of the Southern Association last season, appeared in 38 games and had a 1-3 record. He is 6 feet 2, 195 pounds and 24 years old.

The Kansas City Athletics, exereising their right to make the second selection, chose right-handed Pitcher Ed Blake from Toronto of the international league. Blake, a 31-year-old fastballer, posted a 17-11 record with the Maple Leafs this year and compiled a 2.61 earned-run average in 33 games. At the same time the Athletics assigned Pitcher Bob Spicer to Montgomery of the Southern League.

Pittsburgh, which had third choice, passed as did the Washington Senators, who had fourth choice and the New York Giants, who had fifth.

The Baltimore Orioles selected Catcher Tommy Patton from Omaha of the American Association. The Philadelphia Phillies became the fourth club to pass when their turn was called in the roll and the Detroit Tigers selected former Major League Outfielder Gil Coan from Minneapolis of the American Association. Coan, who played with the Senators, Orioles and Giants, batted .286 in 89 games this year.

The Boston Red Sox took pitcher Jack Spring from Miami of the International League. Spring had a 6-6 record and an earned-run mark of 4.06.

The Cincinnati Redlegs drafted Gerry Lynch, an outfielder from Hollywood in the P.C.L., while the Chicago White Sox took Norman Larker, left-handed hitting first-baseman from Montreal in the International League.

All the others passed on the first round, but the Cardinals then took Merritt on the second round. All clubs passed on the third round, ending the draft selections unless some clubs exercise their right to make another pick before midnight.

Things Are Looking Up for Muny Champions

BOB BENNETT (9) of the Venice A.C., gets off a shot in Muny basketball game at Sherman Park. The East Siders, defending champions, beat the Collegians, 85-80, to tie Fix Mix for first place. Other Collegians are: WILLY JOHNSON (11); BEN BUMBRY (66), former Drake star, who topped the scorers with 34 points; REUBEN FAIRFAX (22) and LEROY CAMPBELL (55). At right is JACK HANVEY of Venice.

Wilt the Stilt Toes the Line Tonight in First Varsity Test

By Robert Morrison
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

LAWRENCE, Kan., Dec. 3—While some teams, like St. Louis U., have Monday to reflect on their assets, the collegiate basketball outfit with the most valuable jewel of all stood ready to put it to the first varsity test here tonight.

Kansas U., rich in hardwood lore, goes to the post at 7:35 p.m. with a new coach—Dick Harp, who succeeded Phog Allen—and with wonderful Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain. Big Ten hopeful Northwestern, a 99-60 winner over Western Michigan in its opener Saturday night, is the Kansas foe.

The seven-foot sophomore Chamberlain, probably the most widely wooed and heralded college prospect in the history of the game, missed three weeks of official pre-season practice this fall because of a throat operation.

But he's ready now.

"He may tire a little in 30 minutes or so, because of that setback in conditioning," said Kansas publicity man Don Pierce, "but otherwise he's ready and eager to go like the rest of the squad."

Wilt, whose speed and co-ordination for such an extraordinarily tall youth mark him as a man apart, has achieved the important transition of fitting into the Kansas team, Pierce said.

"If there is one thing he has added to his skills, it is that he has acquired the sense of how we want to play, both on offense and defense," Pierce explained.

Bills Off to Good Start.

Another team that is a candidate for national college honors this fall — St. Louis U.—demonstrated a considerable amount of that team efficiency Saturday night at Cincinnati when it defeated Cincinnati U., 91-73.

With that opening victory, Eddie Hickey's Billikens kept in step with such possible topliners as Louisville (81-68 over Morehead); Kansas State (97-78 over Houston); Dayton (84-48 over Gustavus Adolphus); Bradley (94-54 over Omaha), Minnesota (63-60 over Vanderbilt); Iowa State (60-53 over Michigan State), Kentucky (94-66 over Washington and Lee), and Ohio State (90-82 over Butler).

That Ohio State triumph over well-rated Butler gave the Bills something to think about. The Buckeyes are St. Louis's next opponent Saturday night at Columbus in the first game of a trip that also will take them to Kentucky the following Monday.

Cincinnati, perhaps, may turn out to have been the easiest opponent for the St. Louis team that has a back-breaking set of three tough games away from home before it sees its friendlier floor at Kiel Auditorium Dec. 13.

But Hickey has had the encouragement of seeing his veterans demonstrate not only play-making effectiveness and shooting ability, but also a sturdy competitive drive that could make the difference between winning and losing agalnst stronger competition.

New Rule Worries Rookies.

Cal Burnett, the former Fort Leonard Wood service player, was the chief sophomore development in the opener. But despite a moment of panic that hit other sophs when Hickey put them in the game together late in the contest—a moment that threatened to destroy a big Billiken lead—the feeling persists that these rookies will get their feet on the ground quickly.

One thing that helped upset the youngsters was one of the less-publicized new rules in college ball this season. They were aware of it but apparently forgot it. The rule prohibits any throw-in from out-of-bounds in the area between extensions of the free throw lane.

Rules makers hopefully put this in the book so that teams couldn't toss a throw-in over the backboard and set up a tap-in by an extremely tall player. Such a throw-in would not be a shot attempt and therefore not subject to the new offensive goal-tending rule.

All it may do is confuse ball players used to grabbing the out-of-bounds ball and whipping it into play from anywhere along the end line as quickly as possible. It confused the young Bills, who had this violation called a couple of times in close order.

Team Rifle Award.

A team of 10 from Camp Robin Hood at Sherwood Day School has been awarded second place in the sub-junior match conducted by the National Rifle Association.

Three Records Broken In Ozark Swim Meet

Ardeth Hartung of Shaw Park cracked the senior 160-yard individual medley mark with a time of 2:09.5, and teammate Janet Ackermann broke the junior 80-yard backstroke mark with her clocking of 1:01.4. The third new mark was by Page Hager of Cottage Camp in the midget 20-yard backstroke. Her time of 15.1 seconds was fourtenths of a second lower than Pat Deckert's record performance last year.

JUVENILES (11-13).
40-YARD BACKSTROKE—Won by Pat Deckert, Shaw Park; Pepper Deckert, Shaw Park, second; Sandra Hagedorn, unattached, third. Time—30.2s.
60-YARD FREESTYLE—Won by Penger Deckert, Shaw Park; Mary Schniedermeyer, Y.W.H.A., second; Gail Schoenfeld, Y.W.H.A., third. Time—41.1s.
JUNIORS (14-16)
80-YARD BACKSTROKE—Won by Janet Ackermann, Shaw Park; Diane Kyfus, Y.W.H.A., second; Joy Fehlig Shaw Park, third. Time—1m. 1.4s. (new meet record; old record, 1m. 2.3s. by Rosalind Calcaterra, 1955).
100-YARD FREESTYLE—Won by Joy Fehlig, Shaw Park; Diane Kyfus, Y.W.H.A., second; Janet Ackermann, Shaw Park, third. Time—1m. 9.8s.
SENIORS (17 and Over).
200-YARD BREASTSTROKE—Won by Alice Ogle, Shaw Park; Ardeth Hartung, Shaw Park, second; Rosalind Calcaterra, Shaw Park, third. Time —3m. 1s.
160-YARD INDIVIDUAL MEDLEY—Won by Ardeth Hartung, Shaw Park; Alice Ogle, Shaw Park, second; Rosalind Calcaterra, Shaw Park, third. Time—2m. 9.5s. (new meet record; old record 2m. 15.4s. by Alice Ogle, 1955).

Swim Record Set.

HILVERSUM, N Netherlands, Dec. 2 (AP)—Dutch swimmer Mary Kok last night bettered the world 400 meters individual medley record. Her time was 15:38.9. The old record, 5:40.8, was established in Budapest July 13, 1955, by Hungarian Eva Sekely.

Venice in Tie For Muny Lead

Leon's surprised Fix Mix, 75-65, dropping the previously unbeaten Fix team into a first-place tie with Venice in the Muny open basketball league yesterday at Sherman Park.

The Fix squad and Venice, 85-80 winner over the Collegians, have 3-1 records. Leon's and Scott, 90-63 victor over the Hawks, share third with the Collegians, all with 2-2 marks.

Ex-Hannibal Player Helps Dons Triumph

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (UP)—The San Francisco Dons no longer have All-America stars Bill Russell and K. C. Jones, but they still have the spirit that helped produce the longest victory streak in college basketball history.

The Dons trailed California by seven points with only eight minutes to play Saturday night, but rallied to score their fifty-seventh straight triumph, 70-56. Russell and Jones, who paced the United States to a gold medal triumph over Russia in the Olympic basketball final at Melbourne, would have been proud of the "new" Dons.

California, rated one of the Pacific Coast Conference's most promising teams for the 1956-57 season, was favored to hand San Francisco its first loss since it bowed to U.C.L.A. in 1954. Larry Friend, California's captain, kept his team in front most of the way at Berkeley, but it was the home team that cracked in the final minutes under the pressure produced by the defending national champions.

Missourian in Limelight.

Mike Farmer, Gene Brown, Mike Preafeau and Hal Dunbar, an unheralded transfer from Hannibal-La Grande (Mo.) Junior College, took charge in the final minutes to give San Francisco a 14-point margin at the end. Dunbar showed signs of the floor ability that earned Jones All-America honors. His ball-hawking upset California and he sank six free throws in the final two minutes. Brown scored 20 points and Farmer 18.

While the national champions scored their second victory of the season, North Carolina State opened its campaign with a 97-85 victory over Pittsburgh. North Carolina State, defending Atlantic Coast Conference champion, was rated the nation's No. 2 team last season by the United Press board of coaches.

Dayton, ranked No. 3 last season, opened with an easy, 84-48 triumph over Gustavus Adolphus. Louisville, ranked seventh last season when it won the National Invitation tournament, warmed up with an 81-68 victory over Morehead (Ky.) State. Charley Tyra scored 28 points for Louisville.

Kansas State, defending Big Seven champion, opened with a 97-78 non-conference victory over Houston. Utah, the Skyline Conference champion, defeated Montana State, 63-56, and West Virginia, the Southern Conference champion, opened with a 71-47 triumph over Virginia Military. U.C.L.A., the Pacific Coast Conference titleholder, defeated Nebraska, 78-60, after downing the Cornhuskers Friday night, 69-56.

Several of the Big Ten teams had close shaves. Lamar Lundy, Purdue football star, sank a layup shot in the last four seconds to give his team a 62-60 victory over Evansville. Minnesota rallied by switching to a zone defense and edged Vanderbilt, 63-60.

Junior forwards Frank Howard and Ken Sidle each scored 23 points as Ohio State defeated Butler, 98-82. Sophomore forwards George Lee and M. C. Burton scored 26 and 24 points, respectively, to lead Michigan to a 79-63 triumph over Delaware.

Chillicothe Bowler First In State Meet

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 3 (AP)—Forrest Bennett of Chillicothe rolled 720 to take over the singles lead in the men's state bowling tournament over the weekend.

A number of other changes occurred in the top five of the team, doubles and singles divisions, while the all-events standings were unchanged.

Two Kansas City teams moved into fourth and fifth places. They were Plaza Bowl, 3130, and Tierney Stationery, 3119.

Low money scores now are: team 2935, doubles 1203, singles 616 and all-events 1666.

The tourney will run two more weekends.

Don Carter Is in 23rd Position

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (AP)—Dick Weber, the slender 26-year-old sharp-shooter from St. Louis, moved into the early lead after 18 games in the qualifying trials for the sixteenth annual National All-Star bowling tournament today.

With 64 of the 160 men finished with their first 18 games, Weber totaled 3738 pins to give him an eight-pin lead over James Spalding of Fern Creek, Ky., ho totaled 3730.

However, Stan Thaden of Chicago, who paced the 160 bowlers at the end of 12 games with 2544 had yet to shoot.

Weber, a "pro" bowler for the St. Louis Budweiser team, rolled 1292 on games of 200, 225, 209, 202, 199 and 257 to move from fourth to first in the standings.

Spalding, who was second to Thaden at the end of Sunday's bowling had 1217 today to retain his position.

In third place was Robert Kwolek of Detroit with 3668 pins.

Going into today's third round, Don Carter, a teammate of Weber's on the United States championship Bud team, was twenty-third in the standings with 2361, Tom Hennessey was in twenty-sixth place with 2353 and Ray Bluth thirty-third with 2336.

Almost out of the running were three other St. Louis bowlers. Woody Hulsey was in a tie for ninetieth with 2246; Sonny Fitter was in 116th with 2185, and Frank Lucido of East St. Louis, Ill., was in 101st place with 2221.

While the four Buds were still in contention for berths in the match game finals (the 160 bowlers roll 36 games with the high 14 making the final), the biggest disappointment was the showing of La Verne Carter in the women's division.

Mrs. Carter, who was picked by many as a sure bet for the final, was in a tie for forty-fifth place.

Carter, who has been selected by writers as the one most likely to succeed in the current tournament, had no excuse for his comparatively poor 1147 block at 8 o'clock yesterday morning.

"Maybe I just had to get up too early," Don quipped.

Carter's showing could be partially explained by a poor 168 opening game in which he missed in the first frame and split in the second.

St. Louis-area scores in second round:

Heading for Trouble in Pro Grid Game

U.S. Water Polo Team Turns Back Germans

MELBOURNE, Dec. 3 (UP)—The United States Olympic water polo team stayed in the running for a medal today by defeating Germany, 4-3, on a winning goal by Bob Hughes of Los Angeles in the late minutes of play. The goal was one of three scored by Hughes before a capacity crowd of 5500.

The United States now has four points, having won two out of four matches. Germany has two points, winning one of three matches.

Veterans Layne and Gifford Shine for Pro Grid Leaders

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Pro fooball clutch players like Frank Gifford and Bobby Layne aren't paid by the yards they gain or the touchdowns they score. But when the National Football League moguls dish out the big salaries, they expect the "big play" and the "big game."

Yesterday was dividend day around the circuit as the key veterans, most of whom could afford to toil on a touchdown-yardage rate, paid off aplenty.

Layne, the eight-year veteran, passed for two touchdowns, scored another and kicked six extra points as he quarterbacked the Detroit Lions into first place in the National League's Western Conference with a smashing 42-10 victory over the Chicago Bears.

Gifford, the former movie stunt man, who usually plays like he wrote the script, scored three times and threw for the other Giant touchdown as New York all but clinched the Eastern Conference title by whipping the Washington Redskins, 28-14.

Those were the heroes in Detroit and New York. Elsewhere in the loop, here's what other old pros did:

Tobin Rote, the Green Bay signal-caller, who runs like a halfback, scored three times on short sneaks after his passes had riddled the Chicago Cardinals in a 24-21 upset victory. The loss at Chicago virtually eliminated the Cards from the Eastern race.

Lou (The Toe) Groza, an all-time great, kicked a field goal 37 yards with just 29 seconds remaining at Cleveland to lift the Browns to a 17-14 triumph over the Philadelphia Eagles.

Capt. Elbie Nickel, with 33 years and 12 pro seasons behind him steadied young Jack Scarbath in his first quarterback start, receiving two passes from Scarbath to lead the Pittsburgh Steelers in a 30-13 defeat of the visiting Los Angeles Rams.

A pair of 28-year-olds with a total of 13 years NFL experience did the job for the San Francisco 49ers at Baltimore, 20-17. End Billy Wilson twice took scoring passes from quarterback Y. A. Tittle. The second was a 77-yard play in which Wilson hurdled two Baltimore tacklers and went on to score and eliminate the Colts from the Western race.

The Lions are now 8-2 and the Bears 7-2-1. Each has two games left, one against each other in Chicago, Dec. 16. It's the season finale and should decide the Western title.

The Giants (7-2-1) have a game-and-a-half lead over the runner-up Cards (6-4) and two games over the Redskins (5-4). All the Giants need do is win one of their remaining games to clinch the title.

Six Backs Chosen on ABC League All-Stars

Four coaches in the ABC League were unable to agree on the four outstanding backfield players this past season, consequently a tie resulted among six candidates.

The players were Stephen Macenroth and Dave Gibbs of Principia, Bill Hall of Country Day, Jon Mars and John Cotsworth of John Burroughs and Duer Schifferdecker of Western.

Other first team selections were Gray Magee of Western and Bill Bowersox of Burroughs, ends; David Bricker of Burroughs and Dennis Garner of Country Day, tackles; Charles Grigg of Burroughs and Roy Bowen of Country Day, guards and John Lampmann of Principia, center.

On the second team were Lea Clayton, John Cramer, Roger Cunningham and Roger Melton of Principia, Jim Wellman, Chip Mathews, Bud Hobart, Dick Engelsmann and Jay McMillan of Country Day, Bob Swartz of Western and Donald Hobbs of Burroughs.

"It's even better than 'sweet-mash' bourbon"...

"Even smoother than 'sour-mash' bourbon"

The one and only
Yellowstone

For over 100 years, people have been discovering something "new" in old Kentucky. It's a different bourbon—better, smoother, remarkably free of bite.

The reason? It has the best characteristics of sour-mash bourbon and sweet-mash bourbon. It's one step better—mellow-mash, the exclusive Yellowstone way of achieving full-bourbon flavor with light body.

People outside Kentucky are discovering this old favorite. Why don't you? Once you taste it, you'll know why it's called "the greatest American whiskey!"

Ritenour Coach to Start Veterans in Opening Basketball Game

Brentwood Has Fine Three-Year Record

By John J. Archibald

Lee Engert, starting a second season as head coach of the Ritenour High basketball team after breaking even in a 24-game campaign last winter, is going to give the superiority-of-seniors theory a good try. For starters, Engert feels that the maturity of the older boys is a major advantage. When it comes to reserves, however, Engert leans heavily toward underclassmen.

"I think Stub Muhl is a good example of a coach who relies on seniors," Engert said. "Every season Stub loses nearly all of his first team in football because of graduation, but it seldom results in a poor season. Stub lets his juniors fill in as often as possible and occasionally uses a sophomore, but when the outcome is in doubt you'll usually find 11 last-year boys in the lineup. I think the same idea is worthwhile in basketball."

So, chances are, Ritenour will have five seniors starting against Lutheran on Tuesday. . . . Three saw considerable duty last season. They are Amuel Brooks, 6-5, at center, and Guards Billy Allen, 5-10, and Gerry Marting, 6-0. There are two other lettermen on the team: Ed Harper, 6-0, and Jack Tipton, 6-3. Bill Perkins, 6-0, played quite a bit, but missed the last part of the season. Doug Kinslow, 6-3, is another senior with experience.

Otherwise, Engert's varsity players will be boys who can benefit from coaching this season and come back next year to help. He's even brought up two sophomores for experience, Dick Burda and Ronnie Hart.

Brentwood's Fine Record.

A Suburban League school with one of the best won-and-lost records over the past three years is little Brentwood. Under Coach John Lauer the Eagles' records have been remarkably similar—19-7 in 1953-54; 18-9 in 1954-55, and 18-8 last season.

Only one starter returned for this campaign, Dick Hodgson, who is at forward despite his 5-10 height. Two other lettermen are present, Fred Brossart, 5-9½, and George Clements, 6-2, at center.

Webster vs. Hancock.

From more and more sources comes the rumor that Webster Groves, always a powerhouse by the time of its own tournament in early February, will start quicker this season. Coach Tyke Yates's Statesmen began their workouts a little earlier than usual and few players were on the football squad. Webster will open at Hancock tomorrow night.

The greatest scoring threat on the Webster team is expected to be six-foot-five Bob Barker, who transferred from De Soto High after playing with that team in two state tournaments.

Other Webster players who earned letters last season were Ray Knickman, 6-1, Lannie Larason, 5-11, Bill Canfield, 5-11, and Jim Hanlon, 6-0. John Larson, a six-footer up from the B team is expected to help as well.

Liberalized Financial Aid for Athletes Is Assured in the PCC

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3 (AP)—Liberalized financial aid for football players and other athletes in the Pacific Coast Conference was assured today and the threat of U.C.L.A. and Southern California withdrawing dimmed.

The powerful presidents' council of the nine member schools made recommendations yesterday which also indicated powers granted to commissioner might be reduced.

Again the presidents said there would be no lessening of penalties against U.C.L.A., Southern California, Washington and California that cost a year's eligibility to this year's sophomore and junior players, who had accepted illegal aid in the past.

A recommendation asked dismissal of any coaches involved in future under-the-table deals with athletes.

Another would reduce the number of conference games required per season from the present seven to five starting in 1960. The round robin calling for each P.C.C. team to play each other annually, with the exception of Idaho, went into effect this year. U.C.L.A. and U.S.C. favor more games with intersectional foes than the three now allowed.

The executive council of the U.C.L.A. Alumni Association last week recommended that immediate steps be taken to withdraw U.C.L.A. from the P.C.C. Individual alumni of U.S.C. had expressed similar sentiments.

Following yesterday's session President Robert Gordon Sproul of the University of California, council chairman, said the question of withdrawal did not come up officially.

Other P.C.C. members are Washington State, Oregon, Stanford and Idaho.

The President's recommendations will come before a joint meeting of their council and the faculty advisers for athletics who take official conference action. It's expected to be held about Jan. 1.

The proposed aid program would be based on an individual's need, taking into consideration his resources and those of his family.

Under the new proposal an athlete can receive a tuition grant-in-aid as under the present rules. His needs in regard to board, room, books and laundry would be determined by an independent agency.

During the off-season he would have an on-campus job at prevailing rates which would allow him to contribute to his requirements. While participating in his sport he would be required to work only a minimum of four hours weekly. Off campus work would not be allowed for those in grant-in-aid programs covering more than tuition.

Schools and individual athletes would be required to submit reports of aid and also of grades in academic subjects. The presidents proposed the athletes maintain a virtual "C" average.

WEST POINT, N.Y., Dec. 3 (UP)—James J. Kernan, brilliant line backer throughout the current season, was elected captain of the 1957 Army football team. It is the first time in Army football history that a center succeeds a center as team captain. He follows Ed Szvetecz of Bethlehem, Pa.

Contrite Bears In Long Sunday Practice on Own

By Jack Rice

It was a real nice sociable weekend on the Washington University campus. Chancellor Ethan A. H. Shepley invited the football team over for Sunday supper because he had enjoyed the way it behaved itself during the season, and the basketball team invited itself out for a long afternoon's practice because it wanted to do penance for Saturday night.

The Bears didn't wait until the next morning to hate themselves for Saturday night, in basketball. They lost to William Jewel, 68 to 56, in the opener of a season of great expectations. It was a night that would discourage even ordinary expectations, and contrition was immediate, said Coach Blair Gullion.

Bears' Offense Slipshod.

"On their own," he said, "They came to me and said they wanted to practice Sunday." His wife, who long ago gave up trying to lick basketball and joined it, stood at his side on the basketball court and said, "They asked to practice?" Her husband grinned and said, "On their own. I didn't want to practice, but they asked for it."

That was the course of all the Bears' actions Saturday night. They asked for it, and they got it. William Jewell had one of those unusual nights, .500-plus in shooting. The Bears not only were far less accurate, they were slipshod in the mechanics of setting up an offense.

"Basically, our defense didn't hurt us at all," said Gullion. "Oh, well, you coach long enough, you'll find nights like that. I remember, the first year I coached at Tennessee, we lost by two points to Lambuth Junior College." He paused for time to ask himself when he last heard of Lambuth Junior College, or of it beating Tennessee in anything, and concluded, "And we finished the season by beating Kentucky for the conference championship."

Illinois College Next.

Gullion, a man to spot a moral to a story when he tells one, grinned again and said, "So we'll beat San Francisco to make up for the opener." The Bears play San Francisco here on Dec. 21, but meanwhile, back in reality, there is Illinois College. It will play the Bears at the Field House tomorrow night, beinning at 8:15 o'clock.

Illinois College basketball teams have played Washington teams six times, and never have won. The current Illinois College team will find itself taken most seriously, for pride suffered Saturday night. The Bears who lost were practically the same Bears who won 17 of 22 games last year, and have been expecting as much or more of themselves this season.

The basketball team's woes spilled over into expressions of sympathy among football players at the Sunday evening supper. Chancellor Shepley was acting more as Citizen Shepley, an admirer of a group of young men who had played football well and given him pleasure. He reciprocated, with rare, good roast beef.

The football players balanced their tea cups on their knees like drawing-room pros and somewhere between the first and second piece of cake, a youth looked across the room at Gullion and at relaxed Football Coach Carl Snavely and said, "Look at 'em. You sure can tell what season we've got, can't you?"

Weiss Takes Lead in Officers Pin Meet

Elmer Weiss, aided by a handicap of 81 pins, took the lead in the officers bowling tourney at Sweeney's Recreation, with a 764 total. He had scratch games of 207, 247 and 209.

George Magac, 707, is second and Irwin Schaefer, 702, third.

Bowling will continue next Saturday and Sunday.

Hawks Swamp Quincy; Nats Buy Harrison

Odie Spears, added by the Hawks as a replacement for Bob Harrison, who was sold to Syracuse, scored 20 points for his new team in a 116-70 exhibition victory yesterday over the Johnson Brothers at Quincy, Ill. The Johnson team is made up of players from Chanute Air Force Base.

Cliff Hagan tallied 25 points and Med Park 17 for the St. Louis entry in the National Basketball Association.

The sale of Harrison was announced last night. He played in every game for the Hawks last season.

The Hawks, beaten by the Warriors, 107-95, Saturday at The Arena, will try to halt the Boston Celtics' nine-game winning streak tomorrow night in the first game of a double-header in New York's Madison Square Garden.

The Knicks will be here Friday night to face the Hawks in the second game of a twin bill at The Arena. Syracuse and Fort Wayne will meet in the opener.

How to Make Money In a Traffic Jam

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Dec. 3. (AP)

ONE test of a man's character is what he does during a traffic jam.

Do you remain a fuming prisoner of the passing moments in such a situation? Or do you—this is the mark of the superior man—employ them for self-improvement and thus score a victory over time?

HAL BOYLE

Many busy people complain the day isn't long enough for them to get done half the things they'd like to. They complain often that traffic jams cause them to waste more time than anything else, and usually add, "but there doesn't seem to be anything that can be done about it."

They are looking at the problem from a short-sighted angle. They look for a solution that will end traffic jams, which, since the world is getting more crowded every day, is manifest nonsense.

The dynamic approach is this: "Since traffic jams are here to stay, how can I use wisely the time I spend caught in them?"

INSPECT A LINE of motorists in any traffic jam, and what are they doing? The odds are high that the great majority will be (1) futilely blowing their horns, (2) cussing, (3) girl watching, (4) either dozing, listening to their wife, or both.

With the possible exception of girl watching, none of these activities fall into a constructive category. All the rest waste precious time and energy.

One might well ask defensively, "Well, just what do you expect me to do during traffic jams—go through college?"

As a matter of fact, why not?

An average of 25,000,000 Americans must waste at least 15 minutes a day in traffic jams. That comes to about 2,281,000,000 lost hours a year. Since a college student spends only about 7200 hours on his studies in a four-year course, the time wasted by motorists each year in traffic jams would send 316,805 people through college.

MAYBE THE IDEA of going through college while your car is stalled doesn't appeal to you. But you can at least study a few correspondence courses on how to get ahead on your job.

You can also even study for a new career while you are endlessly waiting for the car ahead to start. There are some jobs, of course, you can't practice while sitting in a stalled car—such as piano tuning, or, should you yearn to be a lifeguard, the technique of rescuing a drowning person.

On the other hand, there are certain pursuits which can easily be mastered while sitting in a car waiting for the lights to change, e.g., opera singing, clarinet playing, ventriloquism, public speaking, song writing, and cheating at cards.

Traffic jams can also be utilized to improve one's culture. During the 91 hours a year the average man spends in them he can easily read all the books on the best seller list. (One man who has to make frequent cab trips across midtown Manhattan said that he went through the Encyclopedia Britannica in less than two years in this manner.)

If one doesn't mind carrying a small bag, it is also easy to follow one's hobby during traffic jams, whether it be stamp collecting, quilting, or making bird cages.

I HAVE HEARD of one man, a swimming pool salesman, who says he owes his success in life to traffic jams. Instead of calling at the home of prospects, he merely drives along until he comes to a good traffic jam, then parks, gets out and makes his sales pitch to the stalled motorists.

"They can't get away," he observed, "and you'd be surprised at how many guys caught in an automobile on a hot day jump at the chance to buy a nice cool swimming pool."

Any guy can get caught in a traffic jam today. But it's the guy who uses this lost time to his own advantage who gets ahead in the battle of life.

Cranberry Catsup

New England Dishes

By Edith M. Barber

THE annual dinner offered to editors by the Spice Trade Association in New York is something to which invitations are at a premium. The guests never know whether the theme will be European, Far Eastern, Latin-American or what.

This year, rural America — especially New England — was honored. Each dish was based on an authentic recipe furnished by the research department of Old Sturbridge Village, Mass., which has been reconstructed so that it has the appearance of the original village of Revolutionary times.

The spicy hors d'oeuvres at the reception preceding the meal were certainly unknown to New Englanders but the corn and oyster fritters, the dill codfish balls and the curried mushrooms were nonetheless enjoyed.

The tables were lavishly spread with all sorts of mixed pickles, spiced apples and watermelon rind and a delicious cranberry catsup that was passed again and again. The meal itself began with a strained vegetable soup. This was followed by tiny roast suckling pigs, perfectly delicious, with practically fat-free white meat. Naturally, each pig had a red apple in its mouth.

The dessert was a typical old-fashioned Indian pudding baked in individual ramekins and topped with whipped cream. As a dividend, we were offered spiced blueberry pie. You can see we were well fed.

Cranberry Catsup.

Ingredients: Three - fourths pound fresh cranberries, one-third cup cider vinegar, one-half cup water, three-fourths cup light brown sugar, one-fourth teaspoon ground cloves, one-fourth teaspoon ground ginger, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one-half teaspoon ground cinnamon, dash of salt, one tablespoon butter or margarine.

CRANBERRY CATSUP HAS A TART SPICINESS THAT HEIGHTENS THE FLAVOR OF ROAST MEAT OR POULTRY. MADE OF FRESH CRANBERRIES, IT CAN BE STORED AT ROOM TEMPERATURE UNTIL NEEDED.

Wash cranberries and cook with vinegar and water in covered saucepan five minutes or until soft and tender. Strain through a sieve. Add brown sugar, spices and salt. Simmer until the mixture begins to thicken, about three minutes. Stir in butter or margarine. Pour into jars and store at room temperature. Or, if desired, pour into canning jars and seal. Serve with meat or poultry. Yield: About one and one-fourth cups.

Indian Pudding.

Four cups milk, one-half cup molasses, one-fourth cup sugar, one-third cup yellow corn meal, three-fourths teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg, two tablespoons butter.

Heat three cups of the milk in top of double boiler. Add molasses, sugar, corn meal, salt, spices and butter. Cook over hot water, stirring occasionally, about 20 minutes, or until mixture thickens. Pour in one and one-half quart casserole and add remaining cold milk without stirring. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit) two and one-half hours. Serve warm with plain cream or with small balls of ice cream. Yield: Six to eight servings.

How Youth Can Feel Wanted

By Angelo Patri

CHILDREN and adolescents are endowed with tremendous energy. Nature ordained that so they might build their bodies into full growth and sound health and develop their intelligence by experimenting with the work of their time and age.

Nothing mankind can do will alter that fact. No law will wipe it out nor will parental discipline or teacher guidance alter it a whit. Children and youth must have activity and if it is denied them by the conditions of their community life, they will go in search of it and take whatever is offered.

BOYS AND GIRLS in the years of their youthful growth want to share in all the experiences they see mature people undergoing, whether the experiences be work or play. That is natural and right. What is unnatural and wrong is the way home and society deny them this natural way of doing and growing.

Everybody who deals with young people, especially the teachers in secondary schools, knows this full well, but they are powerless to do anything about it. Boards of education know this, too, but all they can do is supply an imitation of the actuality in the form of shop classes that are about as unrealistic as may be.

WHAT CAN WE DO that will make the boys and girls feel useful, wanted and approved? Many things, according to the type and intelligence of the boys and girls, community activities. This is not a matter for just one group, but one for the many. School alone, church alone, industry and home alone are helpless, but let them all work together, and something will happen to change the whole situation.

For book-minded boys and girls or students of the laboratory, lengthen the school day by keeping the place open and allowing the students to carry on as long as they wish. Allow the work-minded to have part-time work in the community industry, boys and girls alike. And praise work and workers.

Delinquency will exist in our big towns until the people of those towns see that every boy and girl within their boundaries has worthwhile work to do and recognition for it. Police and jails are not the answer. Leadership, decent housing, sound teaching, work are the answers.

Fix It Yourself

Durable Finishes for Wood.

WE humans are very tough critters. We can eat food off of plates so hot that they burn the finish on a table and we can drink alcohol that will soften shellac and we can use lacquer thinner on our finger nails that will turn hard lacquer into soft paste.

All these bad habits of ours make it difficult to find a finish which we can use on tables that won't be easily damaged or, if damaged, will be easily repaired.

One way to protect a finish from damage is to cover it with glass. This is good for lots of projects. Another good trick is to protect the finish with a tough coating of wax.

A heavy coating of paste wax should be applied over the finish and allowed to sit for an hour or so, then you go to work with a piece of felt wrapped around a block of wood and you polish until you can't rub any more. Now you wait a couple of days and then apply a second coat of wax and you rub this down. The rubbing should be done in the direction of the wood grain and when you've finished this coat you again wait a few days and apply a third coat. All this work produces a film that will give good protection against heat and moisture.

If you are refinishing a piece you can use special heat and moisture resistant varnishes that withstand quite a beating or you can use a mixture of two parts boiled linseed oil and one part turpentine which is warmed in a double boiler and applied to the wood. Rub this into the wood and allow it to remain for several hours and then wipe off the excess. Give the surface a good rubbing with a piece of felt and then in a few days apply a second coat of the mixture and rub this in. Continue to apply the mixture of linseed oil and turpentine until the wood can't absorb any more. You'll find that the finish does a good job of withstanding both heat and moisture and when and if it is damaged, it can be touched up with more linseed oil and turpentine.

More for Your Money

By Lawrence Galton

IF you're paying for your car in installments, a check on your collision insurance premiums may be worthwhile. Overcharges of as much as $75 are not uncommon, National Better Business Bureau finds. Major reason: misclassification in which high premium rates for under-25-year-old drivers are applied to buyers who qualify for lower rates. Refunds are now being made in some states. . . . If you're buying a car, advises the bureau, one help in avoiding excessive charges is to get in writing these facts and figures before concluding the deal: full cash delivered price (extras included); exact trade-in allowance and down payment; finance terms; also cost, kind and amount of insurance, and how you're being classified for the collision coverage.

AROUND THE HOUSE: Need more storage space? One good bet, often overlooked: Building in shelves or cabinets in your garage in usually wasted space above hood of car. . . . No need to be alarmed if your new refrigerator "sweats" more than the old. New appliances have all-over colder storage areas, making them better food keepers but also increasing condensation on food containers and bottles when warm, moist air enters as door is opened. Best preventive against excessive moisture: open refrigerator only when necessary. Another help: wrapping milk bottles tightly with paper towels.

STORES ANYTHING: One problem in any kitchen is how to store pans, lids, trays, chopping boards and other odd-sized, odd-shaped items. A clever new bracket you can fasten between shelves in any cabinet solves the problem by permitting vertical storage. Twelve inches long, with a six-inch arm swivelling from its center and three ends with angle brackets that also swivel, it adjusts to any position which best supports the item being stored. Any item can be removed without disturbing others. The bracket has uses elsewhere, too—for example in filing phonograph records and record books vertically.

FOR THE YOUNGSTERS: A new study-and-game metal folding table is good for homework and offers a lot of self-contained fun as well. Imprinted on top are complete multiplication tables, weights and measures, historical and other facts, plus checkers, auto racing and other games, and a dart game target. There's also a drawing board to go with it. . . . Newest crayons aren't just crayons; in addition, they can be used wet to produce water colors and, when used still another way, make finger paints—all readily washable.

FOR THE WORKSHOP: Here's a unique, usually useful new version of that old workshop standby, the vise. This one, aptly called a Gyro-Vise, not only rotates around its base and stands upright or setttles down flat on either side; it also moves in a vertical arc so you can put it in virtually any position you'll ever need—for drill press, plumbing, standing, carpentry, filing and tool-sharpening work. It's available with detachable bases so you can mount several in different locations, move the vise from job to job. You can get a flush type base, too, leaving you a whole level workbench surface when you're not using the vise.

MASONRY AID: Cracked masonry walls? Broken concrete steps? For these and many other repairing and improving jobs around the house, there's a new cementitious powder containing a special additive. When mixed with water it forms an unbreakable waterproof bond between new and old concrete. You can use it to moisture-proof basement walls, keep out moisture in basement floors before laying tile. It's also good for repairing and resurfacing walks and drives

If you'd like further information on any of the above items, write Lawrence Galton in care of the Post-Dispatch, identifying item, giving date of appearance and inclosing stamped and self-addressed envelope. Inquiries must be sent no later than two weeks after the appearance of the item.

Answers to Teen-Ager's Problems

By Elinor Williams

IT'S a boy, this time, with worries on his mind. He's not allowed to have fun with his friends—no dates, either—and seeks a solution to the problem.

Dear Elinor: I am a boy of 14, in high school, and I have a problem. My mother refuses to let me have a date and has a fit when I ask to go out with my friends, day or night. She won't let girls call me up. Now some of my boy friends' mothers think I am too young for their sons. If you don't publish my letter, I think I'm going to run away. I can't stand it much longer."

ANSWER—Either you want the wrong kind of fun or your mother doesn't like to face the fact that you are growing up. In a situation like this, easy does it. You'll succeed better if you ease into dating gradually, thus easing her worries and giving her a chance to get used to the idea.

Don't run away; you'd lose more than you'll gain. Besides, it's an immature, little-boy gesture. Act grown-up by working out a social-life deal with your mother.

Try to have a quiet talk with her, explaining that a quick plunge into full-scale dating is not your idea. But you are old enough for chaperoned activities at school and church with boys and girls.

LET HER KNOW that your idea of growing up is not "hanging around" the corner soda fountain until it closes or being a midnight play-boy . . . but simply to participate in school and church doings as part of your teen social experience. It's time for you to learn how to dance and learn how to behave at social doings with girls as well as boys.

Explain to your mother how other boys and girls go to these events in cars with a parent driving, and come home the same way. Then she'll know exactly where you are, whom you're with and that one of the parents is driving the car. You're also old enough to be with friends in the daytime when it does not interfere with school work. Ask her to give you a chance to show how well you can manage it.

Should She Go Back?

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

EACH year hundreds of thousands of couples who have separated from each other in anger, go back to living together. Many other thousands who have divorced, decide that they made a mistake, and remarry. Mrs. R. is debating with herself perhaps the most important question she will ever consider. Should she go back to her husband?

DR. PAUL POPENOE

"I have been married for 10 years to a man who is an intolerable tyrant," she informs me. "He always kept close watch on me; checked on wherever I went; wouldn't allow me to have any friends of my own. If I worked, he insisted that I turn over all my earnings to him. He never seemed to trust me in anything; he is ornery and bull-headed; and I don't know whether he could ever change.

"YES, HE'S my husband. I have been separated from him for four years. I reached the point where I simply couldn't stand living with him any longer. I must admit that I have been happy without him. Recently I met him; he told me he has learned his lesson; that he is a changed man; that I will never again have reason to complain of him; and he asked me to return to him.

"That upset me completely, Dr. Popenoe. I never expected it. I have my doubts as to whether he could change, but of course he might do so. Maybe he has changed. How can I know? How can I trust myself to go back to him?"

APPARENTLY YOU CAN'T, Mrs. R.! Any woman who relies merely on a man's protestations and promises, in such a case, ought to have a legal guardian appointed; and the same applies to men who take a woman's word for it that she is a changed creature. Every language in the world is full of proverbs asserting, in every possible way, that actions speak louder than words.

There are several courses you might follow. You can start dating him occasionally, and see how he behaves. Talk over with him what you have been doing in the last four years. See what his comments are. Find out what he has been doing. If possible, talk with some of his friends or relatives.

Better still, call on a marriage counselor. Let him make a study of the subject for you. Let him test your husband's attitudes and observe his habits. Let him give your husband as much help as he needs to get on the track and stay there—and you probably need some of the same treatment yourself.

Go back to him as soon as you have good evidence that the two of you can do better than before—but get the evidence first.

Confidential

By Stan Delaplane

MELBOURNE, Australia.

WELL, about a week ago I wrote a very confidential piece for the papers.

"Speaking confidentially," I confided, "so and so and blah."

STAN DELAPLANE

I never said anything truer. Apparently this is still a matter between me and the typewriter.

"Urcopy unarrived," said a surly telegram from the States. "Confidentially, son, where are you?"

This is a very good question.

"Melbournewarding earliest possible," I wired back. Back came the rocket: "Why you quoting copra prices?"

Somewhere along the line my transmission met the latest quotations on coconut prices and decided to merge.

ANYWAY, CONFIDENTIALLY I am at the Olympics in Melbourne. A matter which I hope to disclose exclusively before Christmas.

Our problem these days is not how the Russians are faring out. Or who jumped over whom. It is a matter of sun spots.

Sun spots are raising hob with radio transmission. Whole yards of deathless prose files out of here. And dies like a dog somewhere between Melbourne and the waiting antenna at Drakes bay.

"Sun spots, gentlemen, are—uh—rawthuh troublesome."

Armed with this discouraging information. We cast our arrows into the air. They fall to earth . . . somewhere around Suva we think. Which must surprise the Fiji natives and may be why their hair stands on end the way it does.

SO MUCH confidential information is coming out of Olympic Village, it is hard to decide what to use. A panting courier arrived in my room a few minutes ago with the scoop:

"They caught three French weight lifters crawling through the fence disguised as Russian women athletes."

"Describe the disguise," I said professionally. "Were they eating borscht and singing 'The Volga Boatman'?"

"Scarfs and falsies," said the courier. "International tension is high."

THIS IS THE WAY the stories go . . . according to international reputation.

The French are charged with all amorous exploits. The Russians with all the mystery. The Americans with gum chewing. The South Americans with playing guitars under the window.

This is what makes the prose so deathless. Maybe a few lines of copra prices might liven it up at that.

"How did the weight lifters get through the fence?"

The courier said, "The whole matter was in the hands of security at the moment. It was understood that they were using a new secret weapon. It had something to do with reverse energy."

In fact, the whole story sounds to me like science fiction mixed up with true romances. I don't believe a word of it. And probably neither will anybody else when they see it. All garbled up with coconut prices.

And that's the confidential news from Melbourne.

Poor Appetite

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: Would you be so kind and give me some advice about how to promote an appetite? I can't eat. What little I do eat I have to force down. This dislike of food started about three years ago and it is getting worse daily. My doctor has said as long as I do not lose weight, it doesn't matter. But isn't there something I could do so I might enjoy food or at least get a hungry feeling at times?

MRS. S. S.

DR. PETER STEINCROHN

ANSWER: I can hear thousands of readers sigh as they read this letter. They are the ones with insatiable appetites who have such a hard time keeping their weight down. You see, there are always at least two sides to the dieting problem. Be thankful, readers that you have, at least, the God-given "joy-in-eating"—which so many of us take for granted until we lose it.

As for you, Mrs. S. S., ask your doctor what he thinks about large doses of vitamin B and vitamin B complex. Years ago I used to give patients who were greatly undernourished small doses of insulin to create a voracious appetite. It worked quite well. But it is something that can't be used indefinitely—and only under a doctor's watchfulness. I have also used injections of vitamin B12, with some success, as a general "pick-me-up."

What's most important, make certain there is no organic cause for your disinterest in food.

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

"I HAVE an aqua-blue lace dress to wear at my daughter's wedding. My hat matches the dress but what color shoes and gloves should I wear with this?—Mrs. C. K."

Since it would be necessary to have shoes and gloves dyed to match your dress, it would be easier and just as pretty to wear beige or a true blue or green, whichever looks most attractive to you and on you.

"I AM a 44-year-old widow and am getting married in January. What should I wear? It will be a 5 o'clock wedding in the big, beautiful living room of my sister's home. A champagne dinner follows. We'll then drive to New York and catch a plane to Europe. Am I lucky—and in love?—E. B."

Yes, you are. And Beauty After Forty is happy for you. I suggest a dress of velvet, simple, untrimmed and elegant with small velvet hat in matching color. Wedgewood blue is very handsome with lighter blue for accessories.

"WOULD IT BE proper for my son, 23, to act as best man at my wedding. I have been a widow for over 20 years.—Mrs. S."

"MY HAIR is white. My daughter says I should not wear white hats. What do you say?—C. P."

I say your daughter is right. White on white is smart in home decoration but not on your head. A white hat on white hair makes your headline look too heavy.

"ARE ostrich plumes really in fashion now?—E. E."

Yes, very much in fashion. If you choose a feathered hat, wear your hair sleekly done—feathers and flying hair present too busy a scene.

The Great Gable

He's 'Always Given Life Its Head'

CLARK GABLE AND HIS THIRD WIFE, CAROLE LOMBARD, THIRTY-FOUR MONTHS AFTER THEIR MARRIAGE SHE WAS KILLED IN A PLANE CRASH.

This is the second of two articles on Clark Gable, who, at 55, and after 25 years as a film star, remains the most popular movie actor in the world.

Star's 34-Month Marriage to Carole Lombard Was Happy, but It Was Only One of the Loves in His Life

By Joe Hyams

HOLLYWOOD sentimentalists are the most maudlin people in the world. They like to believe Clark Gable had only one love in his life and that he never recovered from her death. Gable has had many loves. His marriage to Carole Lombard is the only one that ended in tragedy.

Gable's other romances have ended with the woman talking wistfully about what might have been and Gable maintaining a tight-lipped silence. His standard comment: "Let the lady tell it."

After his separation from his second wife, Ria Langham, in 1935 many women passed through Gable's life. He was linked with Loretta Young, with a British actress named Mary Taylor and with Elizabeth Allen, a society girl.

In 1937 an Englishwoman made headlines by declaring Gable the father of her 13-year-old daughter, Gwendolyn. The allegation was false. It was refuted in a federal court. The woman was charged with using the mails to defraud.

Late that same year he met Carole Lombard. He was at the peak of his career. He and Miss Lombard had met before in 1932 when they co-starred in a picture. At that time they were both married, she to William Powell and he to Miss Langham.

Miss Lombard was seven years younger than Gable. Hollywood biographer Cameron Shipp recalls that Miss Lombard liked gags. Once she invited a number of Hollywood figures to a formal dinner party. When the guests arrived in white ties and mink they were ushered into a drawing room from which all the furniture had been removed. The floor was knee deep in hay.

Miss Lombard was also noted for having one of the most profane vocabularies ever heard in Hollywood. This fact Gable recalls with the pride of a teacher. She was a man's woman.

They went together for three years while waiting for Ria Langham to accept a property settlement. Miss Langham got her decree in March, 1939. Gable immediately got a day off from working in "Gone With The Wind." He and Miss Lombard drove 750 miles to Kingman, Ariz., where they were married in a small Methodist church.

Friends of Gable say that in his marriage to Carole Lombard he resolved himself. He was a mature, celebrated and rich man, not an uncertain country boy from Ohio. At last he had married a woman to whom he had something to give. Gable says no couple was ever happier on or off the screen. This peak of his life lasted only 34 months.

A few weeks after Pearl Harbor, Carole Lombard went off to her home state of Indiana to help the war effort. She stood for hours in the crowded lobby of the Capitol and sold $2,000,000 worth of defense bonds.

She was anxious to return home. Against the advice of her husband she insisted on flying to Hollywood via Kansas City.

Miss Lombard's plane crashed in the Sierras at dusk on Jan. 16, 1942.

"The last message I received from her was a telegram from Kansas City," Gable said. "It read: 'Happy Pappy, you'd better get into this man's army.'"

Gable has a strong sense of duty. He felt he owed it to his late wife to go through with his plans to enlist. He called Gen. Hap Arnold, his friend, on the telephone and told him he wanted to enlist in the Air Force as a private."

"I'm 41 years old and I don't know how to go about it," he admitted candidly. "I'd like a tough job. Then maybe some of the guys will figure if an old man like Gable can do it, so can I."

Gable enlisted as a private. Later he was sent to Officer Candidate School. He was commissioned a second lieutenant and sent to England with a bomber group. He took part in the raid on the bombing run that blasted the Ruhr Valley and became one of three "prizes" for whom Hermann Goering offered a price dead or alive.

On missions over enemy territory Gable wore a silver chain around his neck holding a little box. In it were the jeweled ear clips Carole Lombard wore when she died.

GABLE won the Air Medal for five combat missions. He came out of the service a major. It was a long time before he married again. There were many items in the gossip columns about his romances—but nothing serious developed.

Seven years after Miss Lombard's death he married Lady Sylvia Ashley, former wife of Douglas Fairbanks Sr. Clark Gable was her fifth husband.

They were married on Dec. 21, 1949. She was 42 and he was 48. Three weeks later Gable's close friends said he had made a mistake. Less than 15 months after the marriage he changed the locks on the house doors. When Sylvia returned from a trip he told her he wanted a divorce.

Gable refused to discuss why his marriage to Sylvia failed. He agreed to the following summation: "I'm an outdoor man, she's an indoor woman." They were divorced in 1952. For the next two years Gable devoted himself to hunting, fishing and puttering about his farm.

When he married Kay Spreckels in July of this year none of his friends was surprised. They had known each other for 11 years. Not since Carole Lombard has Gable had a companion who suits him so well.

Kay will go along with him on anything. Friends say she has the kind of mind that he likes in a woman.

Two weeks after his marriage to Kay, Gable held a press conference at his ranch in Encino, Calif. It was the first time he had ever opened his home to the press. Most of the Hollywood correspondents were there.

The conference lasted more than half an hour. Not once was an embarrassing question asked of either of the Gables. The respect and dignity with which he was treated by the press is, perhaps, the greatest tribute Gable has received in a long career.

Dignity and honesty are the two elements that Clark has parlayed into a winning combination at the box office. In addition, there is mystery. No man really knows him.

GABLE IN HIS MOST FAMOUS ROLE, THAT OF RHETT BUTLER IN "GONE WITH THE WIND"—A MOVIE HE DIDN'T WANT TO MAKE. WITH HIM IS CAMMIE KING, WHO PLAYED HIS DAUGHTER IN THE MOVIE.

Not even at M.-G.-M., where he was employed for 25 years, did his bosses get to know him. Louis B. Mayer would never tell him to come to his office. He would ask him to drop in and have a talk when he was free.

Gable has only a few friends and does not make new ones easily. "I don't know anybody very well until I've known them for several years and seen them under various circumstances," he says. "Everybody is buddy-buddy in Hollywood. You say 'hello' to someone and then believe he's a close friend. Well, that's not the way it is with me."

EVERYONE who has worked with Gable has a good word to say about him. Howard Strickling, head of publicity at M.-G.-M. and one of Gable's oldest friends, put his finger on the Gable personality when he said, "To me he's the most sincere, unaffected star I've ever known. His dressing room door is always open, he talks to everyone, he likes people and they like him. I think he projects this on the screen and that's why he's so durable.

"He's mellowed over the years. He hasn't gotten bitter or sarcastic. He's still just as enthusiastic and interested in life as he was when I first met him."

At 55, Gable is a remarkable man. He's as fit as he was when he was in the Air Force. He has what sociologists term charisma—the essence of authority. He also has sex appeal, despite gray hair and a lined face.

His physique betrays none of the ravages of age. He stands erect, walks quickly and quietly on the balls of his feet. When he gets up from a sitting position it's a fast smooth movement without using his hands to push himself erect.

He's not ashamed of his age and hates the thought of using black dye to touch up his hair. He insists that still photos taken of him remain untouched. "I've always asked the studios not to touch up my pictures," he said. "I want them to leave the character lines there. Otherwise I look like 20,000,000 other guys."

Gable is a man's man in everything he does and says. He's never run away from either life or a problem. Perhaps that's part of his screen charm. "I don't know whether I'm able to cope with all the problems that face me," Gable admitted recently. "But I am able to face the. There have been many times in my life when I've been only able to solve problems half way. I know that everything in life doesn't have a happy ending."

Gable is one of the few stars who are not surrounded by gophers—Hollywood term for hangers-on—nor does he have a business manager.

"I handle my own finances," he said. "If I make a mistake it's my fault. The fun of having money is handling it yourself. With a smart manager I would have a lot more money. But I don't care about being rich. I just want to be comfortable."

NO one knows just how much money Gable does have. During most of the 25 years he was at M-G-M his salary was $7500 a week. He has a paid-up annuity of $112,600, as a result of the M-G-M pension plan. He can figure on earning at least $500,000 from each picture he makes now that he's free lancing.

Although he is sentimental about many things, Gable is above all a practical man. He has reels of most of the films he has appeared in with one notable exception, "Gone With the Wind." "The studio wanted $3200 for that one and I just couldn't see it," he said.

Some time ago there were rumors that Gable would be retiring soon. He admits that he considered the idea but changed his mind. "I'm getting a kick out of making pictures again," he said. "Of course, one day motion picture audiences may retire me. But I certainly am not planning to retire myself at this time or in the near future.

"I think acting gets a little more difficult as time goes by. I don't know whether it's because I think people expect more of me or not. I try to give more."

I asked Gable to look back on his career and explain, if he could, why his life had gone where it has.

"I don't know that I can," he said. "I seem to have pretty much just followed along and tried to make the best of whatever happened. Maybe this will illustrate what I mean. I didn't want to do 'Gone With The Wind.' By the time the picture had started the incredibly romantic Rhett Butler was as alive in people's imaginations as any of the actual figures of the day. To try and give substance to this dream seemed to me to be impossible. To this day I think the reasoning correct, although the event has proven me wrong. It just happened that 'Gone With The Wind' was . . . well, was 'Gone With The Wind.'

"Incidents like this are the story of my life. I've always given life its head, maybe tickling it once in a while with a spur and reining it over a rough spot, but mostly just hanging on. Well, maybe that's not quite right. But I've tried to sit the saddle well."

Contract Bridge

By Sam Fry Jr.

ON Saturday's quiz, with neither side vulnerable, there was an opening spade bid on your right. As second hand, what do you do on each of the following hands?

1. ♠5 ♥KQ103 ♦10972 ♣AQ62

Answer: Double. This hand is good enough to compete, not vulnerable. Nothing bad should happen to you at the two level in one of your four card suits. Vulnerable, we would pass.

2. ♠762 ♥KQ1073 ♦6 ♣Q108

Answer: Pass. We would not recommend an overcall at the two level with this little strength, even not vulnerable.

3. ♠J4 ♥AKQJ74 ♦KQ3 ♣J

Answer: Double. This hand is too good to simply make a non-vulnerable overcall. We double first and then show our heart to let partner know we are strong. If we were vulnerable against non-vulnerable opponents, a two heart overcall there would be better, lest we get shut out from showing our hearts by a spade jump over the takeout double.

4. ♠K10875 ♥AJ ♦AJ3 ♣K9

Answer: Pass. Actually we're strong enough to overcall with one no-trump, not vulnerable, if we so choose, or even double. But with the spade suit massed against the opener a trap pass seems like the best strategy.

5. ♠AQJ8 ♥7 ♦AQJ93 ♣96

Answer: Two diamonds. It's best to show our good diamond suit here. We may be giving a good lead or finding a spot to compete. Passing because of our spade holding in the hope of eventually doubling a spade contract would be putting all our eggs in one basket.

6. ♠AJ3 ♥Q10 ♦KQ964 ♣KJ2

Answer: One no-trump. A far more descriptive call than a double, what with our balanced hand and weakness in the other major. Simply overcalling with two diamonds is too weak and also too non-descriptive a bid.

7. ♠K732 ♥852 ♦Q ♣AQ962

Answer: Pass. Far too dangerous to come in on any vulnerability. The club suit is too weak to overcall in, and a takeout double has obvious marked disadvantages.

8. ♠A103♥—♦KQ1098652♣KQ

Answer: Freak hands like this are a law unto themselves, and lend themselves to whatever strategy the holder feels he can most successfully utilize. Personally we would bid five diamonds immediate on this hand. On the pessimistic side, we fear the opponents may get together on either a makeable heart contract or a good sacrifice in that suit. Optimistically, on the other hand, we can easily make five diamonds or possibly our bid may excite the opponents into a disastrous five spade contract.

SORE THROAT?

HOW LEADING HOSPITAL STOPS SORE THROAT PAIN FAST
Amazing new iodine gargle gave results in 91.6% cases tested
Science has found a revolutionary, safe iodine gargle for sore throat—even severe infection. Tested by doctors in a leading New York hospital, on hundreds of patients, dramatic results were reported.
First used in babies' throats under doctors' supervision, it quickly stopped the dreaded throat infection, "thrush".
The secret is a remarkable scientific advance—detoxifying iodine to make it safe yet potent to use.
The new gargle (1) spreads a soothing film over paining nerve ends and (2) kills germs which cause infection. Relief is fast and lasting.
You can now get it by asking for "Concentrated ISODINE Gargle". Stainless, pleasant-tasting, effective. At all druggists everywhere.

Miss Ann Griesedieck To Be January Bride

By Karin Hayward

THE MARRIAGE of Miss Ann Christine Griesedieck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Griesedieck Jr., and Ens. G. Gale Roberson Jr., USNR, of Wilmette, Ill., will take place at 11 a.m. Jan. 3 at Immacolata Church. After the ceremony, to be performed by Msgr. Cornelius J. Flavin, there will be a reception in the Tower Room of the Congress Hotel.

—Hal Phyfe Photograph.

MISS GRIESEDIECK . . . PLANS WINTER WEDDING.

Miss Griesedieck and her family, who lived in Louisiana, Mo., at the time of the engagement announcement, moved to St. Louis last September. They are living at 8131 Roxburgh drive, Clayton. Mr. Roberson, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Gale Roberson of Wilmette, will arrive in Norfolk, Va., next week after serving aboard the destroyer Wallace L. Lind in the Mediterranean and Red Seas and the Persian Gulf. His ship, in the last convoy through the Suez Canal, assisted in evacuating Americans from Haifa, Israel. He will take his bride to Norfolk to live.

Miss Sally Evans of New Orleans will serve as maid of honor and Mrs. Edward Logan Presnell (Angela Kerckhoff), Miss Josephine Medart, Mrs. Albert Gustin, Kansas City, Mo.; Miss Sherry Roberson, sister of the prospective bridegroom, and Miss Barbara Hoffmann will be bridesmaids. Miss Evans and Miss Roberson attended Manhattanville College, Purchase, N.Y., with Miss Griesedieck, and Miss Hoffmann was her roommate there.

Louis S. Miano of Pelham, N.Y., Mr. Roberson's roommate at Dartmouth College, will serve as best man, while ushers will be his brother, Peter Roberson; the prospective bride's brother, Marine Pvt. Henry L. Griesedieck III, of Camp Pendleton, Calif.; James Allan III, Chicago, a cousin of the bridegroom-elect, and George A. Hines and John C. Simon, Chicago.

St. Louisans to Move to Minneapolis.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN MACKSEY (Susan Priest), 804 East Essex avenue, Glendale, will make their home in Minneapolis. Mr. Macksey departed several days ago and his wife will follow in a month.

Mrs. Macksey's brother and sister-in-law, Lt. and Mrs. John G. Priest, 5098 Westminster place, recently became the parents of a daughter, their third child, who has been named Susan Cabanne. The baby represents the sixth generation to bear her given names. The first Susan Cabanne was born in North Carolina before the Civil War.

Mrs. Macksey and Lt. Priest, who is stationed at Lambert Field, are the daughter and son of Mrs. George T. Priest. Mrs. Priest's sister, Mrs. William E. Burr, is expected home in February from Los Angeles, where she is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Brainerd C. Lucas.

The St. Louis Junior League will give a fashion show-luncheon at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow at the Clayton Community Center, 1 Mark Twain Circle. The show, called "Gala Fashions," will feature styles for the Christmas holidays by Scruggs, Vandervoort and Barney. Models will be Mrs. Mark D. Eagleton Jr., Mrs. E. S. Gatch II, Mrs. Richard Austin Gilbert, Mrs. John W. Jordan, Miss Marian Green, Mrs. J. Michael Hadley, Mrs. William F. Kistner, Mrs. William B. McMillan, Mrs. Charles Nadler, Mrs. William G. von Weise, Mrs. John Hill White and Mrs. William H. Webster.

Prewedding Parties Scheduled for Bride-Elect.

MISS JUNE BRECKENRIDGE and her mother, Mrs. Hunter Breckenridge, were co-hostesses in October at the first prewedding party, a luncheon and miscellaneous shower, in honor of Miss Carol Lemkemeier, who will be married Dec. 22 to William Ivan Goettman. Mrs. Harold Schulenburg gave a luncheon and shower, and the prospective bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Goettman of Springfield, O., held an open house for the engaged pair.

MISS BRECKENRIDGE . . . HOSTESS AT PARTY.

Recent parties were a luncheon and kitchen shower given by Mrs. Preston W. Lewis and Mrs. Cecil Connelly; a luncheon and linen shower with Miss Clare Harding as hostess; a luncheon and miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Osmond Kropp, Mrs. Harold Bulger, Mrs. Richard Williams and Mrs. William Stuart, and a luncheon and shower by Mrs. Sidney Erwin and her daughter, Miss Susan Erwin.

On Dec. 13 Miss Dolores Fornara is planning a supper and pantry shower, while on Dec. 15 Miss Nancy Harrison will give a cocktail supper. The spinster dinner will take place Dec. 20 with Miss Judith Taussig as hostess, and the rehearsal dinner will be given by the bridegroom's parents at Le Chateau Dec. 21.

The wedding will take place at 8 o'clock at night at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Communion. Later the prospective bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver F. Lemkemeier, will give a reception at the church.

Greditzer-Adam Wedding Dec. 17.

THE MARRIAGE of Mrs. Vaughn Enslin Adam, daughter of Mrs. Everett M. Enslin of Robyn road, Sappington, and the late Mr. Enslin, to Dr. Arthur S. Greditzer will take place at 5:30 o'clock Monday, Dec. 17, at the Enslin home. The Rev. Stephen M. Pronko of Brentwood Congregational Church is to perform the ceremony, which will be followed by a reception.

The bride will be attended by Miss Jeanne Guyot, maid of honor, and Dr. Greditzer by Dr. Lawrence T. Post Jr., best man.

Dr. Greditzer and his bride have deferred a honeymoon until February when they plan to go skiing at the home of friends in Vermont. They will live at 428 Oakley drive, Clayton.

Mrs. Adam, who formerly lived in Estoril, Portugal, is a former student at Gulf Park College, Gulfport, Miss., and a graduate of the University of Colorado. She is the mother of two young daughters, Victoria and Eve Adam.

Dr. Greditzer is the son of Mrs. Harry G. Greditzer, 7227 Rosebury drive, and the late Dr. Greditzer. He attended Indiana and Southern California university, and was graduated from Washington University School of Medicine where he is now teaching psychiatry. He is on the Barnes Hospital staff. His fraternity is Beta Theta Pi.

Mrs. Enslin is on her way home from a world trip and is due here Friday by plane from Rome. She has recently been in the Middle East, Germany and Paris.

LoPiccolo Sisters At College in West

MISS MADELYN AND MISS JOANNE LO PICCOLO, daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Vincent L. Lo Piccolo, 8019 Rosaline drive, Clayton, both students at San Diego University, San Diego, Calif., spent the Thanksgiving holidays with classmates. Miss Madelyn, a a sophomore, attended a house-party given by Miss Jean Hicks in Palm Springs, while Miss Joanne, a junior, was in La Jolla at the home of Gen. Patrick Cook, whose daughter is a classmate.

Miss Madelyn has been elected vice president of the sophomore class and social chairman and class representative of the Student Council. At Homecoming Nov. 17 she was chosen by the men students to be special maid to the queen in the parade and at the football game and dance. She will make her debut in St. Louis at a dinner dance in June.

Miss Joanne, who has attended both Duchesne Residence School in New York and St. Louis University, is spending her first year at San Diego. She has been elected to the college year book staff.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Neumann, 3208 Gary drive, Normandy, have sent invitations to relatives and friends for an open house Saturday, Dec. 29, in honor of their daughter, Miss Joan Audrey Neumann of Seattle, Wash. Miss Neumann, who lives at the University Club in Seattle, will be here from Dec. 28 to Jan. 2. A graduate, last June, of Washington University School of Nursing, she was on the nursing staff of Barnes Hospital until late July. She is now on the staff of King County Hospital, Polio Center, Seattle. She is a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority and American National Association of Nurses.

Active Child Is Problem In Play Group

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louis Ames, Ph.D.
Of the Gesell Institute of Child Behavior

AROUND and around the nursery school playroom (or so it seemed to his somewhat frazzled teachers) raced 3-year-old Michael. Up and down the slide, a quick fling on the rocking boat, a turn on the jungle gym. Would he never slow down? Would he never tire? Would he never express himself less vigorously?

Probably not, so long as health and strength or for that matter life itself held out. For Michael was, and you could spot it at a glance, the kind of child whom Sheldon has described as a mesomorph. Sturdy, well-muscled, well co-ordinated in body build, he habitually expressed himself when possible through active physical play.

IN THE NURSERY SCHOOL, as in any other play group situation, this need presents no special problem, provided that there are not too many mesomorphs in any one group. And provided that the teacher understands the mesomorphic individual and makes allowance (and provision) for the way he will almost inevitably behave.

First of all she will recognize that it is very difficult for this kind of child to sit still for any long period. Thus she will provide him with many opportunities for active play and will make few demands on him to sit still for more than brief snatches of time. Whenever any long sitting still may be necessary, she will provide him with a good opportunity to blow off steam afterwards.

The teacher needs to realize that children of this type are hard to handle and make great demands on her time, energy, patience. Two extreme mesomorphs in an ordinary sized nursery school group would usually be as many as the group could absorb or the teacher stand.

ACCEPT THE FACT that many mesomorphs (especially young ones) seem to be just naturally destructive. They cannot seem to keep their hands out of things. They are insatiable touchers, handlers, explorers. But their ever-active hands are often not particularly skillful. What they touch is, therefore, likely to be dropped, bent, broken. Since this natural destructiveness is seldom intentional badness, try—when you cannot prevent it—not to penalize it too severely.

A teacher may have to "not see" much that a child like this does. Otherwise she may find herself engaged in a constant series of head-on collisions—the very thing she wants to avoid. Re-routing, pre-planning, substitutions, watchful supervision—all aimed to prevent the worst disasters—can be more effective in dealing with a boy (or girl) like this than a heavy-handed and direct frontal attack.

Dr. Claude Hulet To Give Talk at Wednesday Club

By Fay Profilet

DR. Claude Hulet, president of Missouri Chapter of American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portugese and a member of the department of romance languages at Washington University, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the education section of the Wednesday Club Wednesday. The meeting, scheduled for 2 p.m., will be held at the clubhouse, 4504 Westminster place, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Lawrence E. Stout.

Dr. Hulet's subject will be, "Education in the United States and in Latin America: A Comparison." He received his A.B., M.A., and Ph.D. from the University of Michigan and studied at the Universidad Nacional Autonoma de Mexico. He spent two and one-half years in Brazil and a year in Guatemala, where he was director of the Institute Guatemalteco-Americano. His special field of research is Latin American and Brazilian literature. Mrs. Howard Morris, leader for Wednesday's meeting, will introduce the speaker. After Dr. Hulet's lecture tea will be served.

St. Mary's Hospital Auxiliary will meet tomorrow for luncheon at noon at the nurses' home, 6420 Clayton road. Officers will be elected at a short business meeting after which St. Louis University Medical School Glee Club will present a program. Mrs. Bernard Gerwitz is program chairman and Mrs. Raymond O. Muether is auxiliary president.

La Sertoma Club of St. Louis will have its annual bazaar, luncheon and children's Christmas party Wednesday at the Mark Twain Hotel. At the close of a Christmas program Santa Claus will arrive with gifts for the children. In addition to presenting $300 to the St. Louis Association for Retarded Children, the club recently contributed to Boys Town of Missouri.

Religious Program.

THE Musical Research Club will give a program on "Religion" tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. at Central Presbyterian Church with Mrs. Henry Evangeloff as the leader. Mrs. Evangeloff will present the early history of St. Louis churches and will discuss the lives of some of the religious leaders. David Thornton, a St. Louisan, will be among the composers to be represented on the program.

Appearing on the program will be Mrs. Ollie F. Babcock, Mrs. Nels W. Jansson, Mrs. George Kercher, Mrs. Roy J. Madison, Mrs. John W. Meredith, Mrs. Frank Neal, Mrs. Ernest M. Potts, Mrs. Blaine Ulmer and the Muscial Research Ensemble. The ensemble will be under the direction of Mrs. Herbert P. Stellwagen. Mrs. Babcock and Mrs. Neal will also play the organ accompaniments. Mrs. Theodore C. Wetterau is club president.

The student nurses at St. John's Hospital School of Nursing will be hostesses to the Mothers' Club Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. at the nurses' residence, 4961 Audubon avenue. Under the direction of Sister Mary Claude, administrative dietitian and instructor in dietetics, a group of pre-clinical students will plan and prepare a Yuletide tea. Entertainment will consist of games, carols by the choral group and numbers by pupils from the Emma Ogle School of the Dance.

Tuesday Literary Club.

MRS. HAZEL KNAPP, a member of the women's committee of Friends of Shaw's Garden, will give a program titled "Bells and Bows" at a meeting of the Tuesday Literary Club tomorrow at the Artists' Guild at 2 p.m. Mrs. Joseph A. Quinn, president, will conduct the business meeting.

Mrs. Oliver Dunbar, program chairman, will introduce Mrs. Knapp, who will illustrate her talk by making Christmas decorations. Also on the program will be the "Blue Bells," a group which will play English bells under the direction of Mrs. Charles Knebel. After the program, Mrs. Charles Probst and Mrs. Roy C. Atwater, former club presidents, will serve tea.

Martha Carr's OPINION

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Dear Martha:

WHAT can be done with a husband who has a roving eye? His head is like a doorknob and any woman can turn it. I can't talk it over with him because he flies into a rage and throws things around the house and even threatens me. Now he tells me he has to leave work early on account of the traffic. Well, Martha, I know he goes to pick up another woman who works where he does. I've baked and cooked his favorite meals, kept the house clean, and have received many compliments from friends on being neat and attractive myself. I have always tried to be a good companion. This doesn't seem to be enough so I don't intend to stay closed within four walls any longer and with nothing to keep me home through the long hours I am also going to go out and enjoy myself. HEARTBROKEN.

And what good would that do? Not that I don't understand why you'd be tempted, but it's still true that two wrongs don't make a right and you would only be compounding whatever wrong he has done. For that matter, are you certain he picks up this other woman? And are you mistaking friendliness for flirtation? Of course, whether he's guilty of that or not, the fact that he "flies into a rage and throws things around the house and even threatens" you makes it obvious that he needs some help if your marriage is to be anything but a series of battles and accusations. Before you decide to pay him back in kind, seek professional counseling for yourself. Any one of the family agencies in the community will be glad to discuss this problem with you. Don't give up hope that your home can be happier without at least trying to get help.

Dear Martha:

CAN YOU TELL ME what a lonely lady is to do? I am a widow in my late 40s. In my church are all couples and the women naturally haven't much time for a lonely individual. Would you list some organizations that welcome single men and women? JUST LONELY.

There are far too many such organizations to list here in the column, but if you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope, I will be happy to mail such a list to you. Ask for the club leaflet for those between the ages of 30 and 50. I also have lists of clubs for young adults and for senior citizens.

Dear Martha:

IS IT WRONG for an aunt to give a bridal shower for her niece. WONDERING.

It would not be "wrong," of course, but as a usual thing, friends rather than members of the immediate family entertain at showers. The reason for this is that guests are asked to bring gifts and it sometimes seems a little awkward for a hostess to ask for presents for her relative. For that reason, many women prefer to entertain at tea or luncheon for a young relative rather than plan a shower.

Write today for Martha Carr's free leaflet of children's parties, "Let's Have a Party." Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Try 'Wrong Gift'

By Josephine Lowman

I AM an advocate of giving the wrong Christmas present to the right person. This may sound a bit confusing. My idea is this: I think we become too stereotyped in our idea of those we know and that this is reflected in the presents we give them.

JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

A woman who cannot afford to buy many personal luxuries for herself is likely to get a bigger kick out of some fluffy bit of lingerie or an exotic perfume than she would out of a dozen potholders or a fountain pen. Unless a man or woman has an unlimited amount of money there always are things we can give which they would not buy for themselves. Such gifts are most appreciated. Therefore, I suggest that we do not look at our friends and family with too practical an eye when selecting their Christmas presents.

HERE ARE A FEW suggestions which may help you. Most hobbies cost some money and many of the most interesting ones are quite expensive. Why not give something which is connected with the hobbies of your friends or family.

Books make wonderful gifts for those who love to read if you know enough about the person's taste in literature. There are also many informative books about practically every hobby. There are books on wildlife, gardening, hooked rugs, herbs, ceramics and so on.

Of course the possibilities in the cosmetic world are myriad. Each year there are more products available and they are more imaginatively and beautifully packaged than ever before.

ALSO REMEMBER flowers when selecting your gifts this year. These are lovely messengers on Christmas Eve. There always are rewarding possibilities when buying for those who love music—records, record players, record racks and tape recorders.

If you are sending gifts to those you have not seen for some time, it is always helpful to ask their family or friends what they want or need. You just barely have time to do this with the hope for a quick answer.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A LETTER tells me: "A friend of mine who lives in the suburbs asked me to come out and spend the day with her. I have a relative who lives not too far from this friend whom I haven't seen in quite some time as I do not get out that way often. After lunch I asked my friend if she would mind if I went to see my relative. She said 'no' and so I went and spent about an hour or so with this relative. When I came back to my friend's house she seemed rather annoyed and I have a feeling that it was because I left to visit someone else. Will you please tell me if I was wrong to leave?"

To cut into your friend's visit was not very courteous as it kept her sitting at home waiting for you to return. I think it would have been better to have left your friend's house early and then gone to visit your relative on your way home.

DEAR MRS. POST: When a bride wears gloves, what does she do with them when it is time for the ring to be put on her finger?

Answer: She rips the under seam of the third finger of the left-hand glove half way up and pulls the tip back then he places the ring on her finger.

From Italy

International Designer Pattern

FABIANA lends his fine Italian hand to the universally favored one piece shirtwaist dress and comes up with a distinctive model wonderfully detailed.

The center front buttoned inserts are cut in one with the waist band, the soft collar falls away from the neck, tiny tabs close the turned back cuffs. All of these are top stitched.

The back of the bodice has a slight fullness released both from the yoke and the waistband, the skirt which is gathered, is an inch longer in keeping with the trend of lowered hems.

The pattern, custom cut and precisely perforated for easy accomplishment of the couturier touches, allows for this longer length. Choose lightweight tweeds, wool crepe, shantung, foulard, novelty cotton. From this chart select the one size best for you.

Sizes	Bust	Waist	Hips	Length from nape of neck to Waist
14	36½	26½	37½"	17"
16	38	28	39"	17¼"
18	40	30	41"	17½"

Pattern S-337. Size 12 requires 4⅛ yards of 54-inch material for one piece dress.

To order a pattern, state size, inclose $1. Airmail handling require 25 cents extra. Address International Designer Patterns, in care of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, P.O. Box 993, G.P.O. Dept. The Dean Speaks Up

Needed: New Attitude on Working Wives

By Adele Starbird

IF it is true, as many think, that the pattern of life is changing for women, and that the girl of today will have to prepare both for marriage and a career, then a corresponding change must take place in the attitude of society toward the working wife.

Dean Starbird

And first of all her husband will have to accept her as a full-time working partner, without false pride or defensiveness.

A young man said to me with great bitterness when his wife had to take a job, "I'm like a poor old rooster, can't even scratch a living for one hen." He felt so humiliated and inadequate that, in spite of her marked success, his wife stopped working as soon as their debts were paid. She recognized the fact that she was one woman who could not have both marriage and a career, and she was wise enough to save her marriage.

BUT SOMETIMES it is the wife who feels that she has lost face by working. Having dreamed romantically of an idle life, supported and spoiled by an adoring husband, she resents the harsh realities of a budget, and blames her husband for his failure to bring home a double portion of bacon.

We shall have to drop our prejudices about what constitutes a man's work, or a woman's work. The man and wife who share the responsibility for bringing home the bacon, will have to share also in the cooking of it.

The wife who works all week in an office and spends her weekends scrubbing and washing and ironing, not to mention every evening in the kitchen—that wife is submitting to a grave injustice. And injustice is bad for everybody who is party to it; it is bad for the one who inflicts it, and for the one who endures it.

The care of the children should also be evenly divided between the working wife and her husband, and this will be a great gain for the children. Too long has the American home been considered a matriarchy where the father lacked authority. The mother decided what church they would attend, which friends they would cultivate, in what neighborhood they would live, and she selected the schools for the children.

Because the father has abandoned his traditional role, children have felt insecure. They need both the father image and the mother image if they are to play their own roles adequately when they mature. Many cases of delinquency and of early divorce can be traced to the unbalanced household — a father effaced, and a mother too dominant.

If both parents work, then both should contribute to the household expenses, and to the wages of any help that has to be engaged. Both should be responsible for savings and insurance. The whole endeavor should be a real sharing.

EVEN WEALTHY WOMEN will be forced into the professions as an escape from futility. Until recently they could employ their time usefully in philanthropic projects. But as David Riesman points out in his "Lonely Crowd," the wealthy amateur is elbowed aside by staff professionals; the only thing she is still permitted to do is to raise the money to pay the professionals, and even fund-raising is becoming professionalized! Therefore if the woman of wealth is to have a voice in public affairs, if she is to realize herself in the community, she will have to prepare for professional status.

Whether a woman works from financial necessity or merely from the need to serve in a creative way, she must have adequate training. There seems to be as little room for the unskilled as for the drone.

Yankee Baked Lima Beans

Ingredients: Two cups large dry limas, five cups water, one-third pound cubed salt pork, salt, one-half cup catchup, three-fourth cup finely diced onion, one-fourth cup brown sugar, one tablespoon prepared mustard, one tablespoon Worcestershire sauce.

Method: Soak limas in water five to six hours or overnight. Bring slowly to boil. Add salt pork and boil gently until almost tender, 35 to 45 minutes. Taste and season with salt if needed. Put limas and 1½ cups cooking liquid in casserole. Mix remaining ingredients and stir into limas. Put part of the salt pork on top. Bake in moderate (350 degree) oven one and one-half hours. Makes six to eight servings.

Note: If unsoaked limas are used, stir them into two quarts rapidly boiling water; boil gently one and one-half hours.

Cookie Dough

Too many eggs in cookie dough may make it tough unless there is a corresponding amount of fat added.

Don't Look Cross When You Say 'No'

By Ruth Millett

"DON'T look so cross when you say 'No,' Mommy," the small boy told his mother whose face was distorted with scowling annoyance. She told her young son he couldn't have the cookies he wanted to add to her supermarket grocery cart.

"Don't look cross when you say 'No'" is a pretty good rule for any mother to follow.

Mothers, in the course of any day, have to say a lot of "no's." They have to do a lot of correcting, reminding, refereeing, and give a lot of orders.

But with it all, the atmosphere of a home will stay happy and children will be sunny if the mother keeps her voice calm, her face unmarred by tight, hard impatience and her eyes soft and gentle.

It is not just small children who hate to be talked to in a cross, impatient voice. Teenagers hate it, too, and perhaps the reason why some of them are so rude to their mothers is simply because they are reflecting the tone of voice their mother has used for years when talking to them.

More than any one thing, a mother's voice can calm or upset a whole household.

If her voice is warm and kind, if she is quick to laugh, if she refuses to let hurry make her impatient and cross, family life runs smoothly. Even minor crises are met without ruining anyone's day.

But if a mother's voice is frequently impatient, if her face wears a deep frown more often than a warm smile, if she can't say "no" without getting angry, tensions rise and home isn't a very happy place for anyone—including Mama.

Staying calm and pleasant is a big order, of course. But not too big for any woman who realizes how much happiness she can create just by speaking softly and looking pleasant.

Delicious Suggestion

Creamed ham and chicken is delicious served over split squares of cornbread. If you need to stretch the sauce, add hard-cooked egg or mushrooms to it.

Fish Divan

Four fish fillets, one-half lemon, one medium onion, one-half cup white wine, one pound fresh or two packages frozen broccoli, cooked and drained; salt, white pepper, two tablespoons butter or margarine, two tablespoons flour, one-half cup rich milk or light cream, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup grated Parmesan cheese, one-fourth cup slivered almonds, one teaspoon lemon juice.

Rub fish with lemon. Slice onion into shallow pan. Add wine and heat to simmering. Add fish and baste gently, about five minutes. Place cooked broccoli in shallow baking dish and cover with drained fish fillets. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Melt butter or margarine. Blend in flour, then milk or cream, one-half cup wine from the fish and one-half teaspoon salt. Cook, stirring until sauce thickens and boils. Stir in cheese, reserving a small amount for the top. Pour lemon juice and cheese sauce over fish and sprinkle with remaining cheese and almonds. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 20 minutes or until bubbly. Yield: four servings.

Tossed Green Salad

ARCHIE—By Bob Montana

I JUST WAKE UP AND FIND MYSELF LATE!
HOW CAN I GET HERE TEN MINUTES EARLIER?!
TRY ELIMINATING ONE THING IN YOUR MORNING ROUTINE!
YOU MEAN BREAKFAST?
NO! EVERYONE SHOULD EAT A GOOD BREAKFAST!

RIP KIRBY—By Alex Raymond

KIRBY IS BUSY DOWNTOWN....
YES, MR. ALLEN, THE TIPSTER WITHIN YOUR ORGANIZATION MUST BE ONE OF THESE THREE MEN WHO SAW THE FALSE INVOICE...
I GUESS YOU'RE RIGHT--BUT IT'S HARD TO BELIEVE.
YOU SAY MR. KIRBY'S FAVORITE REVOLVER IS IN THAT DESK? MAY I SEE IT, MR. DESMOND?
OF COURSE, MISS BARNARD. THEN YOU CAN MENTION IT IN YOUR COLLEGE THEME ON CRIMINOLOGY...
THERE YOU ARE, BUT DON'T TOUCH IT. LOADED, YOU KNOW...
GOODNESS, I WOULDN'T DARE...

BUZ SAWYER—By Roy Crane

SO WHILE I'M AWAY, YOU, JEFF, TAKE MY WIFE FOR A PLANE RIDE TO SHOW HER THE THRILL OF FLYING!
I THOUGHT IT MIGHT MAKE HER STOP WORRYING ABOUT THE DANGER OF IT, BUZ.
AND SHE ENDS UP LEARNING TO FLY A PLANE, HERSELF.
IT'S SIMPLY TOO WONDERFUL, DARLING.
CONFOUND IT, BUZ! WHY SHOULDN'T CHRISTY LEARN TO FLY IF SHE WANTS TO?
AND HAVE ME WORRYING ABOUT HER?
BUT, BUZ DEAR, I SHOULDN'T HAVE TO DO ALL THE WORRYING FOR THE FAMILY, BESIDES, MY FLYING A CUB ISN'T A TENTH AS DANGEROUS AS YOUR FLYING ROCKET PLANES.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

THE ARABS in various countries have different strains of race, but they agree on one thing. In all Arab lands the people are Moslems. They follow the teachings of Mohammed.

Q. Who were the original Moslems?

A. Residents of Arabia. The desert wanderers known as Bedouins are described as original Arabs. Many pure-blooded Arabs still live in Arabia, but in other lands they are strongly mixed with natives of different stock.

The "white Arabs" of Syria, Jordan and Iran have married with other strains of the white race. In northern Africa some of the Arabs have tanned skins, but are white, or nearly white, in race. Other African Arabs have brown skins because of mixture with Negroes.

Q. Are the people of Egypt full-blooded Arabs?

A. No. Egypt today contains people who have gone through a great deal of racial mixing. The ancestors of modern Egyptians include Bedouins and other Arabs of the Arabian Desert, also ancient Egyptians and dark-skinned Nubians.

The ancient Egyptians were white people who left Asia Minor and settled in the valley of the Nile river. They were related to the Babylonians and Hebrews.

There is doubt as to the proportion of ancient Egyptian stock left in Egypt. Probably it amounts to about one-third.

AN ARAB OF NORTHERN AFRICA ON HIS DESERT STEED

Q. Why has Egypt fallen behind in the march of civilization?

A. The reason is subject to debate. Little progress in science, medicine or invention has been reported from Egypt during modern times. The death rate is very high. An average Egyptian lives only to about the age of 37. In advanced countries, the life expectancy runs above 65 years.
